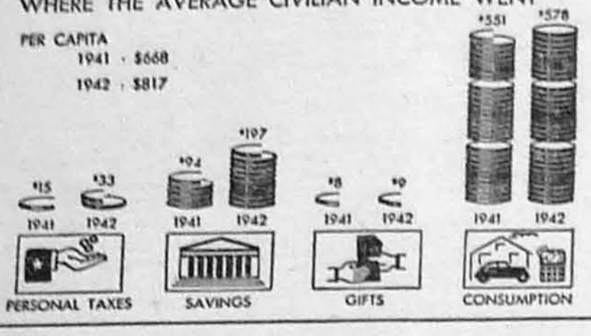
WHERE THE AVERAGE CIVILIAN INCOME WENT



SICILY:
Last Stand

Forty thousand Axis troops were all that were left to stand between the Allies and complete conquest of Sicily as the last phase of the battle developed. Of the 40,000, it was estimated that 35,000 were German and the rest Italian.

Although heavily outnumbered by the 10 Allied divisions reported in action, the Axis relied on strong natural entrenchments hewed into the rugged mountains to hold up the British-American drive. The advance against these positions was difficult, with the infantry slowly picking its way up the craggy but barren slopes in the face of stiff mortar and machine gun nests which had held their ground even after fierce Allied artillery barrage.

After being stalled for two weeks in front of Catania, the British 8th army spilled into the city after overcoming strong Axis positions set up along the several rivers winding through the country and in the tall fields of grain. Aided by the navy's bombardment of the enemy's coastal positions along the Tyrrhenian sea, the U. S. 7th army's drive pointed eastward to Messina, the Axis' last communication link with the Italian mainland.

MINERS:
For Travel Pay

Pride might cometh before the fall, but in John L. Lewis' case, it was his interest in drawing underground pay for his 500,000 United Mine Workers that accounted for his appearance before the War Labor board which he had so often berated in the past.

John L. Lewis

Occasion was the WLB's hearing on the Illinois Coal Operators' and UMW's agreement for payment of $1.25 a day to the miners for the time spent in traveling underground from the mine's entrance to the diggings. Lewis told the WLB that American coal miners are the only miners in any civilized country who receive no compensation for underground travel.

The agreement also calls for an eight instead of a seven hour day and a six-day work week, which, with the underground travel pay, would increase miners' daily checks by $3. Stating that 1,462 miners died from risks in the pits last year and 72,000 were seriously injured, Lewis said the extra working hours would increase the men's exposure to such accidents. Furthermore, he declared, the miners received just $37 more a year than the lowest classification of government clerical workers.

GRAIN:
Going East

Six hundred million bushels of corn were used during the second quarter of 1943, the department of agriculture reported, with supplies as of July 1 totaling 873 million bushels. Of this amount, 843 million bushels remained on farms.

As of July 1, the department stated that there was a supply of 200 million bushels of oats; over 200 million bushels of barley, and 46 million bushels of rye. Approximately 300 million bushels of wheat were found available for feed.

In relation to livestock, feed supply is expected to be 30 per cent smaller than last year and 14 per cent below average.

STRIKE

In the first test of the Smith-Connally law, 1,800 employees of two plants of the Allis-Chalmers company in Springfield, Ill., voted to strike in protest at the National Labor Relations board's refusal to grant District 50 of the United Mine Workers an election to determine its claim as collective bargaining agent. A total of 638 voted against a strike.

The ballot read: "Do you wish to permit an interruption in war production in workers as a result of this dispute?"

RUSSIA:
Offensive Climax

The height of the Russians' summer offensive was reached with the fall of Orel. After a month of hard fighting, Marshal Timoshenko's forces swept into the city, even as the bulk of 250,000 Germans was being withdrawn to new positions to the west.

Gen. Timoshenko

Held by the Germans since October, 1941, Orel stood in ruin as the Russians moved in, with Nazi rear-guards tackling the Reds in hand-to-hand fighting in delaying action in the streets of the city.

In taking Orel, the Reds threw the full weight of their artillery, planes, tanks and infantry into the battle. Slowly, they ground down German resistance on the north, south and east sides of the city.

On the other end of the central front, the Reds announced capture of Belgorod.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC:
At Munda

The American attack on Munda in the Solomons stands out as a classic of military strategy.

In the final stages of the battle against a fanatical enemy resisting to the death, American forces drew a tight noose around the Japs, with one column moving to the west of the defenders' line while two other columns hammered in from two ends on the east.

When American planes failed to sufficiently reduce the Japs' hidden pill-boxes hewed in the jungle brush, 13-ton tanks were called into the fray, and these crackled through the dense foliage to advance on the enemy's well-concealed positions and draw their fire. Their gun-fire guided the tanks to their entrenchments and these were quickly subdued with point-blank barrages.

With strong Jap points overrun on the east, American warships and airplanes then moved in along the coast to the west and laid down a thunderous volley into the enemy's positions. As this combined barrage shook up the Japs in their pillboxes and caves, American troops picked their way northward, to ring the enemy from the west.

TAXES:
Corporations' Share

What is the corporations' share of the nation's tax burden?

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau revealed that preliminary statistics show that 509,062 corporations filed returns for 1941. Except for 40,160 which were inactive with no income data, these corporations paid over seven billion dollars in normal, surtaxes and excess profit taxes. The government collected nearly 13 billion dollars in revenue for 1941, which would indicate that corporations accounted for almost 60 per cent of receipts.

Henry Morgenthau

Morgenthau reported that of the corporations reporting for 1941, 264,629 showed profits, with net income of 18 billion dollars. Approximately 43,648 more corporations made money during the year than in 1940.

MISCELLANY:

WAR PRISONERS: One out of every ten American soldiers in Japanese prison camps has died of disease since the Philippines fell, the war department reveals.

MOBILIZED: Seventy per cent of wounded Russian soldiers recover and return to the battlefield, report British army surgeons who have been on a mission to the Soviet Union.

Faster Than Sound

To Lt. Col. Cass S. Hough of Plymouth, Mich., fell the rare distinction of traveling faster than sound, or more than 760 miles per hour, while undertaking two experimental flights for the U. S. army air force.

Last September, Col. Hough's P-38 Lightning climbed up to 43,000 feet. Then, he coaly nosed the plane into a powerdive and she zoomed downward at the record speed before being leveled off at 18,000 feet. Last February, Col. Hough took a P-47 Thunderbolt to 39,000 feet, and repeated the previous performance.

According to the 36-year-old daredevil, he made his first flight on impulse. As his plane went screaming downward, he said, it felt as though a ton of bricks lay on his back, and he could barely lift his arms to write down the recordings of his instruments. When he leveled off at 18,000, everything went gray, he declared, but he never lost consciousness.

FARM LAND: Value Rising

With the value of all farm land now above World War I level, government officials were becoming anxious over the possibility of another realty boom which would collapse with a disastrous drop in prices as in the twenties.

Between March and July of this year, farm real estate rose another 3 per cent. The increase occurred throughout all of the geographical regions and in two-thirds of the states. In Indiana, farm property sold 40 per cent above the 1935-39 average.

With commodity prices up one-fourth within the last 12 months and farm income for 1943 expected to exceed 1942's record levels, farmers were said to be active buyers in the market. What with high commodity prices prevailing, speculators also were supposed to be purchasing property for resale.

WAR ARSENAL:
80 Pct. Complete

Of the government's planned construction of 14½ billion dollars of war plant facilities, approximately 12 billion dollars has been completed, Chairman Donald Nelson of the War Production board announced. That represents a completion of 80 per cent of the program compared with 61 per cent at the start of the year and 34 per cent at this time last summer.

Donald Nelson

Greatest gains in the program were in the construction of plants for guns, combat vehicles, aircraft and ammunition. Facilities for producing ammunition are 95 per cent complete.

According to Nelson, the records for other programs showed synthetic rubber, 61 per cent finished; 100 octane gas, 39 per cent; iron and steel, 75 per cent, and chemical products, 90 per cent.

Production Lags

Production of armaments and other goods needed by the army is lagging seriously, Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, chief of army supply services, warned. He said that 300 million dollars' worth of supplies have not been delivered according to schedule in the last three months. Output of factories has been going down steadily, he continued, with July figures "decidedly worse" than those of June.

At the same time the treasury reported that actual war spending during July was half a billion dollars less than in June, this being the first month in which war costs have turned downward. Commentators say this decline is another indication of lower production, rather than smaller needs.

Urging all contractors to fulfill their contracts, General Somervell said: "If as a manufacturer, you are scheduled to produce a certain quantity of war material by a specific date, you have undertaken a specific military obligation."

CARGO PLANES:
Back to Metal

New developments prompted the army's cancellation of contracts for all wooden transport airplanes and the return to metallic construction.

The wooden craft were designed to operate from small, unimproved landing fields and carry 4,500 pounds of cargo at medium range. But partly because of Allied air dominance, good airports have been put in use in distant combat zones, and the demand has shifted to faster, longer-range planes.

Furthermore, it was reported, aluminum production has increased in a volume sufficient to take care of additional plane building, while certain woods suitable for the type of transport designed are growing scarce.

GAS

Production of gasoline and other petroleum derivatives can be increased by recovering oil now left in wells, and by processing natural gas, oil sands and shales, Dr. Gustav Egloff, renowned scientist, told a joint congressional committee.

He urged governmental aid in developing synthetic gasoline methods, but added that he did not think that making gasoline from coal was advisable immediately. He said that eight million men would be needed to manufacture a year's supply.

Definite Foreign Policy Essential to America

The Issue: Shall Nation Adopt Policy of Participation in World Affairs or Shall We Aim at Nationalistic Goal?

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building Washington, D. C.

Today America faces its first real problem as a world power.

Italy lies before us. General Eisenhower, as commander of the Allied forces of invasion, suddenly becomes a statesman. He is a soldier. He can win battles. Now, he is the man ultimately responsible for directing American world policy. What is American world policy?

Eisenhower is firm in his decisions, certain in his own procedure, because he is responsible only to his Commander-in-Chief.

But who is his Commander-in-Chief? Roosevelt. A man who may suddenly leave the scene in the midst of battle, if the American public so decrees.

And then? Has America any firm foreign policy, unfettered by partisan political restriction, a clear-marked path that a fighting man or any other man can follow?

In a few short weeks from now, a group of busy, hard-pressed men are going to sit down on Mackinac island and try to write what American foreign policy they think ought to be sponsored by the Republican party.

These men have to face the question of committing the Republican party to a definite foreign policy. And paradoxically, by committing their party to a definite foreign policy, they may free both political parties of all commitment on foreign policy. For if the Democrats frame similar resolutions, they can save America from a vicious split—one which, if it is not avoided, will crash party lines and can destroy the two-party system, the rock of our democracy.

The issue which America faces is simple: shall we, as a nation, underwrite a policy which will implement our participation in world affairs or shall we retire unto ourselves and pursue the nationalistic policy which says in effect: let the rest of the world stew in its own juice?

Until we took the Philippines, America was able to leave the great and vital problems which should have no political tinge, outside partisan politics. We have had other problems which have remained essentially non-partisan.

The Problems

Take labor. A vital question. But has labor ever voted solidly for one ticket or the other? No. The AFL will cast its traditional Republican votes in the coming election as it always has. Some of the CIO members will vote to support the administration. Others will vote as they darn please.

Slavery—really a labor question. That did nearly wreck the republic because it was made a partisan issue when it was not an issue at all! Many of the influential southerners were just as ready to free their slaves as the rabid abolitionists, heated with emotional fervor, failing to grasp the economic significance, were to force them to.

Again, unless a cold, calm discussion and understanding of the question of foreign policy takes place, we may face another split which, although it need not mean civil war, may mean a horrid dislocation of our whole political system.

When we went into World War II after Pearl Harbor, the word "isolationism" was forgotten. Today it has come back into our vocabularies and is being batted about, like other political footballs, by people who really don't understand its implications and are woefully ignorant of what dissension it may cause.

Politicians want to overlook it.

They can't. This group of Republicans, headed by Deneen Watson, and a whole flying squadron of Democrats, too, are insistent that they be allowed to "let the people know." They are going to speak their pieces. And the only hope of lifting this discussion out of partisan politics is a "settlement out of court," an agreement by both parties on a single foreign policy.

Let's get back to that hot and perspiring day in Washington late last month when Deneen Watson and his colleagues from this self-appointed Republican organization, the Republican "foreign policy association," walked across quiet Lafayette park opposite the White House and presented themselves to Chairman Spangler of the Republican national committee.

Results of Session

It was some time before the results of this meeting between Watson and his colleagues and Chairman Spangler of the Republican national committee leaked out. Those with an anti-Republican slant, wove the words dropped into a threatened split in the Republican party, a drive to nominate Wendell Willkie for president.

To the person who tried to be objective, it was neither.

Mr. Spangler has one job—to keep the party together, to eschew any favoritism for any policy or any person. Naturally, these persistent persons who called upon him were presenting a problem. I believe it was that fact rather than what his critics said that indicated there was a leaning toward the "status quo" attitude, the desire to remain a purveyor of platitudes and follow the tide rather than to face it.

This issue—full participation in world affairs versus a return to nationalism or isolationism, if you will—is, according to our most earnest non-partisans, the most important issue which has faced the public and should not be a political football.

Briefly, what the men with their sleeves rolled up at Mackinac in September have to face is this: shall we, good Republicans, come out frankly for world-co-operation or dodge the issue?

What the Watson association demands is more than that and something the Republican national committee must face: will the party officially get behind a nation-wide campaign to "educate" the people on the international issue?

Unfortunately, personalities do get mixed up in these things and Wendell Willkie has become the symbol of the international view.

That is why it is essential, if the party is to take the issue out of partisan politics and disassociate it from any of the individuals aspiring for the Republican candidacy, that they must go on record.

The Monroe Doctrine

Walter Lippmann has written a book called "American Foreign Policy" and the point he makes is this: until 1900, politics did stop at the water's edge. We had a foreign policy (or thought we did) which was the Monroe Doctrine. According to Lippmann, we were living under a delusion. Namely, that we had under the Monroe Doctrine declared our whole policy—America for Americans (period) which implied, of course, that the rest of the world could do what it pleased so long as it kept off our grass.

We believed that we could enforce that policy ourselves. That was not correct. We were really depending on the British fleet to enforce it. It happened to be to British advantage to agree, so there was no trouble.

Then we mixed in world affairs, found we had to fight our own battles, and did it—took over Hawaii, the Philippines. But we didn't provide the means to hold them. And so, disagreeing on the various steps necessary to carry out our foreign policy, we failed to provide the means to do so—Britain was busy elsewhere, and one morning we lost the Philippines and came within an eyelash of losing Hawaii.

And so we now face the necessity of framing a new foreign policy which must include the willingness to provide security for our own shores and those other contiguous shores (South America and Canada) which might be used by an enemy against us. Or we have to take part in prophylactic measures—to stop the danger to our security in advance.

That issue once clarified by the two political parties will leave us free for a good, old-fashioned free-for-all political campaign, and if the best man wins, or the worst man wins, his policies can't affect the international welfare of the nation.

Failure of both parties to clearly set forth their views on foreign policy may well create a third party movement which could wreck the two-party system, the rock on which our Republic is founded.

Unpainted book cases were bought to go at the ends, and the lid of the bedding compartment was painted to match the book cases.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Scientists have found that rubber is the only substance that can be stretched tremendously and resume approximately its original form. Too much stretching, such as in underinflated tires, causes "fatigue"—and deterioration.

The first manufacture of rubber footwear outside the United States took place in 1856 in Scotland.

If gasoline consumption is a gauge of tire wear, more miles are run in July and August than any other months. Of the gas used in 1941, 9.3% was consumed in August and 9.4% in July. February was the low month, with 6.6% of the year's total.

AMERICA—
A 'GOOD LAND'

OUR GRANDMOTHERS, our great-grandmothers and, in the case of we oldsters, our mothers, bought such food products as they needed for their families out of a barrel, a burlap sack or a pine box. They had but little choice. They could not call for some particular brand of coffee. There was one kind and it came in a burlap sack. It was green and had to be roasted in the oven before it could be used.

The men folks of those days, if they had a good job, would receive as wages as much as $10 a week, for which they worked 72 or more hours. There was no such thing as overtime at any price. They worked as long as there was work to be done.

The wives and mothers of today demand the privilege of picking and choosing what they buy. They like the peas, tomatoes or peaches canned by one concern better than those canned by another. They want the breakfast food the family likes best. They have a choice in the way of a dentifrice. Each member of the family has a choice in the make of shoes he wears, and when Dad buys a car, he selects it by name and not by number.

The cost for variety, for the privilege of picking and choosing, is but little, if any more than grandmother paid, but Dad today makes nearer $10 a day, or more, instead of the $10 a week his father and grandfather were paid. Dad works 40 hours, not 72, and is paid time and a half for any additional hours.

It is a good land, this America in which we live. It has advanced from the horse and buggy conditions of yesteryear to the airplane period of today. We, the American people, like it and what we, the people, like, we, the people, will have—we think.

We realize that the variety we like has made for more jobs and for more wages. It had created a demand for more commodities. It has increased our living standards. It has made possible a greater number of stores to offer the ever-increasing variety we demand from which to select. No one could, or would, stop such progress—we think.

There is, however, a group of theoretical bureaucrats who think differently. They believe the conditions of the horse and buggy days are better for us, and they propose that we largely return to those conditions. They would disperse with all the variety. They would put production and distribution in the hands of the government. They would provide A, B and C grades of each commodity, whether it be canned fruits or vegetables, coffee, bacon, shoes, automobiles, or what have you. There would be only one store in the average community and in it you would buy of the very limited variety it offered. There would be fewer jobs and lower wages.

"But," we say, "such a thing cannot happen to us. We do not want it that way and we will not have such a system."

We forget that group of theoretical bureaucrats has the authority to issue decrees which have the force of law. Of their own volition they can create a system in which they believe, unless congress—the senate and house of representatives—says "no." It is not unlikely that congress may fail to say that "no."

As it stands right now, that group of theoretical bureaucrats has authority by which it can change the whole American way of life. It is considered a war emergency measure, but once applied, it would take more years than those now living have left in order to change back again.

To prevent such a change, we must do more than think it cannot happen.

PRESIDENT AS COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF

JUST WHAT does the position of President of the United States imply? What authority goes with that job? Under the Constitution, the President is commander-in-chief of the armed forces. To our soldiers, sailors and marines, his word is law. To the Joes and Johns and Jims, the Marys, Marthas and Matildas, he is the President, the chief executive. He is the manager of the civilian operations of the government, but subject to the will of congress. Congress can, and has, passed along to the President some authority he would not otherwise have, and congress can take away the authority it has given him at any time. We, the civilians, respect the job of President as such. We selected the President as our chief executive, and to be the commander-in-chief of our armed forces.

These things are put in the attic, or stored away in the barn, or left lying about getting in the way and taking valuable room and space.

WHY NOT SELL THEM?

Somebody wants those very things which have become of no use to you. Why not try to find that somebody.

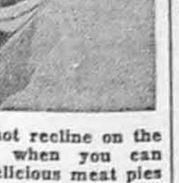
HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

You Can Stretch Meats and Have Delicious Meals

Leftovers need not recline on the refrigerator shelf when you can make them into delicious meat pies like this, simply and easily. Use leftovers from a roast with a few fresh vegetables and gravy to tuck inside the flaky piecrust.

Short on red points at the end of the week? There are several answers to the problem and I'm devoting the column to those suggestions today.

It's a good idea to be smart in your use of leftovers, and this is particularly true if you've splurged at the beginning of the week by purchasing a roast. After using the roast twice, you still have a bit of meat left on the bones, and if you fix it with an eye to camouflage, you can have a savory meal out of it.



Best way of extending meat when there's little enough of that is by using vegetables generously. Cut off what pieces of meat you can find on the bone and combine these with some lovely, fresh-cooked vegetables such as carrots, peas, onions, potatoes and perhaps a few strips of green pepper for flavor. Combine all together with some of your favorite seasonings and tuck the whole mixture into these individual meat pies. In this way, your leftovers won't languish in the refrigerator.

Making Meat Pies.

Sift together 2 cups all-purpose flour and ¾ teaspoon salt. Cut into this ⅔ cup lard with spatula and work until the particles are the size of a small pea. Sprinkle 4 tablespoons water over the mixture, working it lightly with a fork until all the particles are moistened and in small lumps. Press dough into a ball, handling as little as possible. Flour board lightly. Divide pastry in half, roll lightly to an eighth-inch thickness. Using a 3½-inch pie plate, cut circles from pastry.

Cut ½-inch wedge from circle to insure better fit into muffin tins. Press the pastry lightly to fit tins and lap over wedge. Fill with meat - vegetable mixture. Roll out remaining dough, cut in circles to fit over top of each muffin tin. Press edges of crust together. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) 35 minutes. Remove from tins and serve hot.

Here's a salad that's rich in proteins and can be used to pitch in for the main dish when points are on the slim side:

Green Lima and Bacon Salad.
(Serves 5 to 6)

- 2 cups cooked green lima beans
- 2 hard-cooked eggs
- ½ cup salted peanuts, chopped
- 2 teaspoons onion juice
- 4 strips crisp bacon
- 1 cup diced celery
- ¼ cup chopped pickle
- ½ teaspoon salt, if desired
- Mayonnaise

Combine ingredients, add salt and mayonnaise. Serve on crisp lettuce with bits of bacon.

Have you discovered that cold sausage and meat loaves are low in point value and that they go further than the same quantity of fresh meat? And, if you really like a hot dish for a meal, that the cold meats are equally delicious when served hot? You'll like these suggestions:

Bologna Spaghetti.
(Serves 4)

- ½ pound bologna
- ½ cup onion, sliced
- 1 tablespoon bacon drippings
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon allspice
- ⅛ teaspoon cloves
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1½ cups tomato juice
- 3 cups cooked spaghetti

Dice 2 slices of bologna in skillet and brown with onion and bacon drippings. Add to this seasonings and tomato juice and simmer until thickened. Add cooked spaghetti and heat thoroughly. Serve with several slices of pan-fried bologna.

Broiled Liver Sausage and Tomatoes (Serves 4).

- ½ pound liver sausage, sliced
- 4 large tomatoes, cut in half
- 8 slices of onion

Cut liver sausage into slices about ¼ inch thick. Remove casing. Place the slice of liver sausage on the broiling pan with tomatoes that have been cut in half and brushed with butter, seasoned with salt and pepper. Broil for about 8 minutes. Liver sausage need not be turned. As soon as tomatoes have broiled for about 4 minutes, top them with onion slices, if desired.

Frankfurters With Potato Salad.
(Serves 4 to 6)

- ¼ cup bacon drippings
- ¼ cup vinegar
- 1 beaten egg
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 4 cups cubed, cooked potatoes
- ½ cup chopped green pepper
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ¾ pound frankfurters

Heat bacon drippings and add vinegar, egg, salt, pepper, sugar, potatoes, green pepper and onion. Stir until thick. Cover frankfurters with boiling water and allow to stand 7 to 8 minutes. Arrange frankfurters on top of potato salad for serving.

Here's a lovely, luscious dessert that will go with any of the above main dish suggestions. It's easy to make and very nutritious:

Here are the golden brown, rich, luscious pies being taken from the muffin tins all ready to serve. If you have a fresh fruit salad with the meat pie and a beverage, your whole meal's complete.

Apricot Whip.
(Serves 6 to 8)

- 1 No. 2½ can apricots
- 2 cups milk
- 2 eggs
- ¼ cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Drain apricots. Mash with spoon. Chill. Scald milk. Beat eggs slightly, then add sugar and salt. Add milk slowly, mixing well. Cook in double boiler stirring constantly until mixture coats metal spoon. Take from fire, add vanilla and chill. When ready to serve, fold in chilled, mashed apricots.

Lynn Says:

Tips on Keeping Cool: Acting cool and thinking cool actually works a magic in making you cool. It's important to plan your day ahead so that it runs smoothly and so there will be a minimum of confusion—for that always makes weather hotter.

Dress cool, eat cool. Dress sensibly, keeping plenty of clean summer clothes on hand—things that can be done up with soap and water in a hurry and need little ironing. Crispy salads—even in the imagination—cool you off, and of course, frosty drinks.

Do your hot kitchen work in the cool morning hours. Make whatever preparations you can on the food front and store in the refrigerator, ready to pull out for dinner with a minimum of cook and hurry. Keep things simple, and you'll keep cool.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND
DREW PEARSON

Washington, D. C.

'FATHER' BARUCH

Gaunt, gray Bernie Baruch, whose relentless prodding of the war effort has saved more lives than anyone can estimate, is worried over a lot of things besides tanks, airplanes and machine guns. Among other things he is worried over the human problem of readjusting the lives of people who have flooded cities, who have been thrown out of joint by the war.

Sitting on his park bench in Lafayette park, where he holds "office" conferences, Bernie sees the stream of girls, thousands of them from all over the U. S. A., dumped into government offices, into crowded boarding houses, and wonders what will happen to them when the war is over.

Baruch won't tell you—but his friends will—about how he handled this problem after the last war.

He had employed several thousand clerks and stenographers in his War Industries board, and after the Armistice he began to worry about whether these girls were going back to their homes or would remain in the exciting cities.

So he sent each girl a letter thanking her for the time and loyal work she had given her country. And as a hint that she should go back to her mother he suggested: "Anyone who will apply at my office can receive a railroad ticket back home."

Baruch also attached to each letter a $10 bill.

The railroad tickets were paid for out of his own pocket, since the government does not pay for personal transportation, and it cost Baruch many thousands of dollars. He was a little fearful that some of the girls might have taken the tickets, then turned them in to the railroad. However, he hoped that he might have helped to get at least a fair proportion out of the city and back home.

HCL

The high cost of living which the coal miners have complained about recently was substantiated by an OPA survey of company stores in western Pennsylvania.

John A. Fath, who made the survey, came back with a report of "exorbitant prices and mark-ups" and insisted that company stores, which do no advertising or sales promotion, should sell their goods at lower prices than other stores, rather than higher.

He found suits selling for $38.50 which cost the store $12.50. He found a shoe box marked $9.95, but inside the box he found the shoes themselves marked with crayon, "$6.50."

Result of the survey already has been a voluntary price roll-back in the company stores. Now that the government has taken over the mines, the OPA is moving to make this company store price roll-back not voluntary, but universal.

Note—Fath was once a storekeeper himself in Millville, N. J., hometown of Leon Henderson. He gave Henderson his first job.

HONORS FOR WORKMEN

The Office of War Information is arranging a de luxe program for next Labor day, hailing the contribution of American workmen in the drive for victory. "Producing for Attack" will be the theme of the program, and it will include inspirational broadcasts by President Roosevelt and other top-ranking war leaders.

However, this isn't the only labor show on the OWI schedule this year. Another special celebration for Labor, to be known as "On to Victory" day also will be observed within the next two months.

It was conceived by Maj. Paul Hines, chief of the labor branch of the Fourth Service command at Atlanta, Ga., and promoted by Hervey Allen, author of "Anthony Adverse."

All war plants will be asked to declare an "hour off" on "On to Victory" day, at which time special "War Merit" emblems will be awarded.

Climaxing the "On to Victory" programs will be a nation-wide broadcast in the evening—according to OWI plans—featuring such speakers as President Roosevelt, Winston Churchill, Generals MacArthur, Eisenhower and Doolittle and Admirals King and Halsey. Joseph Stalin and General Chiang Kai-shek of China also may be invited to take part. All the speakers will have a special message for American labor.

The evening broadcast will conclude with the sounding of taps from the steps of the nation's Capitol, in memory of our war dead, and an answering taps by U. S. buglers in Europe and the South Pacific.

Big Blast

One of the biggest man-made explosions on record was set off in the Bonawe quarries in Argyllshire, Scotland, on May 31, 1935, says Collier's. Eighteen months of preparation were required for this blast, which brought down 750,000 tons of granite, enough to provide five years' work.

Before the explosion, householders in the near-by towns of Taynuilt removed their pictures, mirrors and crockery to a place of safety.

Miss Mabel Clowzer And Ernest Palmer of Oklahoma Marry in Old Stone Church

The Old Stone Church at Lewisburg was the scene of the wedding of Miss Mabel Clowzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Clowzer of Marlinton, and Mr. Ernest D. Palmer of the state of Oklahoma. The ceremony took place Monday, August 16, 1943, and was read by Rev. J. F. Cook, pastor of the Shuck Memorial Baptist Church, in the presence of close friends and relatives.

The bride was dressed in a grey cashmere two-piece suit with hand-made rose blouse. She wore white gloves and grey accessories, and her corsage was white orchids tied with silver. Miss Betty Lee Kincaid of Marlinton, the maid of honor, was attired in a dress of gold crepe and brown jersey, with brown accessories. Her corsage was yellow roses, tied with gold. Dale Davis served as best man. Miss Shirley Keyser sang "I Love You Truly."

The bride is a graduate of Marlinton high school and for some time has been employed as a secretary at Ashford General Hospital.

Following the wedding the bridal party enjoyed a dinner at the General Lewis Hotel. The couple are spending their honeymoon at the hotel, where they have obtained the bridal suite. They will reside in White Sulphur Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. Clowzer and Mrs. Moody Kincaid attended the wedding.

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking, its risk of exposure and infection, allows heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are not to blame for over-rated and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling — feel miserable and worn out. All may come from other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

JUST PLAIN HORSE SENSE

Here's a horse that is all dressed up, but apparently not doing anything worthwhile. However, horses must rest. Not so the millions of horses represented by the power generated for your use in factories, businesses, homes, public institution, on the farms, and elsewhere. These horses respond instantly to the flick of a switch. They're always ready to go—and will go—wherever they are needed, doing a tremendous job toward winning the war and preparing the way for a lasting peace.

But don't use these horses needlessly. Although we have enough electric power for all your needs, we have NONE to waste! Waste in any form is inconsistent with a winning effort and we ask you to help us eliminate it in every way.

Wasted manpower also must be eliminated. Uncle Sam's warriors and their supporting workers on the home front must serve as one unit to win. Do a little more than is required of you every day. It will pay off in Victory!

MONONGAHELA SYSTEM

See Here, Private Hargrove!

by Marion Hargrove

W.N.U. SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: Edward Thomas Marion Lawton Hargrove, feature editor of the Charlotte (N. C.) News, has started his story of a private's life in the army by giving prospective doughboys some solid advice on what course to pursue the days and nights before induction. He advises them to "paint the town red." On getting into the army he tells them "to keep your mind open" as the "first three weeks are the hardest." Like a job in civil life, says Hargrove, it's the first impression that counts. He has received his own induction notice and with a number of other soon-to-be-soldiers has completed the first day at camp. He is stationed at Fort Bragg, N. Carolina.

CHAPTER II

A soldier stuck his head through the door of our new dormitory and gave a sharp whistle. "Nine o'clock!" he yelled. "Lights out and no more noise! Go to sleep!"

"It has been, withal, a very busy day," I said to Piel, who was buried with his hay fever in the next bunk.

"It sure withal has," he said. "What a day! What a place! What a life! With my eyes wide open I'm dreaming!"

"It's been a little hellish out today," I agreed, "although it could have been worse. We actually saw a corporal and he didn't cuss us. We have eaten Army food twice, and, except for the haphazard way the pineapple was thrown toward the peas, it wasn't horrifying."

"I am broken and bleeding," moaned Piel. "Classification tests, typing tests, medical examinations.

The old sergeant, his face beaming sweetly, purred, "You are now members of the Army of the United States. Now, damn it, shut up."

I think I walked eighteen miles through those medical examinations. It's a good thing this is July. I would have frozen in my treks with all that walking and exposure. Nothing I had on, except a thin little iodine number on my chest."

"Funny thing about the medical examination," a voice broke in from down the line. "Before you get it, you're afraid you'll pass. When you go through the examinations, you're afraid you won't."

"I noticed that," I said. "I don't have any special hankering for a soldier's life, but I thought when I was going through the hoops this morning that this would be a helluva time for them to back out."

"The little fellow who slept down at the end got sent back," said a loud whisper from across the room. "One of his legs was shorter than the other. He's a lucky dog."

"I'll bet he doesn't think so," said Piel. "At this stage of the game, I'm glad it was him instead of me."

A dark form showed itself in the doorway. "I told you guys to shaddap and go to sleep. Do it!"

A respectful silence filled the room for three minutes.

"Look at me," said Piel. "Won't the folks in Atlanta be proud when they get my letter! Me, Melvin Piel, I'm a perfect physical specimen."

Big Jim Hart, the football star whom I had known in high school, spoke up. "Don't go Hollywood about it, Piel. Just remember, Hargrove's a perfect specimen too. And just two weeks ago, when we were waiting out in front of the armory for the draft board examiners to get there, he had one foot in the grave."

"And the other foot?"

"That's the one he keeps in his mouth."

"Yessir," said Piel, "the Army makes men."

So we quietly went to sleep.

This morning we took the Oath. One of the boys was telling me later that when his brother was inducted in Alabama, there was a tough old sergeant who was having an awful time keeping the men quiet. "Gentlemen," he would beseech them, "quiet, please!" They were quiet during the administration of the Oath, after which they burst forth again.

The old sergeant, his face beaming sweetly, purred: "You are now members of the Army of the United States. Now, damn it, SHUT UP."

This morning—our first morning in the Recruit Reception Center—began when we finished breakfast and started cleaning up our squadroom. A gray-haired, fatherly old private, who swore that he had been demoted from master sergeant four times, lined us up in front of the barracks and took us to the dispensary.

At the head of the mess hall dwindled as rapidly as the one at the dispensary, life would have loveliness to sell above its private consumption stock. First you're fifteen feet from the door, then (whiff) you're inside. Then you're standing between two orderlies and the show is on.

The one on my left scratched my arm and applied the smallpox virus. The only thing that kept me from keeling over was the hypodermic needle loaded with typhoid germs, which propped up my right arm.

From the dispensary we went to a huge warehouse of a building by the railroad tracks. The place looked like Goldenberg's Basement on a busy day. A score of fitters measured necks, waists, inseams, heads, and feet.

My shoe size, the clerk yelled down the line, was ten and a half.

"I beg your pardon," I prompted, "I wear a size nine."

"Forgive me," he said, a trifle weary, "the expression is 'I wore a size nine.' These shoes are to walk in, not to make you look like Cinderella. You say size nine; your foot says ten and a half."

We filed down a long counter, picking up our allotted khaki and denims, barrack bags and raincoats, mess kits and tent halves. Then we were led into a large room, where we laid aside the vestments of civil life and donned our new garments.

While I stood there, wondering what I was supposed to do next, an attendant caught me from the rear and strapped to my shoulders what felt like the Old Man of the Mountain after forty days.

"Straighten up, soldier," the attendant said, "and git off the floor. That's nothing but a full field pack, such as you will tote many miles before you leave this man's army. Now I want you to walk over to that ramp and over it. That's just to see if your shoes are comfortable."

"With these Oregon boots and this burden of misery," I told him firmly, "I couldn't even walk over to the thing. As for climbing over it, not even an alpenstock, a burro train, and two St. Bernard dogs complete with brandy could get me over it."

There was something in his quiet, steady answering glance that reassured me. I went over the ramp in short order. On the double, I think the Army calls it.

From there we went to the theater, where we were given intelligence tests, and to the classification office, where we were interviewed by patient and considerate corporals.

"And what did you do in civil life?" my corporal asked me.

"I was feature editor of the Charlotte News."

"And just what sort of work did you do, Private Hargrove? Just give me a brief idea."

Seven minutes later, I had finished answering that question.

"Let's just put down here, 'Editorial worker.'" He sighed compassionately. "And what did you do before all that?"

I told him. I brought in the publicity work, the soda-jerking, the theater ushering, and the printer's deviling.

"Private Hargrove," he said, "the army is just what you have needed to ease the burdens of your existence. Look no farther, Private Hargrove, you have found a home."

This was a lovely morning. We began at daybreak and devoted all the time until noon to enjoying the beauties of nature. We had a drill sergeant to point them out to us. We marched a full twenty miles without leaving the drill field. Lunch, needless to say, was delicious.

We fell into bed, after lunch, determined to spend the afternoon in dreamland. Two minutes later, that infernal whistle blew. Melvin Piel, guardhouse lawyer for Company A, explained it all on the way downstairs. We were going to be assigned to our permanent stations.

I fell in and a corporal led us off down the street. I could feel the California palm trees fanning my face. We stopped at Barracks 17 and the corporal led us inside.

"Do we go to California, corporal?" I asked.

"Naah," he said.

"Where do we go?" I asked him, a little disappointed.

"To the garbage rack," he said. "Double quick." He thumbed Johnny Lisk and me to the back of the barracks.

At the garbage rack we found three extremely fragrant garbage cans. Outside, we found more. Lisk and I, citizen-soldiers, stared at them. The overcheerful private to whom we were assigned told us, "When you finish cleaning those, I want to be able to see my face in them!"

"There's no accounting for tastes," Lisk whispered. Nevertheless, we cleaned them and polished them and left them spick and span.

"Now take 'em outside and paint 'em," said the private. "White. Git the black paint and paint 'HQCO-RMC' on both sides of all of them!"

"This is summer," I suggested. "Wouldn't something pastel look better?"

The sun was affecting the private. "I think you're right," he said. So we painted them cream and lettered them in brilliant orange.

All afternoon, in a blistering sun, we painted garbage cans. The other Charlotte boys waved to us as they passed on their way to the ball park. Happy voices floated to us from the post exchange.

The straw-boss private woke up, yawned and went away, telling us what would happen if we did likewise. He returned soon in a truck. He motioned peremptorily to us and we loaded the cans into the truck. Away we went to headquarters company—and painted more garbage cans. It was definitely suppertime by now.

"Now can we go home, Private Dooley, sir?" asked Lisk. I looked at Lisk every time the blindness left me, and I could see the boy was tired.

The private sighed wearily. "Git in the truck," he said. Away we went back to our street. We stopped in front of our barracks and Private Dooley dismounted. "The truck driver," he said, "would appreciate it if you boys would go and help him wash the truck."

We sat in the back of the truck and watched the mess hall fade away behind us. Two, three, four miles we left it behind us. We had to wait ten minutes before we could get the wash-pit. It took us fifteen minutes to wash the truck. By the time we got back to the mess hall, we were too tired to eat. But we ate.

It was through no fault of mine that I was a kitchen policeman on my sixth day. The whole barracks got the grind. And it was duty, not punishment.

It was all very simple, this KP business. All you have to do is to get up an hour earlier, serve the food, and keep the mess hall clean.

After we served breakfast, I found a very easy job in the dining hall, where life is much pinker than it is in the kitchen. A quartet was formed and we were singing "Home on the Range." A corporal passed by just as I hit a sour note. He put the broom into my left hand, the mop into my right . . .

There was a citizen-soldier from Kannapolis to help me clean the cooks' barracks. For a time it was awful. We tried to concentrate on the floor while a news broadcaster almost tore up the radio trying to decide whether we were to be in the Army ten years or twenty.

We finished the job in an extremely short time to impress the corporal. This, we found later, is a serious tactical blunder and a discredit to the ethics of gold-bricking. The sooner you finish a job the sooner you start in on the next.

The corporal liked our work, unfortunately. Kannapolis was allowed to sort garbage and I was promoted to the pot-and-pan polishing section. I was Themos Kokenes' assistant. He washed and I dried. Later we formed a goldbricking entente. We both washed and made Conrad Wilson dry.

Pollyanna the glad girl would have found something silver-lined about the hot sink. So did I. "At least," I told Kokenes, "this will give me back a chance to recover from that mop."

When I said "mop," the mess sergeant handed me one. He wanted to be able to see his face in the kitchen floor. After lunch he wanted the back porch polished.

We left the Reception Center mess hall a better place to eat in, at any rate. But KP is like a woman's work—never really done. Conrad Wilson marked one caldron and at the end of the day we found that we had washed it twenty-two times.

"When you finish cleaning those cans, I want to be able to see my face in them."

Jack Mulligan helped me up the last ten steps to the squadroom. I finally got to the side of my bunk. "Gentlemen," I said to the group which gathered around to scoop me off the floor, "I don't ever want to see another kitchen!"

The next morning we were classified and assigned to the Field Artillery Replacement Center. Gene Shumate and I were classified as cooks. I am a semi-skilled cook, they say, although the only egg I ever tried to fry was later used as a tire patch. The other cooks include postal clerks, tractor salesmen, railroad engineers, riveters, bricklayers, and one blacksmith.

But we'll learn. Already I've learned to make beds, sweep, mop, wash windows and sew a fine seam. When Congress lets me go home, will I make some woman a good wife!

PATCH TEST FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Parents do not like the idea of any test that means puncturing the child's skin with a hypodermic needle. Needless to say, the child dislikes the idea even more. However, the parents realize that it is important to learn if their youngster is of the type likely to develop tuberculosis, so that methods to prevent this may be immediately used.

Dr. Barton

For years what is known as the patch test on the skin was used, which meant that tuberculin was placed on the skin and a patch of adhesive tape placed over it. This was considered a reliable test but what is called the Mantoux test, where hypodermic needle injects tuberculin under the skin, is now in more general use.

In an effort to test the value of the patch test, Dr. Henry A. Reisman, Jamaica, N. Y., and Maurice Grozin, Flushing, New York, used it in 1,000 patients attending a hospital clinic. All were given both the patch and the Mantoux tests. The results were recorded in the American Journal of Diseases of Children.

The patch test consists of moistening a piece of paper toweling with tuberculin, allowing it to dry. This piece of paper is placed on a small square of adhesive tape and then applied to the skin with paper moistened with tuberculin next to the skin. This is allowed to remain for one or two days. If the test is positive (child more likely to develop tuberculosis) the skin is red, with little raised blisters which may break down. In the Mantoux test the skin will likewise be greatly reddened if child is positive.

Drs. Reisman and Grozin state that the patch test has the following advantages. 1. It is painless and does not frighten the child. 2. It requires no boring, puncturing, scratching or rubbing of skin. 3. It requires no needles or syringes. 4. There are no instruments to sterilize. 5. There is no danger of infection. 6. There is less risk of damaging the tissues. 7. There is no fear of a reaction where patch is applied or any shock to the system. 8. Technic of the method is simple. 9. The size of the reaction will be no larger than surface of skin covered by adhesive tape.

Fever May Indicate Infection Is Present

The cause of any rise in temperature may be due to some functional disturbance, some natural or harmless condition such as a stomach upset—or to some infection in the body.

How can the physician tell if the rise in temperature is due to some natural or harmless disturbance or to infection?

In the Wisconsin Medical Journal, Dr. Max J. Fox, Milwaukee, states that persistent low grade fever or rise in temperature occasionally follows some infection for some time. If this rise in temperature is prolonged for two or more weeks after the infection has passed, what is called the pyrexia (high temperature) test should first be tried to find out the causes.

The temperature in children seems to go up and down readily without apparent cause, and children in whom the rise in temperature is due to some functional or natural condition, not to infection, should be allowed to be on their feet.

The pyrexia test is as follows: The patient is given a series of four 3-5 grain doses of one of the coal tar products—acetyl salicylic acid, antipyrin, acetanilid or others—at four-hour intervals and the temperature is recorded every two hours. The usual effect is a fall in temperature in two hours after each dose and a rise by the end of four hours. The patient is then given no drug for 24 hours, to allow the drug to get out of system, and is then given a sleeping or quieting drug. The temperature is recorded every two hours for the following 24 hours. If the temperature is normal or below normal for 10 to 18 hours, it is assumed that the fever is not due to infection and the patient is allowed to go about his usual work or activities.

This is a simple method of finding out whether or not any infection is present. If present, child remains in bed and does not spread infection. If no infection is present, the child can return to school safely.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—What would cause lumps to appear in back of the ear?

A.—Little lumps behind ear may be enlarged glands due to a scratch or sore higher up on the head.

Q.—What causes nervous indigestion?

A.—Most cases of nervous indigestion are due to nervousness and emotional disturbances. Your physician can arrange for an X-ray examination and learn if any organic condition is present.

GOD GIVES LAWS FOR HIS PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 23:1-9; Galatians 3:23-26; 5:13-14.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself.—Luke 10:27.

Our God is a God of order. To have order we must have law, hence God gave His people not only the fundamental law of humanity's moral sense of right and wrong, and the Ten Commandments which are the basis of all codes of law, but also those detailed regulations needed for the law's interpretation.

The law of God was not intended to establish a legalistic system of salvation by work, but, as revealed in the New Testament, it was to guide and bring us to Christ, in whom it finds its true fulfillment.

These are matters of fundamental importance and suggest the need of a careful study of our three Scripture portions.

I. The Law Established (Exod. 23:1-9).

At Sinai the Israelites were brought into the presence of God in a dramatic and solemn assembly to hear the words of God from the mountain. These were later written as the Ten Commandments on the tables of stone. Here they learned in a new way of the majesty, the righteousness, and the love of God.

The Ten Commandments are recognized as the foundation on which all legal codes, ancient and modern, are built. They cover man's relation to God and his relation to his fellow man. They are unsurpassed as a comprehensive and compact statement of the moral law.

The passage in Exodus 23 gives us some of the rules and regulations for daily life which are in a sense an interpretation of the law. This portion gives us an idea of the type of laws provided by God for His people and reveals "the moral flavor of the whole divine legislation."

The thing which impresses us as we read of the divine requirements of justice toward all, of love for one's enemies, of refraining from false witness, of refusing all bribery, is that God's standards are very high.

God's law is good, it is right, of divine quality and perfect purity. It has, however, an even higher purpose than providing direction for life. We learn of that as we hear

II. The Law Described (Gal. 3:23-28).

What was the purpose of the law? It was and is a servant of God to lead the needy sinner to Christ. The word "tutor" in verse 24 does not refer to one who teaches, but the servant who saw to it that the school boy, possibly a bit reluctant, arrived at his destination.

The law convicts of sin and makes it evident to the repentant one that he needs divine help if he is ever to meet its demands. The law really puts a man in prison (kept in ward," v. 23), and makes him look to Christ to set him free.

When one trusts Christ he comes into the place of a son. He enters upon a spiritual maturity which makes it no longer necessary to have a tutor directing and disciplining him. He has entered into a new relationship by faith, and is a child of God.

Does this mean that the law has been set aside or abrogated? Not at all. Jesus Himself said, "Think not that I am come to destroy the law . . . I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill" (Matt. 5:17). This is our third point.

III. The Law Fulfilled (Gal. 5:13, 14).

Paul had warned against the folly of legalism. In Christ men are free from a slavish bondage to the law. But men, desiring to substitute license for liberty, were using the grace of God as an excuse for self-indulgence and sin.

Christ has set aside all the ceremonial requirements of the law, for He became the perfect, once-for-all sacrifice for sin, which was infinitely superior to all the offerings of the Old Testament law. He thus fulfilled the type of the offerings.

The moral requirements of the law were gathered up in Him, and in Him we have only one law to fulfill, the law of love. Obedience to that law meets all the moral requirements of the Old Testament law.

Liberty to the Christian is not a freedom to do as he pleases, not "an occasion to the flesh" that it may live in selfishness and sin. We are free only to be bound by the blessed law of love.

The tablets of stone were (and still are) important. Their laws have never been set aside or withdrawn. But in Christ God has done what He spoke of through Jeremiah the prophet, He has put His law in the Christian's inner being, and has written it in his heart. (Jer. 1:33).

Household Hints

If rain splatters dirt upon the windows from the window flower boxes, cover the top of the box lightly with gravel. This can be pushed aside when you wish to stir up the dirt.

Vinegar eliminates odors. Don't put away a frying pan that smells of onions, fish or some other strong-flavored food. Put some vinegar in the pan and bring to a boil. Then wash as usual.

To serve plain cake at its best, make only one layer at a baking. Instead of icing the entire top of the cake, put an inch wide band of icing around the edge. Sprinkle the top with chopped nuts.

To save yourself these busy days, cut small mats from old felt hats and use them under vases, ornaments, flowers and book ends. They prevent scratching of polished furniture.

A piece of pipe is good to splice any spade or shovel handle when it cracks or breaks in two. Holes can be bored and countersunk to put rivets or screws in, if necessary.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

When armored knights met, it was customary for each knight to raise the visor of his helmet as a means of identification. This gesture has come down through all armies in the form of the salute. Traditional, too, is the Army man's preference for Camel cigarettes. With men in the Army, Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard, actual sales records in their service stores show that Camel is the favorite. It's one of the favorite gifts with service men. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

JUST SETTING

Blackout, Maybe

Father—Helen, did that young man smoke in the parlor last night? I found burned matches there.

Helen—Oh no, father; he just lit one or two to see what time it was.

Meow!

"Ain't this blackout awful," complained the unpopular Mrs. Jones to her neighbor.

"I shouldn't bother, dearie," replied Mrs. Smith. "After a time you'll be able to see. Cats can, you know."

And Who Isn't?

Lazy Boy—I'm always tired on the first of April.

Friend—Why?

Lazy Boy—Who wouldn't be after a March of 31 days?

A deaf woman entered a church with an ear trumpet. Soon after she had seated herself, an usher tiptoed over and whispered, "One toot, and out you go."

Diagnosis

"I have a pain in my abdomen," said the recruit to the army doctor.

"Young man," replied the medico, "officers have abdomens, sergeants have stomachs, you have bellyache."

Don't We All!

The story goes that Hitler was inspecting troops when he asked a soldier, "What would be your last wish if a Russian bomb fell near you?"

The soldier replied, "I would wish that my beloved Fuehrer could be at my side."

In the Army

Sarge—Don't try to make a monkey out of me. Do you think I got these service stripes for doing nothing?

Private—Heck no! If you had, you'd look like a zebra instead of a monkey!

Talk Fast, Brother!

Bobby—You can't say I made any noise coming home last night.

Wifey—Yes, that's true. But the man friendly who were carrying you actually did.

Good Advice

Lady—I can't imagine what's the matter with me. I'm continually yawning and nothing about anything.

Doctor—Tut, tut, you must stop worrying about nothing!

Really Just Rest

Doctor—I would say it will be some months before he should walk or work.

Mother—He's got insomnia. Ah thought he was lazy!

FOR CRYING OUT LOUD

Explorer—In the Arctic, Eskimos live on candles and blubber.

Up in Them Thar Hills

Riches an' Riches

Harry—What is a niche in a church?

Larry—It's just the same as an itch anywhere else, only you can't scratch it as well.

Beautiful Wife?

Mrs. Jones—Mr. Brown has a wonderful memory. He can remember back to when his mother used to tell him a witch would get him if he weren't a good boy.

Mrs. Smith—Well, from the looks of his wife, I'd say he wasn't a very good boy.

The Woman of It

Hubby—I've thought it over, dear, and decided to agree with you.

Wifey—That's too bad, I've just changed my mind.

All Thumbs

Sambo—Dese gloves am too small for mah hands.

Rastus — Youall jus' got dem gloves on de wrong hands.

Sambo—Dey's de only hands Ah got!

Hardened Criminal

Tommy—How many times have you been whipped in school?

Johnny—Oh, I don't know. I never pay any attention to things that go on behind my back.

GREENBANK NEWS

Mary Elizabeth Arbogast, Harper H. Galford Marry

Saturday evening at 8 o'clock the home of Mrs. Annie Arbogast near Wesley Chapel was the scene of a pretty wedding when her daughter, Mary Elizabeth, became the bride of Harper Hudson Galford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Galford.

The ring ceremony of the Methodist Church was read by the Rev. Quade Arbogast, before an altar arranged on the porch, adorned with pink and white and pink gladioli, with lighted tapers on either side. Preceding the ceremony, Misses Ethel and Bessie Brown, cousins of the bridegroom, dressed in white with rose hats, and wearing corsages of summer flowers, sang "I Love You Truly," after which Misses Norma Lee Arbogast and Betty Galford lighted the tapers. Little Misses "Bopeep" Galford and Sara Arbogast scattered rose petals in the path of the bride.

Saturday's bride is the second daughter of Mrs. Annie Arbogast and both she and the groom are graduates of Greenbank high school in the class of 1943. Last week Mr. Galford received the honor of F.F.A. at the State Convention at Camp Caesar.

Mrs. Galford wore a white taffeta wedding gown with a lace jacket, and a corsage of red roses. Her bouquet was caught by Miss Jane Sheets.

Mrs. C. A. McMillion and Mrs. Kyle Dilley cut the cake and poured punch. Claude Ashton McMillion was door-keeper. Presents were displayed on the porch.

Mr. and Mrs. Galford have gone to housekeeping on the Galford farm.

Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Glen Galford and family, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Galford and family, Rev. and Mrs. Quade Arbogast and Dotty Jo, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Sheets and family, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Sheets, Mr. and Mrs. Asbury Sheets, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McMillion, Mr. and Mrs. John Matheny and family, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Brown and family, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Crowley and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Hudson, Harper Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Nottingham and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Matheny and family, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Byrd and son, Mrs. Robert Patterson and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Arbogast, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Dilley, Mrs. Kyle Dilley and son, Dr. and Mrs. L. C. McCutcheon, Mrs. E. F. Arbogast, Mrs. Helen Harper, Mrs. Joe Kramer, Mrs. Thorne Wooddell, Misses Jane Sheets, Dorothy Grogg, Betty Elliott, Margarette Webb, Eula, Helen and Grace Taylor, Seraphine Gum, Jolene Kerr, Betty Jo Arbogast, Clyde Matheny, David Smith, Raymond Galford, Dan Kelly, Marvin Taylor, Ben Thomas and Calvin Galford.

25th Pocahontas County Fair Helps Promote War Effort

Horse Show, Exhibits, Worthwhile Features

While necessarily hampered somewhat by present conditions, especially by gas rationing, the 25th annual Pocahontas County Fair is nevertheless giving a good account of itself this week at the Marlinton Fairgrounds, and citizens generally seemed to be imbibed as much of the "Fair spirit" as is possible under the circumstances.

While not as large or as numerous as in other years, the various exhibits are of exceptional merit.

Foremost among the features of this year's Fair are the horse races and horse show, which take place every afternoon and evening. Both owners and riders are giving the true performance of thoroughbreds. Dr. Oscar Sulter and his nephew, George Sulter, are serving as judges of the horse show. Paul Overholt is again acting as the announcer. Everyone has a good word to say for Miss Edith May Marlinton High School Band, and are raving about the good ham sandwiches available at Mrs. Moody Yeager's dining room. The Greenbrier String Orchestra has become a real source of enjoyment as it furnishes music for the square dancers.

All in all, Pocahontas County's annual Fair has a good deal in the way of amusement and is making real encouraging awards for Victory Gardens and farm products which have been dedicated to the work of winning the war.

WACs and WAVES Have Recruiters Present.

Corpl. Florence Day and Private Margaret T. Hartnacke of the Charleston Recruiting District Office of the Army, have been in attendance during this week at the Pocahontas County Fair, representing the Women's Army Corps. They have been sharing a booth with the Navy — the space being sponsored by the Pocahontas County Business and Professional Women's Club. Lieut. Beatrice Steiner, in charge of the WAC office at Elkins, was a guest Wednesday and Thursday.

The WACs are here not only to interview those who are interested in learning more facts about the services they render to the cause, but likewise to meet the families of those already in the service, so that they can enlighten them as to the living conditions and the various phases of work of the WACs.

In their exhibit the WACs are showing some actual photographs just released for the first time through national headquarters. The pictures show the WACs at work in some fifty different job classifications including teletype operators, drivers of trucks, mechanical draftsmen, etc.

Corpl. Day outlined that the enlistment requirements are not particularly restricted except as to the age being 20 to 49 inclusive. Applicants also must pass a mental alertness test and be physically fit.

In commenting upon Genevieve Moore's enlistment in the WAC last week, Pvt. Hartnacke stated: "Hardly had we been in the community a half hour when we learned of the many qualifications of Miss Moore in respect to the community. What we need is just such leaders in the WAC. We realize, of course, that Miss Moore's loss to the community will be greatly felt, yet you must remember that your loss is our Country's gain, for I am sure she will render her services to her country equally well in keeping with what she has done in the community in the way of her services in the Red Cross and the Business and Professional Women's Club particularly."

Some of the WAC personnel will be in attendance at the Fair booth all during the week to meet any prospective WACs who desire additional information.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Italy's Industrial Belt Feels Weight Of Continued Allied Bombing Attacks; Grain Crop Production Shows Decline; U. S. Airmen Hit Both Ends of Pacific

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

ITALY:
Toe and Thigh

As the bulk of the German forces streamed across Messina straits from Sicily to the big toe of the Italian boot, Allied bombers struck at Italy's industrial belt high on the thigh of the leg-like peninsula.

As the final curtain was being drawn on the Sicilian campaign, suicidal German rearguards planted themselves in the craggy island's hill tops and mountain sides, and with mortar and machine gun fought Entering Palermo with American troops, Private Joseph Mole of Jamestown, N. Y., found a 14-month-old abandoned waif named Josephine, seen in his arms. Relief authorities took over her care.

Allied advances fiercely, as the bulk of their forces were evacuated.

In those last hours, the German rearguards' position became more precarious as daring units from Gen. George S. Patton's American 7th army landed behind their lines, and aided by naval batteries and dive bombers slashed their way through bayonets to firmly entrench themselves on shore.

Despite heavy anti-aircraft fire which was said to have thrown up a wall of steel, waves of Allied bombers hit the important industrial center of Milan. Terrific detonations could be heard on the Swiss border miles away as the bombers pushed their way through the flak to drop their incendiaries and block-busters.

DRAFT:
Induction Order

Now that Selective Service officials have authorized the drafting of fathers October 1, plans have been drawn for induction according to the importance of a man's occupation.

Under the new plan, a new classification known as "super-eligibility" would be created, under which certain skilled jobs in direct war production would place the employee last in the draft list.

The plan also would extend the list of non-essential jobs, holders of which would be eligible for immediate call, regardless of number of children. In this case, such men would be given the opportunity to switch to more essential industries.

Thus, those in non-essential occupations would be called first, before essential and "super-eligible" employees. About 300,000 fathers are to be drafted this year.

RUSSIA:
Fighting Unsurpassed

Russia's emerging manpower rolled like a tidal wave over the ancient Russian plains, and Germany's stubborn armies gave under the weight.

To the north, the Reds drove on Smolensk from two sides, leaving the Nazis a 140-mile gap in which to retreat along the corridor Napoleon Bonaparte used over a hundred years ago to pull his ragged and beaten army out of the country.

To the south, the Reds have driven on Kharkov, like they have down on Kiev, from three fronts, the north, east and south. Possessed with an extreme fortification, battered Kharkov, once the mighty "Pittsburgh" of Russia, lay exposed on the battle plains to the Reds massed fire power and troops.

BUSINESS:
Biggest Merger

Originally incorporated in New York state in 1881, the Western Union Telegraph company, with a capital of $100,000, almost immediately announced a policy of purchasing or consolidating with new telegraphic companies.

Biggest step in the policy seemed recently when stockholders of the Postal Telegraph company voted to merge with Western Union, now more than a $200,000,000 enterprise, which sees a big future in operation.

AGRICULTURE:
Below '42

Total production of the five leading grain crops was set at 5,282,000,000 bushels for 1943, 700,000,000 less than harvested last year, on the basis of estimates of the department of agriculture.

Because of favorable growing conditions in July, the department looked for a corn crop of 2,874,711,000 bushels against last year's harvest of 3,175,154,000; a wheat crop of 834,894,000 against 981,327,000; an oats crop of 1,189,546,000 against 1,244,255,000; a barley crop of 348,848,000 against 426,150,000, and a rye crop of 33,314,000 against 57,341,000.

Combined production of the four feed grains—corn, oats, rye and barley—was estimated at 111,000,000 tons below last year's yield. Soybean harvest was set at 200,328,000 bushels.

Milk production held close to last year's level and egg output was at a peak, except in the West.

PACIFIC: Hit Both Ends

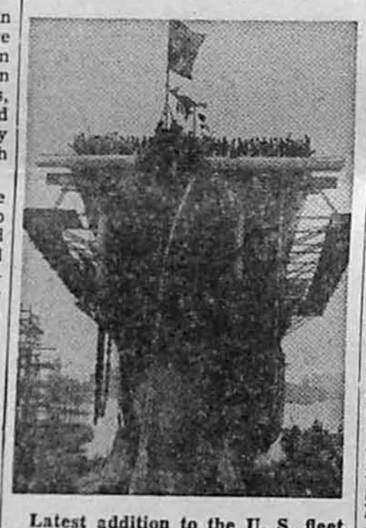
While American troops hemmed in the last surviving band of Japanese on New Georgia island in the Solomons, U. S. airmen lifted their Liberator bombers off of the Aleutian runways and headed them for the northern-most chain of islands of the Japanese empire.

As the Liberators rumbled over these islands, known as the Kuriles, 40 enemy fighter planes rose up in defense. But the Americans opened their bomb bays and death and destruction tumbled on the designated target areas. Two Liberators were shot down, but the others swung their noses homeward to complete the 1,000-mile trek.

Bad weather made the jungle on New Georgia a stew, but nevertheless U. S. Doughboys slogged through the mire to complete encirclement of the remnants of the Japanese force on the northwest coast of the island.



Latest addition to the U. S. fleet is this new aircraft carrier, Bataan.

ALLIED MEETING:
Politics and War

With Allied forces at the gates of the European fortress, with Marshal Pietro Badoglio's military government of Italy reportedly receptive to peace terms, and with Russia having indicated willingness to negotiate with a "democratic" Germany purged of Nazism, Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Franklin D. Roosevelt came together for their sixth personal meeting of the war.

Flying to the North American continent with Churchill was a staff of military and naval chieftains, and joining them for discussion were ranking U. S. army and navy officers. The combination of these staffs indicated further operations of joint character, such as those in North Africa and Sicily, where the services of the two nations teamed for effective action.

As Churchill and Roosevelt met, Russia threw a bombshell into the diplomatic picture by declaring that Premier Joseph Stalin had not been invited to the conference, and therefore neither he nor an accredited Soviet representative would attend. Russia's diplomatic jockeying to share in the dominion of Europe after the war will be one of the Allied leaders' chief considerations.

MISCELLANY:

SPORT OF KINGS: A group of 56 thoroughbred yearlings, sole survivor of such famous racing strains as Sysonby II and the Celebrated III, sold at an average price of $2,261 at the Lexington, Ky., sales.

OVER: While flying over Europe to take pictures for the aircraft gunnery school, Clark Gable's plane was hit 11 times, but returned to base.

GAS:
Ration Change

Reduction in the gas ration in the Midwest and Southwest was planned by the Office of Price Administration following Petroleum Administrator Harold L. Ickes' report of a critical fuel shortage. Formerly, rationing had been imposed in the area to limit driving and conserve tires.

Harold Ickes

According to the plan, A, B and C coupons will be cut from four to three gallons. Many holders of C cards will find their gas allowances trimmed from a maximum of 720 miles per month to 480. Preferred motorists like doctors, ministers and certain war workers will continue to receive unlimited supplies according to need.

It was said increased movement of oil to the East through the newly completed "big-inch" pipe line would draw from the affected area's supplies, contributing to any reduction in the gas ration there.

TAXES:
Who Pays

Of the total of 22 billion dollars collected by the U. S. treasury for the fiscal year 1943 which ended June 30, the states of New York and Illinois contributed almost 28 per cent.

The treasury's figure showed that the people in eight highly industrialized states paid 59 per cent of the government's total revenue. Besides New York and Illinois, these states were Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan.

By contrast, the treasury said North and South Dakota, each with a small population, paid about .08 of the total revenue.

Of the revenue collected, more than 10 billion dollars was in the form of individual and corporation income taxes.

LABOR:
Shun Lewis

Big, burly John L. Lewis found the road back to the American Federation of Labor, from which he once bolted to form the CIO, blocked.

William Green

Headed by AFL President William Green, the union's executive committee officially refused to accept the United Mine Workers' application for reentrance. Instead, the council said that the matter would be referred to the AFL annual convention.

In rejecting Lewis' application, the council showed no disposition to bargain with him. Whereas Lewis had insisted that the UMW be accepted as presently composed, the council called for dissolution of UMW's District 50, which has been unionizing various branches of labor. Otherwise, the council said, District 50's activities might interfere with established AFL unions.

MINERS:

Seven weeks after passage of the Smith Connally anti-strike bill, 30 coal miners, including officials of various United Mine Workers locals, stepped into federal court and asked that the case be thrown out on constitutional grounds.

The miners' counsel declared that the anti-strike law was in opposition to the first amendment of the Constitution guaranteeing freedom of speech, and the 13th amendment to the Constitution against involuntary servitude.

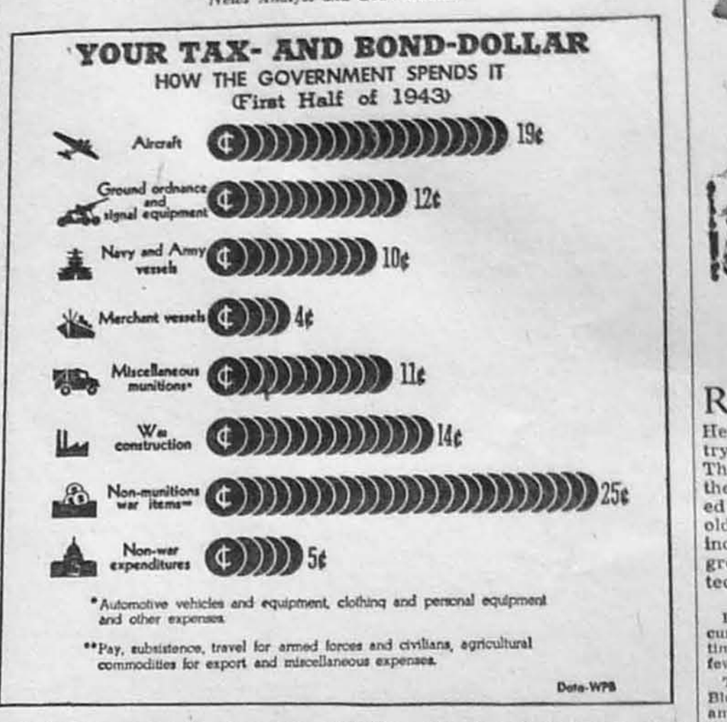
Many Tax Laws Suggested To Get 'Nervous Dollars'

Compulsory Savings, Personal Excess Income Tax, Spending Levy Found Unpopular or Unwieldy; Orthodox Bill Seen.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.



WNU Service, Union Trust Building
Washington, D. C.

As far back as biblical days, the tax collector was an unpopular person.

Today you don't see the tax collector but you know who writes the tax laws and the folks who do (congress) lead a most unhappy life, especially in an election year such as we are approaching.

The complicated problem they face can be simply stated—think it over and figure out what you would do if you had to write a tax law. The problem is this: how to collect the most dollars and lose the least votes.

Soak the rich? Well, they have the money and it hurts them the least, but unfortunately there are not enough of them to soak. It is too bad because they are so few in number that their votes don't matter so much. (Only 46,949 people or approximately one eight-hundredth of those with incomes earn over $10,000 a year.)

Tax the rest? That will bring in the biggest total but they are the ones with the votes.

The President says we need 106 billion dollars to run the war this year. The treasury says that out of every dollar collected, 90 cents goes to pay the war bills.

So there have been a number of schemes concocted which are aimed at getting the nervous dollars, the ones most likely to create inflation. Presumably they are the dollars that belong to the people who are now getting a lot more money than they did before the war. It would be just to take the "excess profits" to pay for the war especially because the people who are getting a lot more than they are used to are the ones who spend most freely.

So compulsory savings has been suggested. That is, making Uncle Sam collect a part of everybody's income, which would be returned after the war. Then there is a scheme to tax spending. In other words, tax the dollars which are spent on extras, dollars that get back into circulation and push up the inflation spiral. Not the dollars that go into homes or life insurance or paying old debts, but the dollars that romp off for more clothes than you need to wear, more food and more gadgets than you ought to get along with in wartime.

Then there is another tax—the personal excess income tax.

That is a tax on the amount of money that you are receiving now that you weren't receiving before the war.

Lacking Popularity

None of these methods is popular. There is a sentimental objection to compulsory savings. It smacks, according to its opponents, too much of totalitarianism, of an interference with the individual's personal habits. The President is opposed to it—and his wife agrees with him—the treasury is opposed to it.

The spending tax is said to be too complicated and likewise appears to be unpopular with the treasury.

Then there is this personal excess income tax of which you will soon be hearing more. The chief objection to that tax seems to be that it is too hard to work out; that it is too hard to make it just and fair. Even the Nazis who tried it gave it up after about a year's trial.

When the personal excess income tax comes up, you will hear many arguments against it. Like many of these other "unorthodox" methods, it requires the establishment of what is called a "base period" to establish a comparison. That is, some period of time during which the amount earned by the individual is taken as a base. Then what he is making now is compared with that "base" and the difference taxed. But that is a pretty hard thing to work out because so many adjustments would have to be made for special cases that the government would never be able to examine each case and pass on it fairly.

Take the young doctor. The year before the war, he may have been graduated from medical school. Probably he had little or no income then. Then he begins to practice and in wartime, doctors are in demand. He may have made a fair income this year. Would it be fair to tax the "excess" if it were the difference between this year's earnings and the "base period" when he was earning nothing at all?

Too Many Inequities

Then there are many men who are getting more money now because they work longer hours or have received just and deserved promotions—all these things immediately come into the picture when you begin to straighten out the inequities, when you really try to tax a just percentage of a man's income.

And so the predictions which are being made in Washington now are that the next tax bill will be a pretty "orthodox" affair, it will simply have about the same kind of exemptions, a little higher percentage tax, and will be rushed through at the last minute after as many members of congress have objected to the clauses which they think will be unpopular with their constituents. The government needs the money and needs it quickly. The people don't want to be taxed any more than can be helped and the congressmen will lean over backwards trying to please the people.

Meanwhile, the treasury tells us that most of the money which is being earned due to the great increase in production caused by the war is going to people whose incomes are less than $5,000 a year—seven-eighths of it. So at least seven-eighths of the taxes ought to come from that group.

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

An honorable discharge from the army during the present war will be signified by a lapel button, the war department has announced.

The British radio in a French-language youth hour broadcast to the continent declared: "Young men, gain time. If you avoid going to Germany today, perhaps you will never have to go."

The Nazi ministry of propaganda has ordered all literature about Benito Mussolini withdrawn from German libraries and bookshops especially those drawing a parallel between him and Adolf Hitler, the Russian Tass news agency said in quoting a report from Berlin reaching Geneva. The parallel did exceedingly little to help the cause of Hitler in his countrymen's eyes.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

It did have a bearing on rubber use—the close to 24 billion gallons of gasoline used by highway vehicles in 1941. California led the states with a mark on the edge of 2 billion gallons. These are numbers for the "A" card holder to conjure with.

Tires for our fighting aircraft consume from 35 to 96 pounds of rubber, depending on the size of the plane. Inner tubes take from 24 to 54½ pounds.

At a rubber plantation in Haiti, a 75-foot tree was pulled to the ground by the weight of cryptostegia vines which had fought one another to climb it.

Get Something You Want to Sell?
Most people have a piece of furniture, a farm implement, or something else which they have discarded and which they no longer want.
These things are put in the attic, or stored away in the barn, or left lying about quite a bit of time and have value and use.
WHY NOT SELL THEM?
Somebody wants those old things which have become of no use to you. Why not try to find that person.

PRACTICAL LESSON ON INFLATION

WHEN YOU BUY a $100 war bond, you dig down into the old sock and produce cash that is in existence, cash for which you have worked and which you have earned. When the bond issue is floated through the banks, it is a different story.

The bank is told to take a million dollars worth of war bonds. It does that by placing on its books a million dollars to the credit of the government. For that the bank receives a million dollars in bonds. With these bonds as security, it issues a million dollars in new money. With the issuing of every million dollars of new money, we have added to the inflationary spiral. That spiral is a spring enclosed in a box. When the tension becomes too great, it will burst the lid off the box and out will spring the snake of extreme and uncontrolled inflation.

Remember a toy of childhood days—a snake in a box which jumped at you when you unfastened the lid? That was a harmless snake made of cloth. It did not, and could not bite. The snake that government financing through bank loans, or bank credits, has cooped up in the inflation box is not harmless. Should it break the fastening, it can, and will, bite. Its venom will poison all values and reduce us to a nation of paupers. When the people, rather than the banks, buy the bonds, there is no danger of inflation. In that way we can enjoy and retain our prosperity.

A SPENDTHRIFT IS A SABOTEUR

THE NATIONAL INCOME has jumped under the impetus of war production from around 70 billion to 143 billion dollars. It means the average income per individual—man, woman and child—has increased from about $538 a year to $1,100. That can mean prosperity for now and some years in the future, or it can mean financial ruin.

It all depends on what we do with that increased income. If we attempt to spend it at this time, when commodities for civilian consumption are not available in quantities sufficient to meet such a demand, we but push the price to a point that means uncontrolled inflation and financial ruin for all of us. If we invest it in government securities and save it to spend for what we will want in years to come, or to invest later in stocks that will finance the peace-time production of after-the-war years, it will mean continued prosperity for the individual and for the nation. The present day spendthrift is sabotaging himself and the future of his country.

NATURE LESSON

WHAT WONDERS nature provides for our enchantment! Across the street from my home, where I can look at it each day and each hour, is a great, wide-spreading magnolia tree. In the spring and early summer it is covered with magnificent blossoms — enormous, pearly white flowers, each as large as a dinner plate, with delicate pink centers. Their beauty is enhanced by a background of the greenest of shiny, green leaves. That tree is one of nature's masterpieces, more beautiful than anything made by man.

BONDS WILL BE PAID

THE PRESIDENT tells us it does not make much difference as to the size of the national debt because we owe it to ourselves and it is practically no debt at all. Just the same, the millions of Americans who are patriotically buying war bonds expect to be—and they will be—repaid. The fellow who will pay it is the American taxpayer. If he has bought bonds, he will be paying himself. If he has not bought any, he will be paying the fellow who has. The moral is: Buy bonds so you will not have to pay the other fellow, and he will have to pay you.

SHOULD THE bureaucratic economists at Washington accomplish their purpose of outlawing all trade names on branded commodities you will be taking your "grade A" crackers out of a barrel, as our great grandmothers did, instead of buying your blankets or sweaters in a box. When you do the ever-increasing demand for commodities, and the ever-increasing number of jobs that demand creates, will be over. We will be back to the "horse and buggy days."

IMPRACTICAL IDEALISM can be a sharp-edged tool with which to destroy that which makes real advance possible.

Frosty Drinks Will Cool You!
(See Receipes Below)

Frost Yourself!

When the thermometer rises to the hundred mark, homemakers look for cool ideas, and thirst-chasers are first on the list. Cooling drinks literally give you a frost and insulate you from the warm rays of Old Man Sun.

In today's column I'm attempting to give you a parade of cool drinks to fit every pocket book, every occasion. They use fruit juices, prepared beverages, prepared drink powders, milk, citrus fruit and of course, plenty of ice. After you've prepared them, find the coolest spot on the porch, sink into the most comfortable chair, and start sipping!

Chilling fruit, juices, milk or beverages is of first importance in preparing your cool drink, but then you've probably already done this. If a survey were made during these summer months, I'm sure it would reveal that a larger percentage of the refrigerator is used for cool drink preparations than any other item.

One of the best bases for a good, cool drink is a citrus fruit. Doesn't it honestly cool you already to think of orange or lemon juice cool and frosty in a glass with tinkling ice? Indeed, it does. There's a scientific fact behind this, for scientists tell us that in hot weather the tissues of the body require more vitamin C than when temperatures are moderate. That's one reason why oranges and lemons are ideal for summer drinks.

If you want something to serve company on a summer evening, here's a drink that will fill any order:

Hollywood Parade.
(Serves 15)

1 pint orange juice
1 pint orange sherbet
1 pint vanilla ice cream
1 pint chilled ginger ale

Beat orange juice, sherbet and ice cream with a whirl type beater until well mixed. Add ginger ale. Stir and serve at once.

Another kind of orange drink which is nice to fix individually for yourself in the afternoon when you're feeling a lag is this:

Orange Cream.
(Serves 1)

1 egg yolk
¼ cup orange juice
¼ cup thin cream or evaporated milk
Sugar, if desired

Beat egg yolk until light, add orange juice and blend thoroughly. Pour into glass and stir in cream. Sweeten, to taste. Serve at once.

There are several delightful flavors obtainable in fruit powders that are simply delicious when made into frosty, cooling drinks. Use the directions on the package for mixing, garnish with a cherry and sprig of mint and you have a drink without the trouble of extracting fruit juice. Use the fruit powders also for making light sherbets that solve the dessert problem nicely.

Sherbet.
(Makes over 1 quart)

1 package flavored fruit powder
1 cup heavy cream, well chilled
1 cup sugar
2 cups milk

Dissolve fruit powder and sugar in milk. Turn into freezing tray and freeze ¾ to 1 hour or until slushy. Whip cream until stiff. Add to first mixture and beat through until blended, keeping as cold as possible. Return quickly to freezing tray and freeze at coldest point. When frozen, set cold control back to normal.

The hotter the weather, the more wilted you become. Nothing quite picks you up as a nice salad, and even the thought of cool, crisp greens brings back the starch to your spirits. Here are some suggestions which are perfect for summer:

Ham Supper Salad.
(Serves 4)

2 cups diced cooked ham
1 cup diced celery
2 hard-cooked eggs, diced
¼ cup mayonnaise
1½ teaspoons sweet pickle relish
1½ teaspoons chili sauce
Salad greens

Combine first three ingredients. Then stir in next three ingredients which have been combined together. Mix thoroughly and chill until ready to serve. Serve on any desired salad greens.

Summer Dream Salad.
Watermelon balls
Grapefruit sections
Fresh whole raspberries
Pineapple segments
Orange sections
Honeydew slices
Blueberries
Mint
Salad dressing

Arrange fruit on a bed of salad greens according to a pattern. Serve with salad dressing and garnish with mint sprigs.

Salad Dressing.

2 tablespoons currant jelly
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ cup salad oil
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons granulated sugar or honey
2 teaspoons chili sauce

Crush jelly with fork and beat smooth. Add remaining ingredients and beat with hand beater until blended. Serve over fruit salad or mixed greens.

Sandwich Hints

In making sandwiches, soften butter or margarine before using. Avoid melting butter or margarine as it seeps into bread and makes a greasy filling.

A good way is to mix ¼ cup peanut butter, apple butter, or jelly with ¼ cup of butter to extend the butter supply. This makes enough spread for 10 slices of enriched bread.

Variation of fruit-nut bread, orange bread or cheese bread make a combination that really is a victory special. Wise use of enriched flour saves needed ration points.

If you have a canning problem, write to Miss Lynn Chambers, Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Ill. Please enclose a self-addressed envelope for your reply.

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: Good news is in sight with the word that coffee supplies in the country are coming back to normal and present prospects point to an end of coffee rationing by the middle of August. Even the current period for rationing provides more coffee per stamp than has been allowed since rationing came into effect.

Those of you who are canning can get additional supplies of sugar with your stamps to make putting up fruit at home easier.

Fruits and vegetables are scarce this year because of lack of help to pick them, and therefore prices run high. If you possibly can, get in touch with anyone who has crops and offer to help with the picking and packing of them and also to get your own fruits and vegetables for home canning in much better conditions than would be possible if you waited for someone else to do the picking.

PLEURODYNIA—FALSE PLEURISY

Some years ago I wrote about an epidemic of pleurodynia in England. Pleurodynia is an inflammation with pain in muscles of the chest. It is sometimes called false pleurisy—pain in lower part of chest and upper part of abdomen, pain on breathing and with any movement of chest muscles. At that time it was considered an infectious disease, but as symptoms were light, lasted but a short time and no bad effects followed, nothing more was heard about it.

Dr. Barton

It is interesting to learn that an epidemic of pleurodynia is reported in Brooklyn, N. Y. Cases of this disease began to appear in the Red Hook section of Brooklyn in July, 1942. To date at the Long Island College hospital, 166 cases were observed, of which 40 were admitted to hospital. Apparently there were more nose and throat symptoms in these Brooklyn cases than those reported in England, Norway and some parts of the United States.

"The prominent symptoms in adults were fever, severe pain in upper right side of abdomen or lower part of the chest, or both, sufficient to make breathing painful and difficult. The abdominal symptoms were frequently so severe that surgeons were called into consultation. The recoveries were prompt, often within 24 to 48 hours, though further attacks of pain and fever often occurred." In a number of these adult cases, headache, dizziness, lack of interest and fear of light occurred.

In children, in addition to fever and pain in upper abdomen and lower chest, there was sometimes very difficult breathing, vomiting but no diarrhea, severe inflammation of the throat and quick and complete recovery. In most of the infants violent convulsions occurred. Fortunately for physicians, parents and child, the convulsions quickly disappeared.

I am passing this information along, as the symptoms are so severe that the patient suffers as much as if he had heart disease, pleurisy, gall-stone colic, or a surgical condition of the abdomen. That these symptoms disappear so quickly and leave no after effect is much for which to be thankful.

However, when these or similar symptoms appear, the family physician should first be called, as an examination will show whether they are due to pleurodynia or something more serious.

How to Avoid Food Poisoning

In these days when the need and value of food is so much on our minds it is possible that in our efforts to get certain foods we may not watch as closely as we should the foods offered for sale.

The danger signals of food spoilage are: 1. Cans with bulging sides. 2. Glass containers showing seepage over the tops. 3. Food discoloration.

Because of canned goods shortage there has been considerable storing of canned goods, some of which may be kept for longer periods than in former years. It is then doubly necessary to make sure that the can has not become damaged, allowing entry of disease-producing organisms.

Suspected foods should never be tasted to discover spoilage, since even small amounts of some foods infested with organisms can cause illness or death.

Because of the shortage of cans and canned foods, there will be more home-food canners and home canners are reminded that canned foods must be thoroughly sterilized to safeguard against botulism, a highly fatal type of food poisoning which affects the brain. Formerly it was thought that botulism was caused entirely by raw or insufficiently cooked sausage, but lately most cases that have occurred involved vegetables; but fruit, meat and fish were also at times found to be the cause.

Fatal poisoning from commercially canned goods, however, is actually rare.

A further warning is given against buying illegally prepared or distributed meats as a disregard of the usual sanitary measures goes hand in hand with the sale of such products.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—What is the cause of a husky throat?

A.—You should not permit hoarseness to exist so long. See your physician first, then a throat specialist if necessary.

Q.—What would cause constant pains in the head for several years?

A.—There are more than 100 causes for head pains. Ask your physician about X-rays to discover cause if eyes, nose, throat, digestive and generative organs are normal.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

FROM YOUR PULPWOOD COMMITTEE

THIS Committee is starting a drive to cut more pulpwood trees. The shortage is serious . . . and pulpwood is urgently needed for everything from blood plasma containers to parachutes . . . from shell cases to airplane parts . . . from gas mask filters to explosives.

Our Government is asking every able-bodied woodcutter and farmer to pledge 3 extra work days this year (at regular pay) to cut pulpwood . . . 2,500,000 extra cords are n. . ded quickly.

This is a challenge to everyone of us in this community. We must not let our boys down. 3 EXTRA days' work are little to ask when our boys are out there giving their lives for their country.

Enlist today in this drive. Wear the button that shows you are in this fight. This is one way this community can help win this war.

Come to Committee headquarters or get in touch with any of these men. And do it quickly.

Farm Women's Club Meets

The August meeting of the Minnehaha Springs Farm Women's Club was held at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Pennybacker with 13 members and 6 visitors present. Mrs. Elmer Moore led devotions on the subject "The Work of the Master's Fingers." Roll call response was made by each member telling something about her favorite hobby.

The lesson, "Neighborhood Fun," was in charge of Mrs. D. W. Alderman. A general discussions of the topic brought out the point that regardless of how busy one may be some time should be provided for fun, and that to keep fit to do one's best to help win the war, one should have some fun along with the necessary work and prayer.

A committee of four was appointed to arrange a Fair exhibit. Miss Bly Dever was appointed as safety chairman. In the recreation hour Mrs. Pennybacker demonstrated how to have fun through games.

The next meeting will be a picnic and vesper service near the home of Mrs. Ernest White on Sunday evening, August 29. After adjournment the hostess, assisted by her sisters, Misses Ruth, and Gertrude White served delicious refreshments.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

"Thank You, Doctor!"

John was a very sick man a week ago. His family and friends were plainly worried. The outlook wasn't bright even after the doctor began his treatment, but then came improvement and now John will be back at work in his important spot as mine foreman within a short time.

THE CHAIN MUST NOT BE BROKEN

John's personal illness is of marked concern to Uncle Sam these days when everybody must keep well, stay on the job, do his full part for early Allied victory. The situation finds a parallel in our field of activities—Electric Service—where power must be made and supplied 24 hours every day, without interruption, for Victory. It also has its parallel in your home, your place of business, and elsewhere where electric appliances of all kinds must be kept in good repair, oiled, and in service to speed the victory effort. Neglected, these things will not be like John—they won't recover—and then a vital link in the winning chain may be broken, for most of them cannot be replaced. Keep well yourself and keep your electric helpers on the job during this all-out drive!

See Here, Private Hargrove!

by Marion Hargrove

WNU SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: Private Marion Hargrove, former feature editor of the Charlotte (N. C.) News, has been inducted into the army and has completed the first few days of his training at camp. He has given prospective inductees advice to "paint the town red" before getting into the army and once in he tells them that "the first three weeks are the hardest." He has gone through the experience of the army physical exam, has been fitted with a uniform, been classified as a cook and has had a good taste of KP duty. In fact, he has had so much of the latter that his sergeant is beginning to despair. So is Private Hargrove. He has completed a KP session and returns to his quarters.

CHAPTER III

I tiptoed into the squadroom so that the sergeant wouldn't notice that I was wearing fatigue clothes. His voice rang out to me as I passed his door, and I slunk in guiltily.

The sergeant's face showed that he was hurt. "You were on KP again today, weren't you, Hargrove?"

I lowered my eyes and scuffed my toe against the floor. "Yes, sir."

"Oh, I get so discouraged sometimes," the sergeant said. "I try so hard to make something of you and what good does it do? Every time I go through the kitchen I see you in there scrubbing the sink! How many times have you been on KP this week?"

"Only three times, sir," I said, avoiding his eyes.

"It was all the corporal's fault, sir," I said, looking around to make sure that the corporal wasn't there to defend himself. "Just because I right-faced a few times when I was supposed to left-face, and I zigged when I should have zagged, and because I forgot and smoked in ranks —and a few other things like that."

"And," said the sergeant shaking his head sadly, "you just turned around casually every time he ordered 'about-face.' And you kept watching your feet all through drill. And you stayed out of step all morning and you took those plowhand strides of yours and walked all over the man in front of you. And you sassed the drillmaster three times. And you generally spoiled the whole morning's drill. Why can't you be a good boy and learn the drills?"

"That's all, Hargrove," he said, mopping his brow; "you're not supposed to salute a non-commissioned officer—just go to bed."

"I don't mean to be bad, sir," I said.

"And that's another thing," the sergeant moaned. "Why must you say 'sir' to the noncommissioned officers and forget to salute the commissioned ones?" He mopped his forehead wearily. "Do you know what the top sergeant told me today?"

"No, sir," I said, twisting my cap and sweating the worst.

"He said—and don't 'sir' me—that when the battery commander had you on the carpet yesterday you stood there leaning on the table, and you shifted your feet eight times. And you saluted four times during his talk—and when you saluted you gave a European backstitch and bowed. And when the captain dismissed you, you told him, 'Thank you, sergeant' and forgot to salute when you left."

"Was there anything else, sir?" I asked in a whisper.

"That's all, Hargrove," he said, wiping great drops of perspiration from his forehead.

"Thank you, sir," I said. I exhaled, clicking my heels, and turned to go.

"Hargrove," the final voice said. "You're not supposed to salute a noncommissioned — Never mind, Hargrove. Just go to bed."

"Just look at me." the exercise sergeant went on in a voice that would go four miles against the wind. "Look look! I weigh two hundred and eight pounds and I'm in the worst physical condition I've ever been in. I ought to be ashamed for the way I've allowed myself to get fat and flabby! I'm ashamed!

"I've got to get exercise sergeant and wonder what he's looking up to. So you're looks like the 'office looking' part of a military post exercises. He could probably look the weight of golden dogs.

His next command surprises everything. "Now I'm going to show you an exercise that's the answer to every physical problem. Even I can do it. Now, I don't want to hear anybody even make wheezing noise when I do it. I want you to do it in worse shape than I am. If I can do it, you can do it—or else!"

He outlines the exercise and you begin wondering how a contortionist happened to wind up at Fort Bragg. This self-styled "fat and flabby" calisthenics master doesn't have any knees or elbows. You stand there waiting to hear his spine fall apart under the strain, but he comes up all in one piece.

"That's the way I want you boys to do it," he says, beaming cheerfully. You begin to feel your face getting gray and you wonder why a bolt of lightning doesn't come to deliver you from the prospective torture.

"One. Two. Three. Four. Five. Six. Seven. Eight. One. Two—"

The first three or four times are the hardest. After that, you get the swing of it. It's really tame stuff, you decide.

"The next exercise," says the sergeant, "is what we call the quarter, half and full knee bend. It goes like this." He shows you. When you see it, the corners of your mouth go up in a sneer of derision (unless the corporal is looking). Ho Hum, you say to yourself. Why do they take up time with this play?

"Exercise — one, two, three, four—" Quarter, half, full recover. Your knees get That Tired Feeling after the third time. After the sixth time, you feel your eyes getting glassy. After the ninth, you're floating in space. By the time the exercise is over, nothing matters any more.

Before you have marched off the drill field you notice that you still haven't collapsed. In fact, you find to your disappointment that you're beginning to feel good. All limbered up.

Quarantine has been lifted for us of the July 17 contingency. If the sergeant wasn't looking over my shoulder, I'd say it's about time. Before our release from isolation, Army style, I was able to get around and swap lies and gripes with every one of the boys in our group.

A little under 100 per cent of them came up with the same account, which reads as follows: "Our battery has the worst food in the Army. We've got the worst sergeant in the battery. No kidding, though, our platoon makes all the others look crummy. Here two weeks already and I haven't pulled KP or had the sergeant jump me a time yet. Don't tell a soul, but I think they're going to make me a corporal." All of which is a lot of hot air.

Actually, they're fighting to get into the mess hall first at every meal. They're gaining weight and tanning where they used to blister. They're sassing their sergeants, who deplore them as the sorriest bunch of rookies they ever sweated over. Every one of them has been on KP at least once.

By the time Congress says I may go home and be a mere civilian again, I suppose I'll be the best soldier at Fort Bragg. At least I seem to get more individual attention than anyone else. Private tutoring, I always tell the boys.

We were at work the other morning learning how to handle a rifle. The sergeant was putting us through our paces.

"Hargrove," he said with infinite sweetness, "where is the balance of your rifle?"

"This is all the supply sergeant gave me, sir," I said. "I thought it was all here."

The sergeant slapped his forehead and mumbled something furiously under his breath. "Wonder-child," he said, "this (pointing) is the balance of your rifle. I can't imagine why they call it that, unless it's because when you hold the rifle there with one hand, it's balanced." He then went on for a few minutes, explaining a few of the things I had still failed to master.

"How do you understand it?" he asked, beaming at me with a look made of all sweet accord.

"No, sir," I said.

The sergeant sighed wearily. "Private Hargrove," he said, "right down by the next barracks there's a group of young people who are practicing with rifles for the first time. They haven't had theirs for three days like you have. Run along down there and see if you can keep up with them."

I tried. There was some confusion about the orders, however. At the end of a movement where I wound up with my rifle on my left shoulder, the rest of the detail had theirs on the right. I noticed also that I usually finished a command long before the others.

The sergeant in charge of the detail commented on this. "You know, Shorty," he said, "you have all of those motions worked out much better than the War Department ever plans to do them. Whats it look like a perfect course to complete the manual-of-arms manual, for always manage somehow to complete it in cadence."

I was still thinking modestly about he asked the sergeant next. He said something to the sergeant, who took me by the elbow and guided me gently around the building at a fast clip. In back, the farmers with rifles weren't any too skilled and looking so discouraged.

"Look," he said, concentrating each syllable slowly and distinctly, "in your we have come to call a rifle R-i-f-l-e. It is used for the purpose of shooting. Primitive man, we are told, did not have a rifle. Primitive man was forced to bring down his supper with a knife, a spear, a stone, a bow and arrows or his own little primitive hands."

I nodded automatically and paid scant attention to all this. I already knew it.

"Today," he continued, "civilization has been improved upon to the extent that—" and he went on and on. After that we began at the beginning of the manual of arms and took each command slowly. The corporal sweated for forty-five minutes.

"In the first place you can peel potatoes with a bayonet."

"Are there any questions now, Private Hargrove?"

I thought for a while. "Yes, sir," I said. "That is, 'yes, corporal.' What use will I have for a rifle? I'm going to be a cook."

The corporal mopped his brow. "Well, Private Hargrove," he said, patting me lovingly on the shoulder, "you'll find use for it. Ha! ha! In the first place, you can peel potatoes with a bayonet. And in the second place—if you're as good a cook as you are a soldier—you'll need it every day. After breakfast, lunch, and supper you'll need it to protect yourself from murder at the hands of your comrades in arms."

"See here, Private Hargrove," the sergeant sighed. "Can't you try just once to do something right? Don't you want to be a credit to the platoon? You don't want us to be the worst bunch in the battery after we've been the best for so long, do you?"

"Please, sergeant," I begged him, "couldn't I just stay inside for this once? They'd never miss me at rifle inspection. I'd be very quiet and nobody would ever know."

He ignored the request. "Try hard to remember, private, these few simple things. When the officer reaches the man next to you, open the rifle. When he grabs your gun, don't hang onto it or you'll have a bellyache for two weeks. When he throws it back to you, don't catch it with your chin. And when you get it back, snap the trigger. And heaven help you if you ball this thing up!"

The forces of Destiny placed me second in the front rank at inspection. We stood at attention for three minutes before the inspecting officer approached. For seconds after we brought our rifles up for inspection, a fly which seemed to be a little larger than a June bug landed on my forehead. The sergeant shot a warning glance across my bow and I decided to humor the fly. It would go away soon, I told myself, although I knew it wouldn't.

The inspecting officer still had not begun his rounds. He was waiting for us to get off our guard. The fly demonstrated its impatience by stepping up to double-quick in its pacing. "Oh, if I only had you alone!" I thought. The itching nose became more insistent. A gnat made a three-point landing on it and began playing about the left nostril.

I gave the sergeant a glance which said distinctly, "This can't go on much longer. Something's going to pop!" His return glance said, in italicized words, "But just one eyelash and I'll break your neck!"

Suddenly the inspecting officer grabbed the rifle from the hand of Grafenstein, who stood beside me. His lightning swoop on the gun, coupled with the speed with which Grafenstein relinquished it, completely paralyzed me. An almost inaudible groan made me look at the sergeant. He was making furious grimaces at me and his face looked as if he was going to burst a blood vessel. He kept wagging his eyes down to the butt of my rifle. A split second before the officer reached me, I managed to pull the bolt.

I could see the sergeant unloading freight carloads of potatoes for me to peel. I could see the next weekend, with me restricted to quarters while the rest of the platoon enjoyed themselves in town.

The officer reached me several lifetimes later. He looked at my face and sighed wearily. Then, with infinite tenderness, he gently lifted the rifle from my grasp. He inspected it and handed it back to me as though he was laying a brick on an anvil or giving a hundred-pound weight to his aged grandmother. He sighed again and passed on to the next man, whose rifle he grabbed with the confidence that the man couldn't fail apart when he examined it.

ISRAEL'S SIN AND RESTORATION

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 32:7-10; 34:6-9, 27, 28.

GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is long-suffering and of great mercy, forgiving iniquity and transgression.—Numbers 14:18.

God is righteous, and cannot look with approval or in forgiveness upon sin until His mercy has been stirred and set free to act by repentance. Then He whose wrath is hotly kindled against man's transgression shows Himself as the tender and gracious God, "keeping loving-kindness for thousands, forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin."

This grace of God is fully revealed in Christ and the redemption which He brought to man, but is prefigured in the experiences of Israel under the law.

I. God's Wrath Kindled (Exod. 32:7-10).

There are those who would have us think of God as a benevolent old gentleman who is easily hoodwinked by clever sinners who can talk fast to cover their iniquity. Even if He does see it, He is supposed to be so tenderhearted that He overlooks their sin.

Such folk had better read these words, "That my wrath may wax hot." The wrath of God is a real and awful affection of the divine nature and it is revealed against man who sins against His holy law.

The special sin of Israel on this occasion was idolatry, which is the setting up of some material symbol to represent the invisible God. Moses had been with God in the mount for 40 days. He had been the Lord's representative in their midst. His presence had evidently been the chief stabilizing influence.

Having their eyes set on a man, or a material object to take His place, they had lost sight of the invisible God. So they proceeded to establish this idol which would provide a center of worship. At first it was evidently intended to remind them of God, but soon it led them out into heathen revelry (Exod. 32: 6, 17, 18).

Whatever a man puts between himself and God, even though he may at first intend it to be but a reminder of God, will lead him away from God. Ritual, symbols, theology, scholarship, all good in their places, may become the idols which separate present-day man from God.

II. God's Mercy Invited (Exod. 34:4-9).

Aaron had only a weak "alibi" to offer. The golden calf had practically made itself (see Exod. 32: 24). How quick man is to justify himself instead of admitting his guilt. No doubt our excuses sound just as silly as Aaron's in the ears of God.

Moses knew better. The sin was dealt with in drastic fashion. When one deals with a wild ravenous beast, there is one remedy—"shoot to kill." Not only were the leaders of the wickedness slain, but the ground gold of the calf image was put into water, which all Israel drank. Thus were they all marked as sharing the guilt of this idolatry.

There is a lesson here for us. America is far from God. We need to seek His face in repentance. But let us remember that we (that is, Christian men and women) are a part of America. It is our guilt, and we ought to be on our faces before God, pleading for God's mercy upon our land.

Moses was now ready to seek the Lord's mercy for his wayward people. He is the intercessor, the intermediary. God had a man who had compassion and love in his heart, and the Lord heard him. Loving-kindness and tender mercy flowed forth in place of flaming anger.

Note that God has not changed. He is the unchangeable One. His wrath is still hot against man's sin, but man has repented, and moved out of God's wrath into His love and grace. That too is always being shown to His obedient children.

III. God's Covenant Renewed (Exod. 34:27, 28).

Moses had broken the first tablets of commandments. The people had sinned and were not then ready to listen to any word from Jehovah. But now they were prepared to receive it, and God renewed the covenant as He again gave Moses the law.

There is no need for despair in the heart of the one who deals with God. The missed opportunity for obedience and blessing may be gone forever, but God is still on the giving hand ready to meet the returning prodigal, ready to give beauty for ashes (Isa. 61:3) and to restore the years that the locust has destroyed (Joel 2:25). Amazing grace!

In the keeping of these commandments, Israel was assured of the blessing of God. As we pointed out last week, the real fulfillment of the law came in Jesus Christ, who did not set aside its requirements, but met them all, for all who believe in Him united.

When the word went out that soldiers overseas wanted packages from home—the response was so overwhelming that Uncle Sam reluctantly had to call a halt. Today, due to shipping space, there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men—but you can still send packages to soldiers in the U. S., and to Sailors, Marines, and Coast Guardsmen wherever they are. When you do, remember—one of their favorite gifts is cigarettes, and the favorite brand is Camel. Sales records in Post Exchanges and Canteens show that Camel is first choice with men in all the services. So send him that carton of Camels today.—Adv.

NO SUGAR NEEDED IN EASY-TO-MAKE ALL-BRAN MUFFINS

Here's an already favored recipe that's gaining new wartime fame... ALL-BRAN Muffins without sugar! See for yourself how the flavorsome crispness of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN gives these delicious muffins a texture and taste all their own!

Kellogg's All-Bran Muffins

2 tablespoons shortening
½ cup corn syrup
1 egg
1 cup Kellogg's All-Bran
½ cup milk
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
2½ teaspoons baking powder

Cream shortening and corn syrup thoroughly; add egg and beat well. Stir in All-Bran and milk. Let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder; add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven, (400° F.) about 30 minutes. Yield: 6 large muffins, 3 inches in diameter, or 12 small muffins, 2½ inches in diameter.

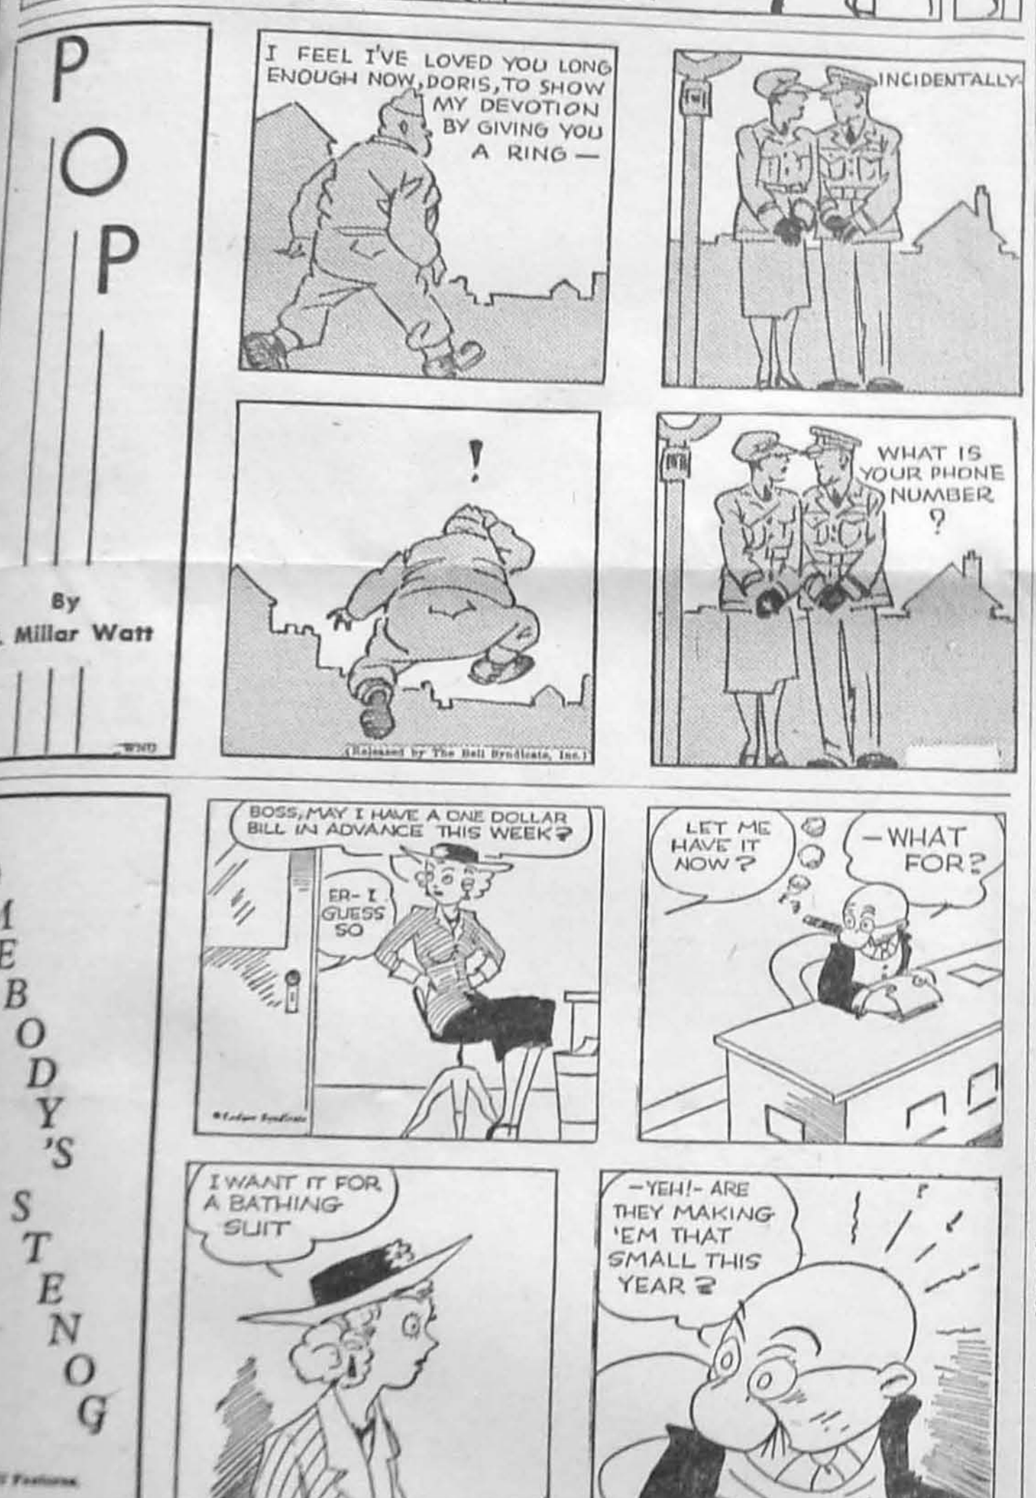
OUR COMIC SECTION



SMART DOG

Jones—My dog stole the show. Smith—Was the blue ribbon, eh? Jones—No, this was a free circus!

Useless Expense

Boston—It's asking for a dollar to have built a fence 'round a cemetery.

Boston—It don't seem so use to me. Them's what's in there can't come out. And them what's out can't get in.

Right, Pop?

Dad—I don't understand it. When I was your age I never asked so many questions.

Son—Well, if you had, you might be able to answer some!

REALLY FAST!

A group of British and American sailors were swapping yarns about their ships. "I'm curious about your carriers," one British tar said. "How fast are they?"

One American turned his wad of gum over. "Well, to tell you the truth, chum," he replied. "I don't know. We've never really opened them up. All they've been required to do so far is to keep up with the planes."

Hard Worker

Boss—Why did you take a whole day off yesterday? You asked for only a half day.

Worker—I remembered you always told me never to do things by halves.

Tootie' Tooth

Teacher—What is an organ of the body?

Smarty—The tooth.

Teacher—What organ is that?

Smarty—The grind organ!

NEXT QUESTION, PLEASE

Quizzer—How can you keep milk from getting sour?

Quizzee—Keep it in the cow!

Circumstantial

Judge—What have you got to say for yourself when three people testify they saw you breaking open the safe?

Defendant—What are three persons against millions who didn't see me?

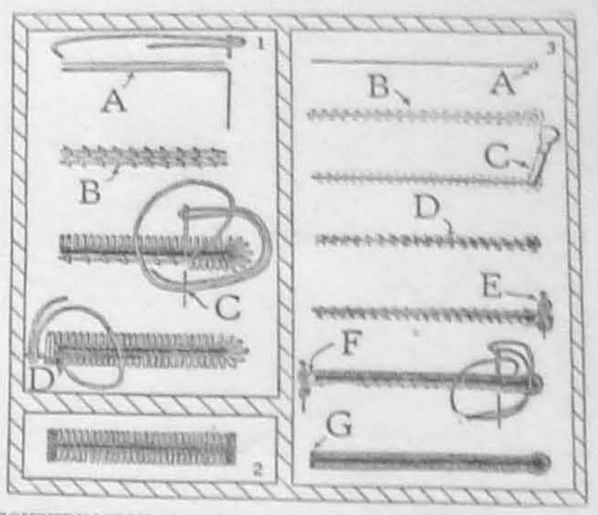
Pardon Me?!

Nancy—What do you mean, he's too fresh?

Blondie—Fresh! Why I had to slap him three times before I'd let him kiss me.

BETTER DRESSMAKING

By Ruth Wyeth Spears



CONSERVATION of clothing begins with an ounce of prevention. When we think of where garments wear out first, buttonholes come to mind. Once the material around them becomes frayed the garment is finished so far as good looks is concerned.

The buttonholes of old garment may be reworked; those of inexpensive ready-mades may be reinforced; and those in new garments may be made both smart and substantial with evenly purled stitches.

Three types of worked buttonholes are shown here. 1. The buttonhole with fan stitches at the outside end and reinforcing bar at inside. 2. Buttonhole with bar at both ends. 3. Tailored buttonhole with eyelet at outside end. The process of reinforcing a buttonhole slit with long stitches and overcasting is shown at A and B, in Sketch 1. The position of the needle and thread in making the purled buttonhole stitch is shown at C. The blanket stitch used for the bar is shown at D. Sketch 2 shows the method of marking the tailored buttonhole at A; stitching around marking, at B; punching eyelet, at C; overcasting, D; method of holding reinforcing thread, E and F. The bar at the inside end is shown at G.

Harper M. Smith Placed On State War Fund Group

Drive in October To Have Goal of $125,000,000.

Harper M. Smith, of Marlinton, county chairman, has been named as a member of the West Virginia State War Fund General Campaign Committee, Richard E. Talbott, state chairman, has announced.

The West Virginia Committee, which is part of the National War Fund, will hold its campaign for the USO, War Prisoners' Aid, United Seamen's Service and foreign appeals in October, the announcement pointed out. West Virginia's share of the $125,000,000 National Quota has been set at $1,000,000.

The state has been divided into 14 regions, each with its local organization of county chairmen and committees.

Officers of the State Committee include A. C. Spurr, Thomas Cairns, Mason Crickard, John B. Easton, Carl G. Schmidt, Dayton R. Stemple, and Percy Tetlow. The Committee is composed of 125 people representing every walk of life.

"As it did in the USO drive a year ago, West Virginia will go over the top this October," Mr. Talbott said. "The State Committee has already received several substantial gifts for the worthy causes listed in the Fund. We ask people now to get ready to back up their community campaign properly so we can put over the drive in the shortest possible time, and with the best record of any state in the Union."

Drivers' License Rule Is Amended

Men and women in the armed services will be permitted to renew their automobile drivers' licenses without delivery a license permit or taking any examination if they make application within six months after their discharge, Road Commissioner Everett L. Bailey said Monday.

Applications, which are to be mailed for four periods, start on August 1, September 1 and under the law must be renewed before the expiration date printed on the card. Failure after twelve applications after the expiration date must submit a favorable permit and pass a state police service test before a new license can be issued.

However, Bailey pointed out that it will be practically impossible for members of the armed forces to renew their licenses, as with approval of the personal property office and State Motor Transportation in Charleston he issued the order permitting them to secure military registration which are issued when they are discharged.

Commissioner Bailey further pointed out that the office does not issue duplicate licenses to anyone who loses his license and wants to substitute the number on which they had applied for license.

Applications blanks could be had from State Motor Vehicle Inspectors, starting in the city of 10 days.

Century-Old Paper Reveals Humanity Not Much Changed

An interesting publication belonging to Charles H. McKee, whose home is in Buena Vista, Va., but who has been employed in the local freight office of the C. and O. Railway Co., was loaned to the editor this week and some of its contents are hereby reproduced.

Known as "The Virginia Republican," the paper dedicated to the principles of "A Republican Government and a Federal Union," the paper was published by Editor James Alexander at Abingdon, Va., and bears the date of Monday, February 10, 1834.

Printed on a heavy-textured paper, the 109-year-old publication carries a "Prospectus" setting forth views of the Editor who says, "The Virginia Republican will as heretofore support the principles of republicanism as they were understood at that honorable epoch of 1798" . . . "We are devoted and ardent in our attachment to the Union, believing as we do, that a separation of any one State will be fraught with the greatest evils to the whole; and that we could not exist as 24 nations in so free and prosperous a condition as we are in one" . . . "We shall as we have always done, oppose the recharter of the United States Bank, as unconstitutional . . . Should it be necessary to have a Bank of the United States, we shall be in favor of such an one as may be established by an amendment of the Constitution, and the States owning the whole of the stock" . . . "We are in favor of Internal Improvement by the State or people accomplished, but we are opposed to any appropriations being made for that purpose by the Federal Government, as unconstitutional" . . . We are opposed to a Tariff, other than for revenue" . . . "We shall consider the support of the present administration, in all measures of which the people approve, and we shall oppose it in any course which we believe inexpedient. Since the establishment of our paper, we have supported Gen. Jackson, believing that he has the American people a tried and faithful friend" . . . "We shall not at this time pledge ourselves to support any man for the Presidency, but we will say that we intend to act in concert with the Republican party."

Most of "farm news" section, a newspaper reprints an article from the Agricultural Journal of 1834, entitled "Useful Instruction regarding the Milking of Cows" which states "The operation of milking is performed differently in different parts of the country. In Ireland the dairy-maid dips her hand in a little milk, and successively draws the teat between her finger and thumb, which reminds the udder" This method is condemned because it is said to exhibit the disadvantage of drawing more or less the teat, and thereby it is liable to cracks and sores which are followed by inflammation, according to the rest of the article, and the "more scientific" method is advised, which follows more closely the principles instinct implants the calf. (The calf is known to press into the udder, and thus draw the milk.) The dairy-maid takes a slight hold of the teat with her hand, by which she prevents it; then lifts her hand, and in so doing grasps the body of the breasts . . . And thus, by alternate action, the udder is drawn empty, without that squeezing and tearing of the teat which are here listed are: "Cash for Horses," "Property of Gastric Juice to Know" advocates the claims of "Mr. Charles S. Benjamin who has but few superior, if worth and integrity would be made the qualification. He knows every man's character and integrity of any amount with his capacity to handle, point him out as an honest man and entitled to the confidence of the people of the county, but to represent himself and advertise his community," for the advertisement reads. "A new kind of pen discovered, which, compared to the dimensions, surpasses in elasticity, ease and durability of the nib, and two-thirds of the cost, and two-thirds of the time, required to make the common Goose Quill." WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Allied Military Representatives Plan Over-All Strategy for Defeat of Axis; Red Troops Close on Nazi Strongholds; October Draft Quota to Include Dads

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

With the historic Chateau Frontenac in the background, English-American political and military leaders meet for memorable conference. Seated from left to right are Prime Minister MacKenzie King of Canada; President Roosevelt, and Prime Minister Winston Churchill of England. Standing from left to right, Gen. H. H. Arnold, Sir Charles Portal, Sir Allan Brooke, Adm. Ernest King, Sir John Dill, Gen. George Marshall, Adm. Sir Dudley Pound, and Adm. William Leahy.

MEDITERRANEAN:
Zero Hour

The zero hour for Italy arrived.

Across the Mediterranean, Allied transports massed in North African ports. Axis planes flying in to bomb the shipping were met by walls of steel anti-aircraft fire and scores of fighter planes.

Plowing along the Italian shoreline, Allied cruisers and destroyers poured heavy shells into important railroad junctions and power stations. Overhead, all kinds of bombers — fighter, medium and heavy — dropped high explosives on Axis troops moving along open roads and through mountain passes.

Gen. Dwight Eisenhower

As Allied artillery pumped shells into Italy from Sicily, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower counted 167,000 Axis casualties in the 39-day campaign which won the island. Our own losses were placed at 25,000.

Peace and the Sword

Assault of Hitler's European fortress and policies for dealing with re-occupied countries—upon these momentous questions turned the sixth conference between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill in Quebec.

Formulating the military grand strategy were approximately 350 army and navy officials from the U. S., Great Britain and Canada. Over their maps they planned, first, the invasion of Europe, then, the conquest of Japan.

Joining Roosevelt and Churchill were their foreign secretaries, Cordell Hull and Anthony Eden. With them, the two Allied leaders discussed the measures to be taken in restoring order in re-occupied nations, and the policies to be pursued to meet Russia's territorial claims and demand for participation in the rehabilitation of Europe.

RUSSIA:
Push Nazis Back

Russian troops closing in on the charred ruins of what was once the mighty industrial city of Kharkov, found their advance delayed by strong German counter-attacks. But as fighting raged at the gates of the former "Pittsburgh" of the Ukraine, other Red forces worked their way northwest to seal off the last railroad running out of the embattled city.

Further to the south, the Nazis claimed the Russians threw in tanks to re-enforce 150,000 Red troops hammering along the big bend of the Donets river. This would indicate the Russians concentrated their striking power along the whole Ukrainian front, where the Germans have been making a slow retreat with the Reds pressing forward in the teeth of intensive defensive artillery, mortar and machine gun fire.

The Russians claim the Nazis have 211 divisions, approximating 3,000,000 men, on the eastern front, with 48 divisions in reserve in Poland.

TAXES

Americans buying goods over and above actual necessities may have to pay a spending tax in 1944. Such a tax is under study by the treasury department, which is considering sources for raising an additional 12 billion dollars in revenue next year.

The treasury also has under study a congressional proposal for taxing all income over and above an individual's normal peacetime return.

In any case, individual and corporation income taxes, excess profits and goods taxes face an increase.

WORK-STOPPAGE:
Strikers, Plants Hit

Cancellation of draft deferments and suspension of a striker's privilege for other employment were authorized by President Roosevelt for refusal to comply with orders issued by the War Labor board for settlement of industrial disputes.

Mr. Roosevelt also recommended that war contracts, priorities, fuel or transportation be withheld from companies failing to observe the WLB directives.

Other penalties for non-compliance authorized by Mr. Roosevelt include government seizure of plants in extreme cases, and withholding of dues and cancellation of other union benefits until conformance with the WLB orders.

Office of Economic Stabilization Director Fred Vinson was charged with imposition of the penalties. Of 1,000 cases settled by WLB, there have been only seven instances of non-compliance.

Miners on Trial

Thirty miners who appealed for dismissal of indictments against them for conspiring to conduct a strike in government held pits on the grounds that the Smith-Connally anti-strike law was unconstitutional, were denied their motion and ordered to trial by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Pittsburgh.

Judge Schoonmaker answered the miners' contentions that the law violated the constitutional provisions for freedom of speech and against involuntary servitude, by declaring that the government's war powers were unlimited.

To the miners' charge that the law would prevent them from discussing working conditions in any plant, the government attorney contended the crime of sedition was almost always committed by the utterance of words alone. But that did not prevent punishment for such speech, he said.

DADS' DRAFT:
Certain to Go

With the draft quota for October set at 312,000 men, the War Manpower commission reported that induction of pre-Pearl Harbor dads would begin, with those in non-deferrable jobs being the first to go.

Robert Reynolds

While the WMC was making its announcement, Sen. Robert R. Reynolds of North Carolina declared that congress soon would act to establish a definite draft policy and eliminate the confusion arising from varying WMC directives. Reynolds favored the induction of all single men in the nation before drafting any fathers.

The October quota was set on the basis of the services' goal of 10,800,000 men by January 1. Of these, the army will get 8,300,000, and the navy the rest. However, the navy recently revealed that it had already achieved its mark of 2,665,000 in uniform.

EXPLOSIVES

So huge a quantity of explosives is being turned out by the nation's chemical companies that the government has ordered output be reduced. Less than four months after Pearl Harbor, powder production had surpassed the peak of the first World war. Because of decreased demands for the army and lend-lease shipments, eight army ordnance plants have been placed in a "stand-by" or non-producing status, by Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson.

FOREIGN PACTS:
Due for Congress' O. K.

Agreements that the executive branch of the government may enter into for the temporary management of conquered countries will be subject to a majority vote of the house and senate, according to plans developed in conferences between Secretary of State Cordell Hull and congressional representatives.

Arthur Vandenberg

Such action would give congress a check over the government's policies in the restoration of order in the devastated areas. Since congress would be called upon to appropriate funds for the execution of such policies, it demanded the right to control their expenditures to protect this country's best interests.

In discussing the plan, Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan stated that mere congressional majorities for approving temporary agreements in no way would affect the constitutional provision for a two-thirds vote of the senate for the ratification of a final post-war treaty.

SOUTH PACIFIC:
Finish Job

Heading northward, American airmen nosed their craft for Weewak, New Guinea. Raiding that Jap air and supply base the day before, they had surprised the enemy and shot up 120 planes parked wing-to-wing on the ground.

As they returned, 30 Jap interceptor planes zoomed up. But the American air armada mowed its way through the attackers, knocking out 28. Then sweeping low over the airfield, the Yanks bombed and cannonaded the planes and hangars that had been spared. Of the total of 225 enemy craft that had been sent to Weewak to re-enforce the Japs on the Australian front, 215 were demolished.

Meanwhile, American warships lurking in the Solomons, pounced on a Jap convoy moving supplies to its beleaguered forces. Broadsides struck three enemy destroyers, sinking one. Most of the barges in the convoy were shot up in splinters.

FASTEST TANK

Killing two birds with one stone, the army has produced the M-5 tank, with an automatic gear shift and two Cadillac engines which auto mechanics can easily service on the battle field.

Reputed to be the fastest tank, the M-5 has two hydra-matic transmissions which operate through a transfer unit, to deliver the power of the engines to the tank tracks. This is said to be the first automatic shift ever installed in a military vehicle.

To every one mechanic schooled in air-cooled aircraft engines generally used in tanks, there are 10 mechanics familiar with automobile engines, army officials said. Hence, adoption of an auto engine for tank use will allow the use of many mechanics for servicing on the front with a minimum of instruction.

GAS:
Planes Fill Up

Gasoline for airplanes, ships, tanks, trucks and other vehicles of the armed forces will consume 30.6 per cent of total production east of the Rocky mountains for the rest of this year and approximately 40 per cent by 1945.

Airplane consumption of gas is enormous, heavy bombers eating up a weight of fuel equal to the weight of its engines for each two hours aloft. Flying Fortresses average more than one gallon to a mile. In the Tunisian campaign, 1,100,000 gallons of gas were burned daily in the planes in Maj. Gen. James Doolittle's command.

Civilian allotment in the 17-state East-coast area approximates 13,770,000 gallons of gas daily. When 126 refineries in the U. S. begin producing 100-octane gas for military planes, their capacity will be in excess of the East-coast area's daily quota. Many are in operation, while others are being rushed to completion.

LEND-LEASE:
Record Shipments

America's lend-lease exports during the first half of 1943 exceeded normal U. S. exports for a full year during the 10-year period from 1929 to '39.

In round figures, lend-lease shipments amounted to slightly less than four billion dollars. Other exports of 1¼ billion dollars for which America received payment, brought total shipments to nearly 5¼ billion dollars.

Washington Digest

Peace Planners Emphasize Need for Orderly 'D' Day

Planning Board Report Envisions Reintegration Of Men Into Services Where Skill, Ability Are Recognized.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

Next week's release of "Washington Digest" will be written from Quebec, where H. R. Baukhage covered the history-making Roosevelt-Churchill conference for Western Newspaper Union and its affiliated newspapers.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building
Washington, D. C.

As the plans which received their final approval at the Quebec conference start turning from ink and paper to moving men and machines, the thoughts of other planners turn toward another zero hour—"D" day.

The war is not over by any means but hard-headed people who realize that you can't wait until it rains to prepare for a rainy day know that you can't wait until the sun comes out to buy your summer clothes.

"D" day is as important as "M" day. Demobilization is as big a problem as mobilization. Various plans have been worked on, none has been perfected. The President has offered one. The Republican party will offer another. Industry will present its program. The administration, whoever is at the helm when peace comes, will have a heavy responsibility. The National Resources Planning board has already made a report expressing its opinions on a plan drawn up by a special committee on post-war readjustment which, at least, gives us a point of departure.

Plan Needed Now

The board points out that victims of the war are already coming back and the time is ripe. Only the other day, I went through Walter Reed hospital here and saw some of those victims. Saw photographs of the conditions in which they come back and others showing what medical skill has done for them. I also saw the workshops where wounded men are being rehabilitated, fitted to take up work which, in spite of their handicaps, they could learn to do.

This plan emphasizes the need for an orderly demobilization. It is important to get every man who can be spared from the armed forces, the moment he can be spared without threatening the nation's security, back into civilian life. I know now glad I was when I got out of uniform into civvies after the last war.

But the report emphasizes that still more important than speed is order in demobilization. "We not only want the men out of the armed services; we want to get them into peace services where skills and abilities can be fully recognized, utilized and rewarded." That is the thesis of the planning board.

Responsibility for the placement of veterans in industry is acknowledged by the re-employment division of the selective service system under the selective service act. The selective service system is not perfect but considering the job it had to do, it has worked out in a manner that is a triumph of the democratic method. Draft boards are groups of "neighbors" who pass upon each registrant, and on that basis, select or reject him. The same system will put the soldier back into his old job—if his old job is there, and if he can fill it. But many had no jobs. Others for one reason or another will be unable to fill the ones they had before the war. These cases must be taken care of.

Board's Principles

Business has been shuffled and shifted about just as the men themselves have. It may be difficult to get man and job together. The problem is intricate but the committee has tried to lay down certain principles. Here they are:

1. Three months' furlough at the end of the war at regular base pay not to exceed $100 a month, plus family allowances.
2. Beyond that time, if necessary, unemployment insurance for 26 weeks for those who register with the government employment service.
3. Special aid and counsel regarding readjustment and compensation.
4. Special provision, including tuition and allowance, for the continuation of education interrupted by the war or to follow a special course of training.
5. Veterans credit for old age and survivors' insurance on the basis of service in the armed forces.
6. Opportunities for agricultural employment and settlement for a limited number of well-qualified men. But no dumping of men on farms simply because industrial employment is not immediately available.

Re-Training Program

Similar provisions must be made for war workers as war industries close or change over. Meanwhile, the government will maintain centers where assistance and re-training for civilian jobs can be arranged. In order to prevent a too rapid attempt at change-over of industry, a moderate policy of continuation of war contracts some of which can be continued in the national good.

Of course, nothing can be done permanently to stabilize the labor situation without a rapid expansion of peace-time industry toward a goal of full employment. It is well understood even by the most fervent of government planners that private industry and not the government must eventualy furnish the employment.

Already industry is offering plans of its own but it cannot be expected to do the whole job. One suggestion is that government loans be made to industries turning to peace-time production in proportion to the number of men such industries employ.

Business cannot take over the burden alone. In 1939, we were at peace although we were making a lot of war supplies for the Allies. Then 4.1 million workers were employed in munitions making. Eight and six-tenths millions were working on farms or agricultural pursuits. At the end of last year, the workers in war plants had more than doubled. They were 10.5 millions. In agriculture, unemployment has not greatly changed, comparatively speaking; farm workers amount to 8.9 millions. But the men in the armed forces more than doubled. In the same period the unemployed had decreased from 8.7 millions to 1 million. (Some of these we shall always have with us—the lame, the halt and, of course, the lazy.) But it is estimated there were 900,000 persons jobless and deserving work in July of this year.

There may be points to the committee's plan to which objections will be raised. It is not offered as a working drawing, merely as a basis of discussion, but how much better such a procedure is than the policy after the last war when the soldier was a football and where each congress tried to vote more dollars out of the treasury without rhyme or reason; money which didn't provide jobs, which in many cases, pitifully failed of its purpose, and in others simply filled the coffers of the bootlegger and the shark and left the recipient nothing.

Diary of a Broadcaster

Over the land, the Victory gardens are bringing in their rich yields to many a person who probably never worked as hard—physically—for his supper before. And probably never had more fresh, sweet and luscious vegetables.

But I wandered over a farm recently that was crying for rain. I couldn't help thinking, as I pushed through a wood lot beside a shrunken stream, stained brown from the yellow leaves that carpeted it, how all the living things were anguishing with thirst. Twigs snapped under one's feet like dry bones, there was an ugly growl instead of a happy hum from the insects—it seemed that only the tough blue-bottles could survive. Not far from the stream where the earth in the bed of a spring was still damp, one cricket was singing gratefully but there were few of his fellows about. Leaves on tall weeds hung to the stem like a flag at half-staff on a day when no breeze stirs, one yellow-headed flower stood out in a spot of color, it looked like a very sleepy little girl, her damp locks glued to her face almost concealing her tired smile.

I thought: "I wish I could stay here until the rain comes singing through the leaves, wetting cracked lips of the peeling furrows—I believe I would hear a real hymn of rejoicing go up."

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

In Britain, about 150,000 tons of timber, salvaged from bombed buildings, have been refinished and made into crates and boxes for important war uses.

With German war nerves somewhat frayed at the edges, the Nazis are conducting a politeness campaign to ease the irritation and get Germans to be nicer to each other.

The French Academy of Arts and Sciences has decided not to nominate any new members for membership until the war is over.

ON THE HOME FRONT

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THIS old fashioned saw tooth quilt pattern has been used for the border of many handsome quilts. It is so modern looking and so simple to piece that it should serve many decorative purposes. Here it trims kitchen curtains of unbleached muslin. In addition to its old time use its angular note would make it effective as a border for luncheon cloths, aprons and various other purposes.

To make a pattern cut a square of cardboard, then cut diagonally; one half will make a triangle pattern. The size suggested in sketch may vary according to the purpose in mind. If a bright color is used for the plain triangles, a narrow border will make a good showing.

Lawyer Met His Match In Tinsmith, On and Off

A lawyer, noted for his success in cross-examination, asked a witness how long he had worked at his business of tin-roofing.

"I have worked at it off and on for some time."

"How long off and on?"

"Sixty-five years."

"How old are you?"

"Sixty-five."

"Then you have been a tin-roofer from birth?"

"No, sir; of course I haven't."

"Then why do you say you have worked at your trade 65 years?"

"Because you asked how long off and on I had worked at it. I have worked at the trade 65 years—20 years on and 45 off."

Here there was a roar in the courtroom, but not at the expense of the witness, and the lawyer hurriedly finished his examination in great confusion.

Got Something You Want to Sell?
Most people have a piece of furniture, a farm implement, a sporting rifle which they have discarded and which they no longer want.
Some things are put in the attic, or stored away in the barn, or left lying about, getting of less and less value each year.
WHY NOT SELL THEM?
Somebody wants those very things which have become of no use to you. Why not let us find that somebody
BY PLACING A WANT AD IN THIS NEWSPAPER?

Sportlight

by GRANTLAND RICE

A RESTLESS corporal handed out lately the toughest quiz we have stumbled over in some time.

"Can you tell me," he wrote, "just how 'sport' got its beginning—just how it happened to start?"

Jack Dempsey

We had never thought much about this before. To be certain we called upon a famed historian who had the right answer.

"You would never guess it," he said. "Many people believe that sport drew its beginning for the sake of physical development, or as part of war training. This isn't true. Sport came directly from religion.

"In the pre-dawn age of man certain forms of spiritual exercises came along. These were accompanied by certain phases where masses of people swayed, stamped and jumped to give vent to their emotions.

"It was from these demonstrations that sport began, where running, jumping, wrestling and boxing were undoubtedly on the primordial list. Religious pageants were soon blended with sporting contests in the worship of early gods."

What 'Athlete' Means

"How many know," our expert continued, "just what 'athlete' first meant?

"It indicated training and competition in preparation for war. Early Greeks were smart enough to discover that good boxers, wrestlers, runners and jumpers made the best soldiers. Sport gave them an edge in speed, stamina, quickness, and all reflexes needed for action.

"Hitler used the Greek idea in getting ready for this war.

"He began training not a few thousands, but actually millions of boys and young men over ten years ago. Up to 1936, Germany had always been the biggest Olympic flop, winning practically nothing. But seven years ago that country had one of the strongest all-around Olympic teams ever sent into competition. And in addition to the team itself, there were several million others who had come into far better physical shape for the game of war."

I happened to be at the 1936 Olympic show in Berlin. Before this time Germany had gone in largely for mass calisthenics.

But some time before that year the Germans largely discarded calisthenic drills for competitive sport—soccer, football, rowing, boxing, running, jumping and hard riding, where not just a few stars were featured, but the vast majority of those athletes between 12 and 21 were sent into hard training.

It was this, plus her hard mechanical strength, that gave Germany her terrific army in 1941.

A Lesson to Follow

This is a lesson the United States can use—sport, competitive athletic exercises for the millions in place of the few.

We need a far greater all-around development of those youngsters ranging from 12 to 20, where millions today get little chance to play developing games.

As Jack Dempsey told me at his coast guard headquarters, "Of the 3,000 men I am trying to help train, less than a thousand have played any games, boxed, wrestled, or indulged in football or baseball. Naturally, they are clumsy, awkward, slow, and lacking in confidence at the start.

"You should see the difference just a few weeks means when they find out that a punch on the chin or a head-hold doesn't kill them, also when they learn to throw a few punches on their own. It never occurred to me before what a big part of our young population never had a chance to get physically and mentally equipped for contest games."

Some one in authority should go to work along these lines.

Both army and navy could stand more competitive sport than they are getting today.

Certainly the kids from 12 or 13 up to 18 can. This is one of the reasons why navy's decision to keep football going was a fine thing for both navy and the country at large.

Secretary Stimson has forbidden men in the army colleges to engage in any intercollegiate sport.

We still believe the army made a serious mistake in stopping football—in spite of the fact that over 90 per cent of its higher officers were strongly in favor of navy's plan.

The Impossible Spot

There are any number of impossible spots in racing, but I can give you the top one—"Don't buy or own a race horse."

This reflection came to me while discussing the big yearling sale that was held at Keeneland in Lexington, Ky., a few weeks ago.

There are two good reasons.

One is that the odds are 50 to 1 you'll never make a quarter, but will be lucky to lose important cash.

The second is that you will soon be losing your friends.

Stuffed Eggplant Will Keep Your Points Down!
(See Recipes Below)

Harvest Foods

Late summer is the truck gardener's paradise, and this summer we might well say the Victory gardener's paradise, for there are many gay and attractive foods ripening now which may make a truly appetizing appearance on your table. For example, the season's choicest tomatoes in their fullest, ripest red make merry at the table now.

There's also golden-eared, tender sweet corn, at its best when picked not more than half an hour before eating. And one of the most dramatic vegetables to do justice to fall dinners is the eggplant—smooth, deep purple and shiny in appearance.

Most of you are undoubtedly familiar with eggplant served sliced and fried—and there's no doubt it's good that way. But for a change, try it baked with a savory stuffing and make it a main dish feature of your dinner. The total cooking time for preparing it in this new way is only 35 minutes—10 minutes for boiling the eggplant in rapidly boiling water, and then 25 minutes baking in a moderate oven.

Stuffed Eggplant.
(Serves 6 to 8)

- 1 eggplant
- 1 cup bread croutons
- 4 strips bacon, cut in squares
- 1 tablespoon onion, minced
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 egg

Cook whole eggplant in boiling water for 10 minutes. Cut lengthwise slice from top of eggplant. Remove pulp with a spoon, leaving a substantial shell. Chop pulp. Add croutons. Fry bacon. Brown onion in bacon fat. Add to eggplant pulp. Add the egg and season with salt and pepper. Fill eggplant shell with the mixture and top with the following:

Corn Flake Crumb Topping.

- 2 cups corn flakes
- 1 egg yolk
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- Paprika
- Butter

Roll corn flakes to fine crumbs, combine with egg yolk, mustard, lemon juice and salt. Cover stuffed eggplant with crumb mixture, dot with butter and sprinkle with paprika. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 25 minutes. Serve on a platter with corn on the cob and fresh, sliced tomatoes.

English Baked Squash.
(Serves 6)

- 1 quart peeled, thinly sliced Hubbard squash
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 4 tablespoons sugar
- ½ cup rich cream
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon

Place squash in well-greased baking dish. Sprinkle with salt and sugar. Add cream and sprinkle with cinnamon. Bake covered in a slow (325-degree) oven for about 50 minutes.

Another vegetable comes in for honors—and very different but delicious is this dish, too!

Sour Cream Cabbage.
(Serves 5 to 6)

- 1 head of cabbage
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 clove garlic
- ½ cup sour cream
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 egg

Shred the head of cabbage medium fine. Heat the butter in skillet and cook in it slowly the clove of garlic, minced fine. Add cabbage and ¼ cup water. Cover tightly. Bring to a quick steam, reduce heat and cook for 10 more minutes. Just before removing from range, add sour cream sauce made by mixing together the sour cream, vinegar, sugar, salt and egg beaten light. Pour over cabbage and bring to a quick boil. Serve at once.

Here's a spaghetti dish that has a fall tang to it, and is excellent served with fried eggplant and apricot upside-down cake.

Sausages and Spaghetti.
(Serves 6)

- 8 link sausages
- 1 small onion, sliced
- 1 green pepper, chopped
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 2½ cups tomatoes
- 1½ cups spaghetti, cooked

Cut sausages in inch lengths; fry until golden brown. Add onion and green pepper and brown lightly. Add seasonings and flour and blend. Add tomatoes and spaghetti. Bake in a greased baking dish in moderate (350-degree) oven 30 minutes.

Caramel Cinnamon Muffins.
(Makes 1½ dozen 2-inch muffins)

- 2 cups sifted flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 egg
- 2 tablespoons light corn syrup or honey
- 1 cup milk
- 2 tablespoons melted shortening

Sift together flour, baking powder, cinnamon and salt. Beat egg, add syrup, milk and shortening. Blend thoroughly and add to flour mixture. Stir only until flour is moistened. Bake in a moderately hot oven (425 degrees) 20 minutes. Prepare muffin pans as follows for these muffins: Into each muffin cup, put ½ teaspoon butter or margarine and 1 teaspoon corn syrup. Fill with batter ⅔ of an inch full.

Lynn Says:

Color in Your Meals: Do you realize that your eyes eat that food before you actually eat it yourself? If food looks dull and unattractive, your appetite lags and the food, if eaten is consumed without much relish.

The eye wants contrast. Pick foods that go well together. You can serve several green vegetables for one meal, but not several all-white vegetables or all-red.

Combine meat and vegetables on one platter to get a design and save plates besides! Use garnishes with care and give them an opportunity to bring out the most in your foods.

Sprinkle beets with a little lemon juice to make them a more vibrant red. Cook green vegetables only until done to assure them of being crisp, green.

A dash of lemon juice on apples, pears or other fresh fruit will prevent it from darkening.

GOVERNMENT OPERATION THROUGH BUREAUS

THE AMERICAN CONSTITUTION provides that our laws shall be enacted by congress, enforced by the executive branch of the government and interpreted by the judiciary department. However, it does not entirely work that way today.

Some 10 years ago congress began passing along to the President its authority to make laws. He was given authority to issue executive orders covering many subjects, and these executive orders are as much a part of the law of the land as are the laws passed by congrses.

During the past 10 years there have been 3,279 of these executive order laws promulgated by the President. During the session of the last congress, 1941-42, there were 850 laws enacted by congress, and in that same period, the President issued 667 executive order laws. Since the American declaration of war and up to the first of July of this year, congress passed 587 laws, and in that period the President issued 387 executive orders.

Between the legislative and executive branches of the federal government new laws are being produced so rapidly that even competent attorneys cannot keep up with the procession.

The President was given authority to establish governmental bureaus and agencies which are accountable only to the President. Seventy-one such alphabetical agencies have been created by executive orders.

About the only two subjects on which congress has not passed its authority over to the President are those of taxes and appropriations. Congress can, and has in a few cases, called a halt on the bureaucratic agencies by withholding money to pay the costs of their operation. In some cases, the President found it possible to continue the bureaus of which congress disapproved by paying the bills from the war emergency fund which was provided for his use and for which he did not have to render an accounting. For this war emergency fund congress has provided $631,000,000 since July, 1940. When another $25,000,000 was asked for, it was granted just before the present recess, but in doing so, an unruly senate tacked onto it a provision that no one part of the amount could be used to pay the expense of operating any bureau for which congress had refused a direct appropriation. For the President it was take it with that provision, or not at all. Because of that action, some of the bureaucrats may be off the payroll.

STANDARDS OF LIVING

WE LAMENT the condition of what we say is a submerged one-third of our American population. As compared with nine-tenths of the people of China and others of the Far Eastern nations, the submerged one-third of America are living in the lap of luxury. If the condition of our own submerged is to be improved it must be through greater production and better methods of distribution.

Our agricultural scientists and engineers have done, and are doing, their part. Through development of improved strains they have multiplied our acre production. By the application of machinery they have reduced the needed per acre man hours of labor. But the statesmen and economists have not solved the problem of distribution between nations. While the people of the Orient starve, we suffer from a crop surplus.

When the standard of living can be raised in China and the Chinese people have money or credit with which to buy the food and other things they need, our increased production will take care of our submerged one-third. Higher wage scales abroad mean more markets for American farms and more jobs for American workers.

OUR FIRST ACT IN SICILY, after getting a foothold on shore, was providing food for the starving people. That should weigh heavily in our favor and cause other people in Europe to hope to be captured. It was a case where the American farm was doing more for the Allied cause than the American munitions plant.

TIME MAY, and probably will change conditions, but for some years, following the firing of the last shot of the war, the United States, the British Empire and Russia must guide the policies of the world. It must be an armed and unified guidance if we are to escape more and greater wars.

Noisy Gliders

Noise within a closed glider traveling at 150 miles an hour is nearly as loud as that within a plane with engines, owing to the violent agitation of the air as it sweeps over the wings and about the fuselage, says Collier's. This noise, in many instances, has reached a level of 115 decibels, or higher than that in a boiler factory.

BEAT THE HEAT with its heat rash misery. Sprinkle on Mexsana, formerly Mexican Heat Powder. Costs little, and you save lots in larger sizes.

Many Types of Planes

The Allied and Axis air forces use today about 400 types of war planes.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Rubber shortage will cause motor trucks to be operated this year only 60 per cent of their 1941 mileages, according to OWI. Ton mileage haul in intercity service, however, was up 10 per cent early this year.

Rubber latex, a milk-like substance, contains from 30 to 40 per cent solids; cow's milk has only 12 per cent solids.

Add lettuce to the list of rubber producers! Tests of three varieties of lettuce by the University of California, it has been reported, showed high content of rubber latex.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The mess kit is one of the most important items in the Soldier's equipment. It consists generally of a pan, a plastic canteen and cup, a fork, knife and spoon, all in a canvas pack cover. The total cost runs up to about $2.00.

Canteens and other items such as handles on knives and forks, formerly made of aluminum, are now plastic. Alloy has replaced stainless steel. You can buy many of these mess kits for our boys with your purchases of War Bonds and Stamps. Invest at least 10 percent of your income in War Bonds or Stamps every pay day and top the quota in your county. U. S. Treasury Department

3RD WAR LOAN DRIVE

—FOR INVASION

• Put a circle around the date—Thursday, September 9th. For that's the day the 3rd War Loan Drive starts.

On that day, you will be asked to go the limit to back our valiant fighting men. You will be asked to do your share in the greatest invasion the world has ever seen. Answer your country's roll call!

Your part is to back this invasion by investing in at least one EXTRA $100 War Bond in September. That's in addition to your regular War Bond purchases. Invest more than $100—a lot more—if you possibly can.

The job is big. Everyone must do his full share if we are to put this drive over the top.

War Bonds are the safest investment in the world. For your own sake, for your Country's sake, put every spare dime and dollar in War Bonds during the 3rd War Loan Drive.

BACK THE ATTACK—WITH WAR BONDS

See Here, Private Hargrove!

by Marion Hargrove

WNU SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: Private Marion Hargrove, late of the editorial staff of the Charlotte (N. C.) News, has been inducted into the army, classified as a cook and has spent a large share of his "spare" moments on KP duty. He has taken time out, however, to advise prospective doughboys to "paint the town red" before induction and once in the army to "keep an open mind" as the "first three weeks are the hardest." His constant assignment to KP is the despair of his sergeant who believes Hargrove will never learn to be a crack soldier. His last experience was a rifle inspection in which he fared badly. Now he begins a new episode concerning advancement in rank.

CHAPTER IV

Selectee Joseph G. Gantt, late of Liberty, South Carolina, came out for reveille this morning with a grin you could have used for a foot rule. He held both his arms against the front of his shirt in a queerly strained posture and blushed happily every time someone looked at him.

"The heat's got the boy," I told Gene Shumate. "Looks like the best ones always go first."

"That ain't the heat," said Cookie. "He seems to have a cramp in his arms." We looked at Citizen-Soldier Gantt's arms again. Then, for the first time, we noticed two shining stripes on each sleeve. Citizen-Soldier Gantt was a corporal now!

"Heavens to Betsy," we shouted in unison for his benefit. "Is that punk a corporal?" Corporal Gantt acknowledged the tribute by joyfully changing his color to a holiday red. The grin widened until his ears hung perilously on the brink of his lips. It took him half the morning to sober his spirits to working conditions.

"Heavens to Betsy," we shouted in unison for his benefit. "Is that punk a corporal?"

Corporal Gantt has been in the Army exactly four months. He had been an acting corporal for three weeks before he got his stripes.

Heaven grant him strength for the ordeal ahead.

The term "buck private" was explained to us this afternoon. It refers to the Old Army Game, "passing the buck." The sergeant is first called on the carpet for a mistake in his platoon. The sergeant seeks out the corporal and gives him a dressing-down. The corporal passes the buck by scalding the ears of the private. The private doesn't even have a mule to kick, so he can't pass the buck any farther. He keeps it. That makes him a buck private.

The Army, I find, has many subtle ways to trap the unwary into volunteering for work. First there was the sergeant over at the Reception Center who came through the recreation hall one afternoon calling for "Private Smith." Four men answered. All four were put to work picking up cigarette stubs.

On the call, "Anybody in here know how to handle a truck?" don't speak up. The last three were seen later pushing a hand truck up the battery street to haul rifle racks.

Corporal Henry Ussery is to date the most dangerous conscriptor. This week he came into the squadroom to ask if anyone was good at shorthand. Three citizen-soldiers admitted that they were.

"Report to the kitchen," the corporal laughed. "The mess sergeant says he's shorthanded on dishwashers."

"One of the most solemn and responsible trusts of a soldier," Sergeant "Curly" Taylor said today, "is his guard duty." Sergeant Taylor, who has been in the Army for nineteen years and probably knows more about guard duty than any man in Fort Bragg, is teaching us about guard duty now.

The soldier is called to this duty about once a month. For a twenty-four-hour period, he is on two hours, and off four hours, and he "walks his post in a military manner," guarding the peace and possessions and safety of a part of the post. He is responsible only to a corporal of the guard, a sergeant of the guard, an officer of the day, and the commanding officer.

The guard, or sentry, is known chiefly to the evening and morning public by two expressions. "Halt, who goes there!" and "Corporal of the guard! Post number three!" The former, Sergeant Taylor said with his best poker face, has given the Army considerable worry at times.

According to the sergeant, the guard is instructed to give the "halt" order three times and then shoot. Over-enthusiastic rookies from the back counties, he said, had been known to go like this: "Halt halt halt! Ka-POW!" (You can believe it or leave it; I never question what the sergeant says.)

There was one rookie guard, he said, who halted him, questioned him and allowed him to pass. After he had gone several steps, the sentry again shouted, "Halt!" Sergeant Taylor came back and wanted to know—politely, of course—how come. "My orders," said the guard, "say to holler 'Halt' three times and then shoot. You're just on your second halt now!"

The other popular expression is the come-a-running call that goes up the line to the guardhouse when a guard takes a prisoner or "meets any case not covered by instruction" (General Order No. 9). If the guard is on the seventh post, he sings out, "Corporal of the guard! Post number seven!" The guard on the sixth post picks up the cry and it goes down the line like that.

There's the story about the officer of the day who questioned a new sentry, as officers of the day frequently do in order to test the sentries. "Suppose," the OD asked, "that you shouted, 'Halt' three times and I kept going, what would you do?"

The guard was apparently stumped by the question. Finally he answered, "Sir, I'd call the corporal of the guard."

The officer of the day gloated. "Aha!" he said. "So you'd call the corporal of the guard, would you? And just why would you call the corporal of the guard?"

This time the answer was prompt and decisive—and correct. "To haul away your dead body, sir!"

Heroes are born, not made.

There's one job here that is nothing but goldbricking in itself. That's the latrine orderly detail. You go to work after lunch and spend the rest of the afternoon watching the fire in the water heater and feeding it regularly—every two hours. The next morning you sweep and mop the washroom and spend the rest of the time until lunch watching the fire again. All in all, you lead a lazy, carefree existence.

There was a slip-up somewhere yesterday. I was latrine orderly instead of a KP. It was probably the mess sergeant's idea.

The boys started out after lunch for an afternoon of drilling in the warm Carolina sunshine and learning to drive trucks across ditches.

An hour later, I decided to take a casual look at the boiler. When I opened the furnace-room door, a blast of strong brownish smoke struck me to the ground. I lay there for several minutes, tapping my forehead thoughtfully, while more smoke poured out.

When it still hadn't slackened after five minutes, I crawled under the layer of smoke to the boiler. There the sickening vapor was, pouring nonchalantly through clinks in the door.

"Don't come telling me about it," said Sergeant "Ma" Davidson. "Take out the pipes and clean them. All of them."

I had to see the top sergeant to get my instructions. When I returned to Sergeant Davidson I was happy again.

"Ma," I told him, "the top kick says for you to supervise the job."

The sergeant was furious with rage and frustration. I grabbed a screwdriver and he grabbed Private Downer, who had a black mark by his name for not wearing his identification tag. The three of us started work.

First, put out the fire in the boiler. Shake it down, throw ashes on it. It still burns. Shake it down more, throw sand on it. Still burns. Close the bottom door, shake it down more, throw ashes and sand on it. Curse it. After too long, it dies.

The man who devised the system for connecting an indoor boiler and an outdoor chimney should be parched with his own pipes and stuffed with oily soot.

Unscrew a pipe, lift it gently, coax it from its socket. Easy does it. Careful there. When you have it almost out, inhale for your sigh of relief. Crash! The whole network of pipes bounces off the floor scattering ashes and soot over half the battery area.

After half an hour of scrubbing and wiping the interior regions of all the pipes, they're ready to go up again. All but one of them are in place and the last one is ready to be fitted. Careful there! Easy, now! Watch out! Catch it! CRASH!

The boys come in from the drill field at 4:30 and head for the showers. There is no hot water.

"Get a load of that Hargrove," they fume, in an unnecessarily nasty manner. "He gets a job where all he has to do is throw a shovel of coal on the fire every two hours. And then when we come in, there ain't no hot water. There ain't even no fire. Throw the bum out."

I grinned weakly as I reported to the supply sergeant for work. "You must be that one Sergeant Thomas W. Israel I've heard so many nice things about."

"No, little man," he said. "I'm the one Sergeant Israel you've been running your loud mouth about. I'm the nice sergeant who always gives you the wrong clothing sizes and hides your laundry and does all those awful things you've been telling about me."

"So help me, sergeant," I protested. "I never named thee but to praise. Somebody's been trying to poison your mind against me."

"I am also the nice sergeant," he said, "who is going to let you earn your seventy cents today. Take off your fatigue blouse, my man, and prepare to sweat. Today we make progress. We are going to unpack rifles."

It seems to me that when the manufacturer prepares to pack a box of Army rifles, his cruel streak comes out at its worst. From the look of the rifles, he has his three-year-old daughter prepare a compound of molasses, pitch, and used motor oil—the goolier the better. He slings each gun into the resulting mess, sloshes it around for a while, and then lays it neatly into the box.

You use a swab about the size of a tablecloth to wipe the grease from the rifle. When you're halfway through the first rifle, you have to use the gun to wipe the grease from the cloth. When you have finished, you need a large coal shovel to wipe the grease off yourself.

There is nothing so conducive to itching as the inability to scratch. Just when the molasses-pitch-axle grease mixture covers your hand to the point where you can't see the outlines of the fingers, that left nostril starts tingling. At first it itches only a little and you decide to suffer it. So you don't wipe your hands on the seat of your trousers. Instead you pick up another rifle and your hand sinks to the elbow in the goo which wraps it. This is the stage where your nose gets peevish and impatient and decides to itch in earnest.

Finally, you decide to give in. You wipe your hands—an operation which takes a good three or four minutes for satisfactory results. You lift your hand to scratch your nose, only to find that your nose isn't itching any more.

I was doing fairly well this morning, even when you take the itch into consideration, until the mess sergeant happened to stroll by.

"Hello, little man," he sings gaily, with a horrible gleam in his eyes. "You've not been around to see me for a long time. Aren't mad, are you?"

I look at my hands, at the rifle, at the old shoe, and at the mess sergeant. I hold my tongue. Health is wealth.

"We miss you terribly in the kitchen," he coos, "even when you go griping around that my food is the worst in the Army. I just saw the first sergeant and I asked him to let you be a KP just as soon as he can spare you. Oh, we're going to do wonders to that kitchenware, you and I."

He pats me on the forehead with ominous tenderness and departs.

The sergeant yelled out of the window at me, so I dropped my broom and went upstairs.

Five paces away, he turns for a parting shot. "Blabbermouth!" he snorts.

I suppose he's good to his mother, though.

The sergeant yelled out the window at me, so I dropped my broom in the battery street and went upstairs. He was sitting on the foot locker, thoughtfully rubbing his chin with the handle of his mess-kit knife.

"Ralph Oxford got called up to the battery commander's office this morning," he said, "and do you know what the Old Man gave him?"

"I've got a pretty good idea," I said. "If he gave him what he gave me when I got called up, it has four letters, starts with an h and ends with an l."

The sergeant closed his eyes and slowly shook his head. "Oxford isn't a sore thumb to the platoon like you are," he groaned. "Oxford got a bright red stripe to wear around his sleeve."

"Oxford's no fireman," I told him.

"You're darn right he ain't," said the sergeant. "Starting with today, Oxford and Zuber and Roff and Maciejewski and Pappas and Mihalakakos are acting corporals!"

I knew there must be a moral to all this, so I wanted for him to go on.

"Now, why couldn't you have been one of those six boys?" he asked.

BLOOD DONORS

One of the ways of serving one's country these days is by giving some blood to be stored until such time as it is needed by our wounded soldiers. The transfusion of the blood itself or concentrations of the blood bring many a shocked soldier back from the brink.

There are what are called professional donors, or givers of blood who are "on call" from various hospitals, and the giving of a pint of blood every couple of months causes no faintness or weakness at the time or afterward.

Such, however, is the demand for blood and so willing are men and women to help in the war that many are volunteering for this service at the Red Cross or other blood depots.

As some of these "new" donors are high-strung or nervous individuals who have conscientiously felt that they should give blood, a few of them may faint during the giving of the blood or even after they return to their work. It can readily be seen that a man or woman who faints after he or she returns to work is not likely to encourage other workers to give their blood.

It is agreed that those who faint from other sights or events in life are likely to faint when they give up some blood, but fainting should not ordinarily occur in others who are not in the habit of fainting.

An article in the British Lancet states that factors which do seem to contribute to fainting are fatigue and hunger; persons who hurry to their appointment to give blood are likely to faint, as are those who have not eaten for three hours or more.

"It is stated that the temperature and moisture of the room are not important, but it should be airy and light, with beds rather than couches, and no screens used, as there is comfort in the knowledge that others are going through the same ordeal."

In general blood donors should remain lying down for 15 minutes, and after refreshment should sit on a chair for another 15 minutes, leaving the hospital not sooner than 30 minutes after giving their blood.

These points should be kept in mind by those giving blood for others. First, do not hurry to the appointment; second, go within one to two hours after eating; third, lie down for 15 minutes after giving blood; fourth, sit down for another 15 minutes before returning to work.

Pain in Shoulders, Arms and Neck

During the last war, among soldiers and civilians there were many cases where the patients suffered with pains back of neck, in shoulder and down the arms to the hand. It was thought to be a form of rheumatism or arthritis, and teeth, tonsils, gums, gall bladder and other parts were carefully examined but often no cause could be found. Finally an X-ray of the neck, chest and shoulder showed in some cases a "short" or extra rib which was causing pressure on the nerve which accompanies one of the muscles running from the top of the first rib to spinal bones in back of neck. The removal of this spur, or short rib, gave instant relief in these cases.

In Archives of Physical Therapy, Dr. K. G. Hanson states that this group of symptoms called cervicobrachial syndrome (name of the nerves involved) may be due to: (1) high first ribs which do not give the muscle and nerve room between the bones of the shoulder, (2) extra rib or a rib or spur on the neck spinal bone where there should be no rib or spur, (3) pressure on the muscle running from first rib to spinal bones in neck, (4) poor posture, standing or sitting which makes a pull on the bones where this muscle is fastened at back of neck. It is this pull that causes the pain in practically all cases because the patient lets himself sag.

The treatment, naturally, would be to remove this pressure and this is obtained by rest and support during the acute or severe stage. Then exercises are given to hold the shoulders high—arms in line and above the shoulders, rolling of shoulders—arms at full length in line with shoulders; standing and sitting erect, shoulders high and back, chest out, chin in. Heat is applied before and after exercise. This will help 85 per cent of the cases.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—Will you please tell me something about arthritis?

A.—Arthritis is the new name for rheumatism. Can be caused by infection, wrong food, injury, exposure to cold and dampness.

Q.—Is there any help that can be given for eyes affected by diabetes after the disease has been brought under control?

A.—Would depend upon what damage had been done—cataract, inflammation of the retina, etc.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

ISRAEL CALLED TO BE A HOLY PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT—Leviticus 19:1-4, 11-18, 32-34.

GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye holy; for I am holy.—I Peter 1:16.

Labor Day, 1943, with a war-torn world, finds us facing a social order deeply divided regarding the rights and wrongs of the relationship between man and man, especially capital and labor.

For these many years we have talked of a planned economy where kindness and justice shall control all dealings of man with his fellow man. But to accomplish such a result apart from the hand of God to guide and restrain, has proved to be impossible.

Selfishness and sin control too much of the thought and action of our world. We need to be reminded, as was Israel in our lesson, that God has called us to be a holy people. His holiness is not just something of which one sings in a hymn or talks in a sermon. It means among other things, real social justice.

God has always stood for social righteousness. The underlying moral law of the universe demands it, and the law of God as revealed to His people developed and implemented it for successful functioning, were we only wise enough to see and follow it.

It is time that all God's people emphasize God's moral principles in the life of society. Never forgetting that its first business is to preach the redeeming gospel of Christ, the church ought also to make its influence felt for social righteousness.

Our lesson speaks first of the foundational matter in all social justice, namely:

I. Holiness of Heart Before God (Lev. 19:1-4).

Because God is holy, His people were to be holy. It was not a matter of choice or impulse. They belonged to a holy God, they were to be a holy people.

There is an idea current in the church today which has served Satan well, namely, that holiness of life is something which is not required; that it is expected only of a few folk who are spiritually minded, and that the other professed followers of Christ may go on living a worldly, careless, powerless life. It is the devil's own lie. God expects every Christian to be holy.

Such rightness with God shows itself in a rightness with others, which we note as our second point:

II. Holiness of Life Before Men (Lev. 19:11-18, 32-34).

How intensely practical and workable in daily experience were the laws here given to Israel. They are just as apropos to our present day.

1. Honesty (vv. 11-13). No stealing, no perjury, no lying, no oppression, no withholding of wages, none of these could be tolerated, for they dishonored God's name. Think what the elimination of dishonesty in dealing between men would accomplish. Most of our social problems would be solved overnight. Merchants would do well to read verses 35 and 36 in this connection.

2. Kindness (v. 14). The deaf cannot hear what we say about them, nor can the blind see what we do. But the eternal God hears and sees, and He expects us to be kind to them.

3. Fairness (vv. 15, 16). Some assume that a man must be right because he is rich. Others are equally sure that the poor are always worthy of special consideration.

Note the condemnation of the talebearer. Every gossip who reads these words knows that God condemns that evil practice. Nor does He countenance indifference to the welfare of others. Their blood cries out to Him for deliverance (v. 16).

4. Love (vv. 17, 18). "Love thy neighbor as thyself." That is the standard. How much have we done to meet it?

A rebuke may be necessary, but love will not permit grudges, or the seeking of vengeance, even when we have been wronged.

5. Respect (vv. 3, 32). God's Word always stresses the need of a right attitude toward parents. Children need to learn anew the lesson of verse 3.

Then there are the aged (v. 32). Old age pensions doubtless have their place in our complex social order, but perhaps they would not be needed if men and women honored the hoary head and the face of an old man.

A pension does not take the place of honor and love for the aged, even though it may pay the bills. God has high standards.

6. Consideration (vv. 33, 34). The man who knows God will not be party to taking advantage of a stranger. He remembers that he too has been a stranger. To meet with loving kindness and tender care when one is in a strange place should inspire one to go and do likewise.

Kidneys Must Work Well-

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove excess fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at nights, swelling.

Why not try Doan's Pills? They do more than relieve symptoms—they help the kidneys. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

CHINESE BLACK MARKET

If you think the U. S. Black Market is profitable, take a look at operations in China. A fountain pen costs $10,000 Chinese currency in Chungking. Even with the Chinese dollar worth only five cents this is $500 in U. S. dollars and a lot of dough to pay for a fountain pen.

You can also understand why U. S. fliers load up with lipstick before going to China. A lipstick brings $5,000 in Chinese dollars in Chungking. This is about $250 in U. S. currency.

This is also why lend-lease has sent a certain amount of silk stockings, champagne, perfume and other luxuries to Chinese war lords. They are sent to counteract similar imports by the Japanese which have a very undermining influence on a war lord worried over maintenance of his love-nest.

RUBBER DELUGE

Officials in the office of the rubber administrator are beginning to wonder what they can do with the hundreds of thousands of tons of synthetic rubber which will come from the new plants next year. It seems a little late, but they are now facing the elementary question of whether or not the tire companies can handle the vast quantities of synthetic rubber.

The greatest amount of rubber ever processed by the nation's rubber companies in one year was 540,000 tons. But next year we shall have nearly one million tons to deal with. Obviously, the present facilities will be inadequate.

But the problem is aggravated by the fact that tire manufacturing machinery has been knocked down and stored away so that rubber companies could convert to production for the war. Instead of tires, they have been making rubber boats, balloons, tank treads and life rafts.

Thus we have the problem of finding new plant space in which to bring that machinery back into production, and the further problem of creating entirely new productive facilities to take care of the increased quantities of rubber which will be available for manufacture.

SOLOMONS ISLAND

Few maps of the world show the location of Solomons Island, Maryland, a pinprick in Chesapeake bay. Locally it is famous only for its fishing and the fact that the steamships Leviathan, Mount Vernon and Monticello were laid up there to rust in deference to private shipowners.

Since the war, however, Solomons Island has become an important naval installation, and the navy department recently arranged for the shipment of some airplanes to Solomons Island on an aircraft carrier built for the British in a West coast yard. While the carrier was going through the Panama canal locks, London radioed asking its whereabouts.

"We're on our way to Solomons Island," replied the carrier's commanding officer.

"Why are you going to Solomons Island and where is it?" London queried in amazement.

"Get in touch with the embassy in Washington," radioed back the ship's commanding officer.

After some anxious moments, London learned in code that the carrier's commanding officer had not mutinied, nor was he going to the Solomon Islands, but to the U. S. naval base at Solomons Island, Maryland.

SMALL BUSINESS BLOW-UP

The government's program for the relief of small business is headed for trouble when congress reconvenes next month.

At secret sessions of the senate small business committee, headed by Senator James Murray of Montana, small business men complained about their inability to get government loans for war contracts and sub-contracts, while billions of dollars of government money is being shelled out to big corporations.

The senate committee heard complaints about the tight-fisted loan policies of the Smaller War Plants corporation.

One example given the senate committee was that of the Riverside Boatyard company of Miami, which tried to get a loan of only $10,000 from the Smaller War Plants corporation to complete a war contract. After being turned down, the company got the $10,000 loan from a private bank within 24 hours.

As a result, Senator James Murray of Montana, chairman of the senate small business committee, is planning some close scrutiny of the Smaller War Plants corporation.

When you see news photos of soldiers "off duty" in camp or behind the battle-lines—notice how often you'll see them smoking a cigarette. There's a good reason for that. Army officials say that cigarettes are an appreciable factor in maintaining morale—and the soldiers themselves add that a carton of cigarettes from home is always welcome. What brand? Well, sales records in Post Exchanges and Canteens show that Camels are the favorite cigarette with men in all the services. THE MARLINTON JOURNAL

"JOURNAL — BELONGING TO THE DAY"—Webster.

VOL. 25—NO. 26 MARLINTON, WEST VIRGINIA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1943 PRICE: $1.50 A YEAR

Politics, . . . We Reckon, . . .

BUT OUR CHOICE IS STILL THE U. S. MARINE!

The July 15 issue of the Journal carried a story describing how a wounded Marine, a native of Tyler county, returning home from the battle fields, had been forced to stand in the train from Cheyenne, Wyoming, to Chicago, Illinois, while 80 Japanese on that same train slept comfortably in Pullman cars.

That same story recited the fact that when Japanese in an internment camp in Arizona refused to work for the $19 a month allowed them by the government, the authorities solved them by arranging for them to do piece work at prices which netted many of them as much as $15 a day.

Our esteemed contemporary, The Pocahontas Times, in its issue of August 26, endeavored to cast a cloud upon the accuracy and authenticity of the Journal story. The Times quoted from a letter written to that paper, upon the request of Congressman Jennings Randolph, by M. Rowalt, "acting director" of the War Relocation Authority.

That letter SUBSTANTIATED COMPLETELY the Journal story that some Japanese in the Arizona Relocation Center have been paid as much as $15 a day. Mr. Rowalt declared that this was the average wage but he admitted that in some cases the wages "may" have reached "as high as $15 per day." That is just exactly what the Journal story asserted.

The basis for the Journal story is found in the following verbatim news dispatch from the responsible and accurate Associated Press, and published in West Virginia newspapers!

JAPS WON'T WORK FOR $19 A MONTH

Los Angeles, June 10.—(AP)—The CHIEF ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICER of the Poston, Ariz., Japanese relocation center, has told a DIES SUBCOMMITTEE that many of the evacuees won't do good work for the $19 a month the government pays them.

Others, said the OFFICER, AUGUSTUS E. EMPIE, are doing satisfactory duty for which an outsider would receive $200 a month, but they are in the minority, and most are normal workers trying to build an honorable record to insure employment after the war.

"The attitude of many Japs in camp," Empie informed the committee headed by Rep. Costello (D.-Calif.), "is that there is NO INCENTIVE that the government placed us in camp against their will and that it is the duty of the government to furnish them food, shelter and clothing. We have tried to change that attitude."

Empie told of EFFORTS TO INDUCE JAPS TO WORK IN A CAMOUFLAGE FACTORY. He said there were difficulties encountered but as the score of labor relations but that MANY, WHEN THEY FOUND THEY WOULD BE PAID ON A PIECE BASIS, signed up and far exceeded all estimates of production. THEY'RE MAKING $15 A DAY IN SOME INSTANCES, he explained.

The witness expressed the belief that many Japs were building up bad records that would carry on into civilian life after the war.

The War Relocation Authority camp officer should clamp down," Costello declared.

Mr. Chatterton (D.-Pa.) asked if any approach to the solution had been made on the basis of segregation of loyal and disloyal Japs, and Empie said it hadn't.

It is the effort of The Pocahontas Times to impugn the honesty, integrity and morality of a member of the United States Marine Corps,—home on furlough after having been shot and wounded while engaged in battle against the barbarous Japs in defense of the life and liberties of American citizens, the Journal, like most of its readers, is willing to accept at face value the statement of the wounded Marine boy.

It was on the basis of the AAP dispatch printed above in the Journal, which IS CREDITED in a local item, the JOURNAL based its statement that MANY JAPS WERE MAKING $15 A DAY. We would have no reason to doubt a sale.

Both the writer and The Pocahontas Times as the organ of Mr. Rowalt, that he DIDN'T make that story by a West Virginia Marine is a bit "unbelievable" it would probably embarrass many of our local citizens who have been under the impression that the United States Government was fighting a war to preserve democracy, and not to establish Fascism in this country.

Maybe that is what he "believes."

But West Virginia Marines don't "believe" what the politicians tell them. They know what they are fighting for, and when the occasion arises they are willing to die for it.

SCHOOL BOARD MAKES CHANGES IN TEACHER LIST TO FILL POSITIONS

Meeting in special session September 4, 1943, the Pocahontas County Board of Education made some necessary changes and additions to various teaching faculties, due to resignations and the loss of several teachers who have entered the armed services.

Teachers were hired and placed as follows:

Cass Graded—Enid Harper.
Durbin Graded—Doris Snyder.
Grassy Ridge—Ruth Beard.
Hillsboro Colored—Jessie Mitchell.
Marlinton Graded—Mary Skaggs and Glenna Sharp.
Minnehaha Springs—Eva McCarty.
Mt. Lebanon—Jessie Beckett.
Old Lick—Mary Margaret Beard.
Seneca Trail (principal) — Maynard Dilley.
Spruce—Louise Brown.
Woodrow—Bonnie Brooks.
Greenbank High School—Vella McMillion and Kathleen Brown.

Hazel Fowler was employed as a teacher of O. S. Y. A. Shop work at the Federal Prison Camp, Millpoint.

H. N. Hansucker appeared before the Board in the interest of establishing community canning centers in Pocahontas County. Delegates were to be sent to Shady Springs high school at Beckley on September 8 to inspect a canning center in operation there.

The Board also voted to raise the salaries of teachers and other regular employees 60c a month for a period of nine months to make available a group insurance plan covering teachers and their dependents. Adoption of the plan and granting of the increase is dependent upon acceptance of the insurance policies by 75 per cent of the employees, on a cooperative basis.

Uncle "Pud" Tucker

— Says —

By HOY McCUSKEY

OUR VICTORY GARDEN

Speakin' about Victory Gardens, we've decided to make our own report and leave the whisperin' to the neighbors. We can't say what took place, but if there was a way to color potatoes like Easter eggs, we could furnish all the boys in America with marbles to last them forever. After several weeks of desperate fighting in an effort to weather the assault, the beets, turnips and peppers had to give in to the horse-weeds and go off the beam for the season. At that, our Victory Garden is the most beautiful one in town. It would make the sunken garden outside the Great Hall at Versailles look like Mrs. Wiggs' Cabbage patch. Really, it reminds one of the tapestry room in the Metropolitan Museum of Art with the bean poles draped in "Heavenly Blue" Mornin' Glory vines suitable for a shroud to wrap Adolf Hitler in when the time comes. All of this beauty is doubly elaborated by a blanket of Queen Anne's lace covering the entire garden from the carrots to the cucumbers resting peacefully beneath an invading Army of bugs and cockle burrs.

—Pud Tucker.

miles from Cheyenne to Chicago, bearing the weariness of the journey and the pain of his battle-scarred body with typical American courage.

The Times may accept, if it chooses, the alibi of that bureaucrat in Washington who admits that the payroll story is true and confesses that he doesn't know about the train trip but says he doesn't "believe" that the West Virginia Marine knows what he was talking about. As for The Marlinton Journal, we'll pin our faith to the American Marine anytime, anywhere, and under any conditions. His blood is good enough to protect our liberties. His word is good enough to stand above but triumphant in any court of public opinion.

As for our contemporary editor's claim that he passed up the original story with little notice because he considered it another of those "gospel of hate" rumors blasted forth on the Nazi radio, like the story about a $1 tax for butchering hogs, it is only right that we should say that the Journal has consistently refused to refrain from printing practically every report, and it will be remembered that this paper warned its subscribers at the time, by means of a page one story, that the big tax story had been launched as a Nazi lie.

Oren Poage Promoted And Given Air Awards

SAN JUAN, P. R., Sept. 9.—Promotion of Oren J. Poage of Marlinton, W. Va., to the rank of Major and award of the Air Medal and Oak Leaf Cluster to him for meritorious achievement while flying anti-submarine patrols in the Caribbean theater were announced here today at Antilles Air Command headquarters.

Major Poage received the Air Medal for 200 hours flying time on operational missions and was awarded the Oak Leaf Cluster for 200 hours in addition to those required for the Air Medal.

His citation read:

"For meritorious achievement while participating in both day and night long range patrols over Caribbean waters with the possibility of encountering fire from enemy ships. . . . Accomplishment of many of these missions was made when unfavorable weather conditions made flying hazardous."

Entering the Army June 26, 1940, at Fort Hays, O., Major Poage was commissioned a second lieutenant February 7, 1941, upon graduation from advanced flying school at Maxwell Field, Ala., where he also received his basic flight training. His primary flight training was received at the Lincoln airplane and flying school in Lincoln, Neb. He now is commanding officer of a squadron at one of the tropical air bases guarding the vital approaches to the Caribbean.

Major Poage was promoted to first lieutenant February 1, 1942, and was elevated to the rank of captain November 22, 1942. He joined his present overseas unit April 20, 1941.

Born November 22, 1914 in Edray, W. Va., Major Poage is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Poage. He was graduated from Marlinton high school in June, 1932, and from Marshall College at Huntington, W. Va., in June, 1940.

Planes of the Antilles Air Command, of which Major Poage is a member, fly daily patrols over an area extending from the western tip of Cuba to the equatorial belt of South America, an area 84 times that of West Virginia.

Palm-fringed AAC air bases are located strategically on small volcanic islands and in the midst of Caribbean jungles forming a protective barrier for the vital gateway to the three Americas.

Ram Sale Offers Chance For Flock Improvement

Ben Morgan, county agricultural agent, reminded this week that three things are necessary to produce the maximum pounds of lamb and wool from ewe flocks. These are breeding, feeding and management. Mr. Morgan stressed the opportunity to improve breeding by the purchase of purebred rams, and called attention to the ram sale to be held Thursday (today) beginning at 9:00 a. m., at the cattle barn at the county Fair Ground. Varied aspects of breeding, feeding and management were to be discussed during the program, and valuable articles useful to sheepmen were to be given away.

Traveling in Speed Cars and Jeeps

To Visit Marlinton At 8:30 A. M. Thursday

Motorized groups of United States Army troops with light battle equipment will strike through most of West Virginia next Thursday in a four-pronged drive intended to focus public attention on the opening of the 3rd War Loan campaign.

Actually on maneuvers, the troops will diverge to "occupy" at least 25 county seats and then turn over occupied territory to 3rd War Loan forces, A. C. Spurr, Fairmont, state chairman of the War Finance Committee, declared.

Plan of campaign for this statewide military introduction to the 3rd War Loan drive, Chairman Spurr said, calls for four motorized security groups in fast army equipment to leave the Elkins headquarters of the West Virginia maneuver area early Thursday morning, striking out with Wheeling, Parkersburg, Charleston and Huntington and Bluefield as final objectives.

The northernmost group will make stops at Buckhannon, Clarksburg, West Union, Harrisville and Parkersburg.

A third group will cover Weston, Glenville, Spencer, Charleston and Huntington.

Turning south from Elkins, the fourth group will move through Marlinton, Lewisburg, Hinton, Princeton and into Bluefield; and on the return will hit Beckley, Fayetteville, Summersville and Webster Springs.

At each stop the officer in command of a motorized force will present an official order to the county chairman of the War Finance Committee, turning over the "occupied" territory to the forces in charge of the 3rd War Loan campaign.

Make-up of individual motorized security groups cannot be disclosed specifically, Chairman Spurr said. However, fast command cars and jeeps will represent principal modes of transportation; there will be a commissioned officer in charge of each group, and the troops will be armed with rifles and equipped with light battle gear.

Due to rigid time schedules, ceremonies at each stopping point will be brief. In Marlinton, due to the absence from town of Dr. Fred C. Allen, chairman of the county War Finance Committee, the troops will be met by Vice Chairman June McElwee, who will receive the official order from the commander.

The troops will be met outside of Marlinton by a state police escort, about 8:30 a. m. Thursday (today), and will come into the town immediately.

The Pocahontas county War Finance Committee is composed of Dr. Fred C. Allen, chairman; June McElwee, vice chairman and head of the Banking and Investment Division; R. S. Hickman of Cass, vice chairman and head of the Community Division; Richard Currence, head of Publicity and Promotion Division, and Miss Helen Smith, chairman of Women's Activities.

Local B. & P. W. Club Members to Attend Meet

President Edith May, Miss Glenna Sharp, Miss Jane Kincaid and Miss Gertrude Shay are the members of the Pocahontas County Business and Professional Women's Club who will attend the Interim Board Meeting and Annual Institute of the West Virginia Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs to be held at the Gore Hotel in Clarksburg, September 18 and 19. The session will open at 2:00 p. m. on Saturday with a business meeting and this will be followed by the Board meeting and an Institute. The latter will be based on the National Federation program —"Winning the War and the Peace."

On Sunday morning Mrs. Lillian Majolly of Morgantown, State International Relations chairman, will lead a forum. At 11 a. m. on Sunday, George H. Clark, editor of the Clarksburg Exponent, will discuss "Relations Between Clubwomen and the Press." The National Federation will be represented by Miss Mary Ely, director of program coordination and field service. Mrs. Mary Williamson White is the state president of the business women's organization.

IT Impresses ME

THAT you will be interested in a story of how a baby which was to have been named Judith Ann received the name of Virginia . . . Last week Willard Eskridge, local postal clerk, was one of a group of county men taken to Clarksburg for induction into the armed services. While he was away his wife gave birth to an eight-pound daughter, and the information was communicated to Willard by telephone . . . It then became necessary for him to go to the induction officials and declare the arrival of another dependent . . . The official asked Willard for the new daughter's name — and then he was stumped! . . . In pre-natal plans it had been agreed that Willard would name the child if it were a boy, and he had "George William" all picked out; but, if the baby were a girl, his wife (Virginia) was to name it, and she had "Judith Ann" in mind — but neglected to tell Willard . . . So, after 30 minutes of futile mind-searching, Papa Eskridge finally told them the baby's name was "Virginia" . . . Upon arriving home, Willard learned of the "Judith Ann" angle — but "Virginia" had already gone to Washington on a sheet of paper . . . So, what's to do? . . .

THAT an unknown author, with certain apologies to Longfellow, very aptly describes the sad plight of war-harassed grocery owners in the following poetic fashion: . . .

THE VILLAGE GROCER

Under a spreading web of rules
The Village Grocer stands;
His brow is all tied up in knots
His head is in his hands.
There hardly is, from day to day,
A rule he understands!

His hair is thin, bloodshot his eyes,
His face is gray or blue;
His brow is wet with honest sweat;
His business all askew,
His customers are dizzy but
The grocer's dizzy too.

Day in, day out, from morn 'til night,
You hear the loud disputes,
As women fight for sauerkraut
And beans and processed fruits.
All grocers get are loud Bronx cheers
And most discordant hoots.

Children coming home from school
Look in the open door;
To see just how their elders act
In a rationed grocery store
When both sides figure total points
And both dispute the score.

He goes on Sunday to the church
And sees the people meek,
And marvels that they are the ones
Who fought him all the week;
He's glad there are no ration cards
When the parson starts to speak.

Toiling, computing, sorrowing,
Onward through life he goes;
Each morning sees the O.P.A.
With new rules to disclose;
Each evening sees him totter home
A wreck from head to toes.

Thanks, thanks to thee, my grocer friend,
The lessons that you teach!
Your fight to keep the Home Front firm,
The sermon that you preach
To help morale from splitting wide
You're standing in the breath.

Hold Livestock Sale

The Pocahontas unit of the Greenbrier Valley Livestock Marketing Association held its sale here Tuesday and sold 139 lambs, 31 sheep and 3 calves. Prices were 14¼ for blues, 13¼ for reds, 11.75 for mediums; sheep ranged from $4 to $7.75.

The association will ship again next Tuesday, it was reported by Ben Morgan, county agricultural agent.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Allied Bombers Concentrate Attacks On Enemy Airfields, Communications; Japs Continue Retreat in New Guinea; Civilians to Get 75% of Food Supply

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Killed in action against the Japanese, an American soldier is being borne back from the front lines by these New Guinea natives. Chaplain Owen Monahan of the 41st division follows the body. Natives are serving U. S. forces as stretcher bearers and supply carriers.

EUROPE:
Hell on High

As Allied troops poised for the leap into southern Europe, waves of American and British bombers whirled over the foot of the Italian boot, smashing at enemy airfields and communication lines in the effort to paralyze Axis troop movements to invasion points.

Principal concentration has been on Foggia, 80 miles northeast of the once-colorful, now heavily bombed, Neopolitan port of Naples. Besides the main airdrome at Foggia, 10 smaller auxiliary airfields were the targets for low level bombing and machine gunning attacks spearheaded by fast, U. S. Lockheed Lightnings.

Throughout the Foggia area, railroads, over which trains were carrying enemy troops, were shot up.

As a result of heavy, concentrated RAF raids on Berlin, it was reported that 12,000 epople might have been killed, 50,000 wounded, and 500,000 made homeless.

LEND-LEASE:
'Repaid With Victory'

"Victory and a secure peace are the only coin in which we can be repaid" for lend-lease assistance thus far amounting to 14 billion dollars, President Roosevelt reported to congress.

Of the total in armament and food distributed through lend-lease, Great Britain received 4½ billion dollars; Russia, 2½ billion dollars, and Africa, the Middle East and Mediterranean countries, one billion, 300 million dollars. China, India, Australia and New Zealand have obtained lend-lease also to the amount of one billion 300 million dollars.

"The congress in passing and extending the lend-lease act made it plain that the United States wants no new war debts to jeopardize the coming peace," the President said.

SOUTH PACIFIC:
Smash Supplies

Using the airplane as an instrument for weakening the enemy by disrupting his supply, Gen. Douglas MacArthur sent scores of bombers along the northeastern New Guinea coast to blast at the small barges with which the Japanese have been replenishing their beleaguered forces in the Salamaua area.

As the Allied airmen swooped low to bomb and machine gun the tiny craft darting through the coastal shoals, or streaking for cover in the many coves along the shore, U. S. and Australian forces fought up to the gates of Salamaua itself. Having fallen back through the jungle under pressure of Allied infiltration tactics, the enemy girded for a last stand at the big New Guinea base.

In a Tokyo broadcast, the Japanese claimed to have sunk nine American cruisers and 11 destroyers and damaged not 600 planes since June 30. In addition, the broadcast declared, four cruisers and eight destroyers were damaged. The Japanese claims were without confirmation in Allied circles.

NAZI SPIES:
Trapped by FBI

After four years of investigation, the long arm of the FBI reached out to arrest four persons on charges of wartime espionage and sabotage. Four ring operators in possession were military secrets.

Alleged chief of the ring was Grace Buchanan Counts, wealthy 54-year-old French-Canadian who was reportedly known personally to Germany before coming to the country as Countess Wolf.

FOOD:
Less Than 1942-'43

Americans will have less to eat during the next 10 months than in 1942-'43, but on the average they will get as much food as they did from 1935-'39, the government declared.

Of the total food supply, civilians will receive 75 per cent, it was reported. The army will be allotted 13 per cent, lend-lease 10 per cent, and United States territories and special needs 2 per cent.

In commenting on the army allocation, the government pointed out that a serviceman eats about 5½ pounds of food daily, to the civilian's 3½ pounds. This is equivalent to adding approximately 4½ million people to the population, it was said.

WHEAT:
Feed Sales High

Since the initiation of the government's program for the sale of wheat for feed at the start of July, the Commodity Credit corporation has disposed of more than 69,000,000 bushels, or an average of 50,000,000 monthly.

At the same time, government purchases to replenish stocks approximate only 14,000,000 bushels per month, it was reported. Much of the new grain has been coming in by rail from Canada through the Dakotas, and arrangements have been made for shipment through the Pacific Northwest.

Should the demand for feed wheat continue and sales outstrip purchases, the government can draw on the 200,000,000 bushels of the 1942 crop held on farms under loans which could be called before maturity.

MINERS:
No Travel Pay

Eight public and employer members of the War Labor board joined in voting against approval of a wage contract between Illinois coal operators and the United Mine Workers granting the latter $1.25 daily for time spent traveling underground to and from their work. Headed by Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, the four labor members of the WLB opposed the decision.

Matthew Woll

Although voting against underground travel compensation, the WLB agreed to payment of time-and-a-half to miners for all work over 35 hours a week. WLB also approved increased vacation payments and provision for certain free equipment and services amounting to 25 cents daily.

The WLB declared the miners would have to go to court to collect any claims they hold against the coal companies for underground payment under the wages and hour law.

MISCELLANY:

JEWS: Jewish population in Axis-controlled Europe has diminished from 4,300,000 to about 1,300,000, a statement by the American Jewish Congress reveals. Of the five million people who have disappeared, more than a million are dead. 1,000,000 have been moved deep into Russia, and 100,000 have emigrated to various places, the report continues.

FIGHTING FRENCH:
Made Administrators

Until the people of France are able to choose a government, the French Committee of National Liberation, operating from Algiers, North Africa, will be recognized merely as an administrative agency of those parts of the French empire over which it has succeeded in obtaining control.

This recognition was made by the United States, Great Britain and Russia. It followed months of wrangling between the factions of Gen. Charles De Gaulle, who has had strong British backing, and Gen. Henri Giraud, who represented the pro-Vichy Darlan group which arranged for American landings in North Africa with Gen. Dwight Eisenhower. Recently these factions combined, with De Gaulle securing political leadership and Giraud military direction.

The Liberation committee's administrative authority, however, will be subject to the requirements of the Allied military command in such zones of operation as North Africa and the Near East.

RUSSIA:
Drive for Coal, Iron

With Kharkov, the "Pittsburgh" of Russia, again in their hands, Red forces hurled their might against the Nazis farther to the south in the Donetz basin, source of much coal and iron.

Giving way under the full weight of massed Russian artillery, tank and infantry attack, the Germans fell back slowly, in severe defensive fighting. But with the Reds driving forward frontally instead of slicing to the Nazis' rear, the Germans retained their freedom to move back and evade being surrounded.

To the north of Kharkov, Russian troops surged into Zenkov, thus passing the farthest point they reached during their winter offensive. But in front of Bryansk, stiff Nazi defenses had slowed the Russian advance to a crawl.

WORLD PROGRESS:
Seen by FDR

Declaring that the war was proving what could be accomplished through the co-operative action of nations, President Roosevelt told 30,000 Canadians at Ottawa that "great councils (were) held on the free and honored soil of Canada . . . which . . . look to building a new progress for mankind."

"There is a longing in the air," the President said. "It is not a longing to go back to what they call 'the good old days' . . . Surely we can make strides toward a greater freedom from want than the world has yet enjoyed . . .

"I am everlastingly angry only at those who assert vociferously that the four freedoms and the Atlantic Charter are nonsense because they are unattainable," the President said. ". . . But I would rather be a builder than a wrecker, hoping always that the structure of life is growing—not dying."

ARMY RULE:
Judge, General Clash

Demanding respect for the full dignity of the judicial branch of the federal government, a U. S. judge clashed with the military governor of Hawaii over the release of two naturalized citizens of German ancestry.

Picked up shortly after Pearl Harbor when army rule was established over Hawaii, the two citizens have been held without hearings. Certain court functions were restored by proclamation in March, 1942, and then the citizens attempted to obtain their release from custody by securing a writ of habeas corpus.

When the military governor, Lieut. Gen. Robert Richardson Jr., failed to produce the two citizens after Judge Delbert Metzger had issued writs for them, the judge summoned him on contempt charges and then fined him $5,000 for ignoring the order. General Richardson countered by forbidding further habeas corpus proceedings, either by a court or applicants, on grounds of military security.

The general said the March, 1942, proclamation excluded issuance of habeas corpus writs, but Judge Metzger said that the Constitution required the full and free and not just the partial operation of the courts.

JAPS

Calling for an end to what he called unfair criticism of the War Relocation authority, Representative Herman P. Eberharter (Pa.) declared that none of the 16,000 Japanese released from detention centers have been charged with disloyalty to the government.

In answer to charges that Japs at the relocation centers were eating better than the average American Eberharter said food costs in the centers amounted to 42 cents a day

History Written at Quebec; Only Time Will Reveal It

Military Experts Satisfied With Results of Roosevelt-Churchill Conference; Political Angle an Enigma.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

Mr. Baukhage has written today's column from Quebec, site of the Roosevelt-Churchill conference, which he covered for newspapers affiliated with Western Newspaper Union.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building Washington, D. C.

Now that some of the deep secrets which surrounded the most important conference so far held by the firm of Roosevelt & Churchill, purveyors of victory, are beginning to be revealed in action, one can lean back, gaze at this remarkable adventure in history in the making—and wonder . . .

I cannot help recalling the evening of Sunday, August 22, nearly a month after the actual preparations for the conference began, the purpose of which was then unguessed even by the people whose job was to do the spade work. I was sitting with Edgar Mowrer, the well-known newspaper man, Michael Barkway, representative of the British Broadcasting company, and Wilson Woodside, commentator for the Canadian Broadcasting system. That morning the news had broken that Ambassador Litvinov would not return to Washington. It was learned that a virtually unknown member of the Soviet diplomatic corps, who had been their representative in Ottawa, was to replace the adroit Mr. Maisky, Stalin's expert lieutenant in London.

Woodside had learned, quite by accident, that a little while before the representative of Tass, the official Russian news agency, who had been an active participator in the press conferences, had suddenly departed from our midst—severing the last shadowy link with the Kremlin.

A few days before, just as a rumor was circulating that the conference had agreed upon the division of Germany into separate states as one of the post-war steps, the text of a broadcast from Moscow was printed in an American paper. It was made by the so-called Free Germany committee, and of course could not have voiced any views contrary to the will of Stalin. It urged that the German army be kept intact after the war!

Stalin's Absence

Of course Stalin's absence from the conference had been widely discussed in Quebec. To say the least we were four very confused members of press and radio, and I think our feelings were typical—two of us had covered international conferences before. Was Russia running a competition show to the one staged on the heights of America's Gibraltar? The shudder we shuddered and which spread out over the telegraph lines and airwaves bounced back to the walls of the Citadel where the top-men were conferring. At an eight o'clock conference that eve-evening presidential secretary Stephen Early announced that the recall of Litvinov had been known to the conferees long before it happened and had no influence or effect on the conference.

Meanwhile all sorts of speculation about the effect of the absence of the Russians, the ominous "empty chair," had been pouring out of Quebec, perhaps comforting if not aiding the enemy and probably making no one happy, even Stalin.

Could this and the other unfortunate things which were written have been avoided; were we, in spite of ourselves, evil muses?

I said to one of the willing but rather futile and frustrated men who were supposed to provide us with facts: if we could have just had a little guidance wouldn't it have been better?

He admitted that was true, but, he added, "When an information man asks the higher ups for information they are so afraid they will say more than they ought to that we get nothing."

More than 200 press, radio and news photographers were here. We filled to bursting the little old Clarendon hotel, with its narrow corridors, its lobby turned into a telegraph office, and its modest bedrooms made into press room and broadcasting studios. Two blocks away was the spacious Chateau Frontenac, a Normandie palace with 750 bedrooms, where some 300 military and technical experts were immolated. Canadian Mounted police, tough British marines and hefty Canadian veterans of Dieppe guarded its portals. The inmates, like us, were virtually incommunicado. When they dared take a one-day's river trip one officer said, "it was to prevent an outbreak of claustrophobia."

Invisible Ink

There is much we did not know when we arrived. There is more we still do not know of what occurred after the conferees met. History was written but it was written in invisible ink.

Now some things can be told. In the first place the event was, perhaps purposely, perhaps unwittingly, played down in Washington in advance. Before I left the capital I was assured the conference would probably end about the Wednesday a week before it did. I had hoped for a quiet half-week's vacation. But no sooner had I arrived on the Sunday preceding Roosevelt's arrival the next Tuesday, than I saw we were all wrong. I felt sure something had happened when the President and the prime minister had their preliminary talk at Hyde Park. Something did, for I am sure there had been no intention of producing the parade of cabinet officers and other brass hats who kept dropping in from the skies and elsewhere one after another. But I learned that the length of the conference was planned to a "t" by the President long before it began. He knew it would last precisely as long as it did for he timed his Ottawa trip in advance so he would be back in Washington on August 26. He knew what was coming and that is why he slipped off for that fishing trip, which was just that and nothing more, ahead of the conference—it was a health measure pure and simple. Churchill and his midnight cigars are something to prepare for, the wee sma' hours are the big moments for this human dynamo.

Then the "something" yet to be revealed, happened. Churchill hailed his foreign minister from London and with him came not only Information Minister Bracken, who played no part as an informer but nevertheless was of cabinet rank, but also the permanent head of the British foreign office, Sir Alexander Cadogan with the accent on the "dog" pronounced (though Secretary Early could never quite master it) "dug."

Of course Hull had to appear to match Eden; then another cabinet member, Secretary of War Stimson to match Bracken and then Secretary of the Navy Knox for good measure, perhaps to give verisimilitude to the talk that the Pacific was not being neglected. Then just before Stalin made public his gesture of withdrawal (recalling Litvinov), T. V. Soong, Chinese foreign minister more or less permanently installed in Washington for some time past, appeared. Then there was the excuse that a big drive on Burma was in the wind.

The Big Drive

Meanwhile the press had blown very hot and then very cold on an immediate invasion of Europe from Britain. I don't know whether the reports that the big smash was coming was a part of the Allied war of nerves, but I am sure that the folks who threw cold water on it were sincere in their belief it just couldn't be started before spring.

I sat with a general whom I have known for a long time, a real soldier in World War I as well as in this one. Here's what he had to say:

"We haven't got the men yet. We must drop bombs upon bombs. There is a lot more softening up to do."

This man was on the periphery—not on the inside. I am sure that the technical experts, the officers—and we had them all, probably the greatest aggregation of military brains and real experience, too, ever assembled anywhere — they were sure. They were certain. And when the conference was over they were satisfied. As to the political side, that is an enigma and will be one as long as Russia remains one. And that she is.

ISRAEL MARCHES TOWARD CANAAN

LESSON TEXT—Numbers 10:11, 12, 29-32.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come thou with us, and we will do thee good.—Numbers 10:29.

There is a time to wait before God, to be instructed and prepared for holy living. There is also a time for action. When God says, "Move forward," His people are to arise and be on their way.

Israel, who had now been more than a year on the way from Egypt to Canaan, had been resting for a time at Mt. Sinai, there receiving instruction and being organized into a nation. They had set up a place of worship in their midst, and now they were ready to go on. That is God's will for His people. They are to

I. Move Toward the Goal (vv. 11, 12).

God had a schedule. He wanted them to move forward on a certain day (v. 11). Since the Jewish religious year, referred to here, began with the spring equinox, this was about the middle of May. The dry season was ahead—a good time to travel.

Those who think the purposes of God for men are nebulous and uncertain, and that He has no real plan for us, are obviously mistaken. His plan is good and acceptable and perfect; let us find and follow it.

We do not have a pillar of cloud and fire to move before us. We do not need it, for we, unlike the Israelites, have God's Word for our guide, and His Holy Spirit as the One who will tell every responsive soul when and where to go.

The important thing is to obey promptly and willingly, and we shall have the blessing of God.

II. Bring Others With You (vv. 29-32).

Those who go up to the promised land should not go alone, they should bring others with them.

Moses, who had been in touch with the family of his father-in-law (known both as Jethro and Raguel or Reuel), now sees the value of having with him his brother-in-law, who was so acquainted with the great and terrible wilderness through which they were to pass that he could be invaluable as a guide and helper.

In giving him the invitation, however, Moses stressed the opposite thought—that it would be good for Hobab if he came with them. That was doubtless true, but it was not the right approach.

Men do not respond to the opportunity for advantage in spiritual things as readily as to the challenge to usefulness. The motive of acquisition is strong, but the best folk are not interested in what they can get as what they can give.

The church may stress too much its value as a place of refuge and not enough the unparalleled opportunity it affords for sacrificial service.

When Moses changed his plea and revealed his need of Hobab, the response was immediate. He had thus won a friend and a helper.

III. Follow God's Guidance (vv. 33-36).

God gave special guidance on this occasion. The ark which commonly was found in the midst of the people, now moved out before them.

It was the symbol of God's presence. As they went out into the wilderness (which Deut. 1:19 calls "great and terrible") it was as though God Himself went before them.

Is not this always true? The "Captain of Our Salvation," Jesus Christ, is not One who tarries in safety at the rear and sends up orders for us to attack life's problems. He goes before us!

The pillar of cloud hovered over the people as though to give them shelter from the beating sun of the desert. God is mindful of the road His people must travel, and in His loving-kindness provides for their protection and care.

In our day there are many who are tempted to question whether God knows of their trials and afflictions. He does, and He will not permit them to be tried beyond their ability to bear it.

When the ark went forward, their leader, Moses, addressed God in the stirring words of verse 35. The people whose God is the Lord may count on Him to scatter their enemies.

All of human life is either a journey or a battle, and often it is both. We must arise and make valiant war against the forces of evil if we are to move forward for God. But we must recall that our foes, as Christians, are also God's foes.

The battle is not ours, but God's, and we do well to call on Him to rise up and smite the enemy.

Note that after the forward march came a time of rest. God always gives His people an opportunity for needed rest.

How to Line Your Casement Curtains

QUAINT chintz curtains are always appropriate for casement windows and their colors give the best effect by day if they are lined to keep the light from shining through. At night they may be drawn together to serve instead of shades if the lining is of fairly heavy material.

The secret of making curtains of this type hang well is in not joining the two layers of material at the bottom. If your windows are narrow, a half width of chintz and of lining may be wide enough for each curtain. Plan them to be wide enough to hang slightly full when drawn together. The lining should be cut one inch narrower and shorter than the chintz. Hem each piece, then place right sides together and stitch side seams, as shown at the right of this sketch. Crease sides with seams on the lining, then stitch across top. The lower sketch shows how the top is finished.

150 Give Support To Cemetery Fund

A report of R. W. Brown, treasurer, shows the Arbovale Cemetery Association well on its way to accomplish its goal to secure 200 contributors who would pledge to pay a small amount annually for the upkeep of the cemetery.

Up to the present time, Mr. Brown reports, about 150 persons have contributed, and others are still coming in. Also, he states, in expressing appreciation to the following list of persons who have made contributions, it is possible that some names may not be listed here, due to the fact that they have paid someone else for the upkeep of individual lots.

The list follows:

George Alderman, Carl Arbogast, Abbie Arbogast, Allie Arbogast, O. G. Arbogast, J. K. Arbogast, Rev. Q. R. Arbogast, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Arbogast, J. F. Ashford, Mrs. C. L. Austin, Guy L. Brown, T. L. John T. Hiner Commissioned As a Second Lieutenant

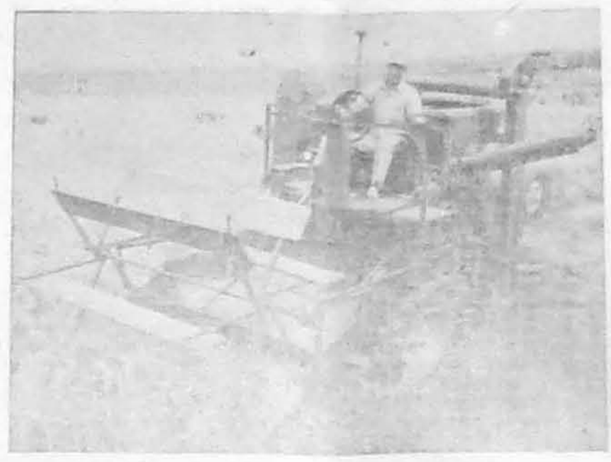
NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 1.—John Tate Hiner of Marlinton, W. Va., was commissioned on September 1, 1943, as a Second Lieutenant in the Army of the United States, upon graduation of from the Transportation Corps Officer Candidate School. This school is located at Camp Lee, Virginia.

Lieutenant Hiner has been ordered to active duty in this newly organized branch of the service.

PEEK IN THE FUTURE FOR FARMERS



RACINE, WIS.—One man can operate this small, self-propelled 'Clipper' combine, which cuts and threshes a grain crop at the same time. Developed by Massey-Harris Co., here it heads directly into the standing grain instead of being pulled by a separate tractor, and is an example of how farm machinery manufacturers, looking ahead to the post war market, are emphasizing new equipment for family-sized farms.

Missing...

"Missing in action." You know what that can mean.

Mom says you must be brave. "It's what your father would expect of us," she tells you when it's bedtime and your chin starts to feel shaky. Then she kisses you extra hard and turns her head away so you can't see her eyes.

You've never let her see you cry. Not once, since that telegram came and she twisted it all up in a ball, then smoothed it and put it in the desk.

But, lying in bed, you play "Pretend"—pretend you can hear his step as he comes up to your room—pretend you can feel a stubble brush your forehead. And sometimes, in the dark, you can almost smell a cigarette-y suit close to your face.

Later you dream—dreams that you don't tell about. And in the morning you wake up with that funny, empty feeling in your stomach.

Poor little guy. We—all of us—wish there were something we could do. Perhaps there is. Why shouldn't it be this?

We can resolve that the plans your father had for you shall remain within your reach, that you shall have the chance to grow and learn, that your opportunities will be bounded only by your own get-up-and-go, that you will progress and prosper in direct relation to your own ability—in a land of freedom and opportunity.

Those are the things your Dad valued, the things for which he gave his life. Though some may strive to change all that—provide you with the "benefits" of an all-powerful government, the "advantages" of regimentation, the "blessings" of bureaucracy—we can resolve they won't succeed.

You, son, won't read these words, and if you did, they wouldn't mean much to you now. But your father's friends—known and unknown—are making you a promise, just the same.

You may never hear it from their lips. But if you were older you would read it in their faces—recognize it in their spirit. They are determined to keep America free. To keep it a land in which government is the servant, not the master of the people. To keep it the kind of America your Dad wanted to preserve—for you.

Miss Helen Anderson, Dr. Frederick M. Wilson Married in North Carolina

MONROEO, N. C., Sept. 6.—Miss Helen Anderson and Dr. Frederick Mark Wilson of Marlinton, W. Va., lieutenant, U. S. Army, stationed at Camp Sutton, N. C., were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, September 4, 1943, at 5:30 o'clock in Central Methodist Church. Rev. J. H. Armbrust, pastor, officiated.

The altar was banked with evergreens, white gladioli, and lighted by Cathedral tapers in branched candlabra.

Wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Zeb Jones, organist, and Miss Elizabeth Price, soloist. Mrs. Jones played "Romance" by Rubenstein; "At Dawning" by Cadman; "Meditation From Thais" by Massenet; "Liebestraum" by Liszt, during the ceremony, and the traditional wedding marches. Miss Price sang "Because," and "O Perfect Love."

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Frank Anderson of Chester, S. C., and the bridegroom had as his best man, Major James H. Stacy of Jackson, Ky.

Maid of honor was Miss Sarah Anderson, only sister of the bride. She wore coral pink faille fashioned with sweetheart neck, bracelet sleeves, bodice with pointed midriff to which the floor-length skirt was attached with gathers in the back. She carried an arm bouquet of mixed flowers.

Bridesmaid was Miss Joyce Winchester. Her dress was of aqua blue faille fashioned as that of the maid-of-honor, and her bouquet was of mixed flowers.

The bride wore a wedding gown of heavy white satin with sweetheart neckline, leg-o-mutton sleeves fitted to the elbows and adorned with covered buttons. The skirt was full and ended in a long train. She wore a three-quarter length veil of illusion held in place with a coronet of orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses, and tube roses, centered with a white orchid. Her only ornament was a single strand of pearls.

Ushers were: Major John V. Gwin of New Orleans; Capt. Hugh L. Preas, Johnson City, Tenn.; Capt. Thomas S. Bailey, Albany, Ga.; Capt. T. Henry Dembinski, South River, N. J., all of Camp Sutton.

Following the ceremony, the couple left for a trip to Western Carolina. For traveling the bride wore a dress of Iris purple Botany flannel with blackaccessories, and a white orchid with purple lip.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Clifton Anderson of Monroe, and the late Mr. Anderson. She attended the Monroe City schools, the University of South Carolina, Columbia, and has held positions in the Federal Reserve Bank, Charlotte, and the American Bank and Trust Company, Monroe.

The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. M. S. Wilson of Marlinton, W. Va. He attended Duke University, Durham; West Virginia University, Morgantown, W. Va., where he received the A. B. and B. S. degrees; Medical College of Virginia, Richmond; and the University of Southern California, Los Angeles, where he received the D. D. S. degree. He was a member of Phi Beta Pi fraternity, Commander of Sigma Nu, and Grand Master of Delta Sigma Delta fraternity. Lieut. Wilson is a dentist, stationed with the medical corps at Camp Sutton, Monroe.

Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. M. S. Wilson and daughter, Mrs. Eleanor Smith, of Marlinton, W. Va.; Frank Anderson and daughter, Miss Margaret Ann Anderson, Chester, S. C.; Mrs. Herbert Ligon, Winnsboro, S. C.; Misses Mary Washam, Louise Hawkins, and Nataline Ziegler, Charlotte, N. C.

Judson Howards Plan Observance Of 50th Anniversary

Invitations are being issued for the observance of the Golden Wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Judson L. Howard at their home at Buckeye, Friday of this week.

Mrs. Howard, the former Jessie Aurora Barker, daughter of Chauncy L. and Nancy Gibson Barker of East Springfield, Pa., and Judson Luke Howard, son of George W. and Sara Harris Howard, of Amboy, Ohio, were married at the home of the bride on the shores of Lake Erie on September 16, 1893, in the presence of relatives, by Rev. M. H. Blackburn, a Baptist minister.

The couple lived in Commodore, Rockland and Rundells, Pa., and moved to Buckeye in November, 1904. Mr. Howard engaged in the lumber business for many years as a profession.

They are the parents of the following children: Robert W. Howard of Sharples, Mrs. Eleanor H. McNeill of Buckeye, Marion C. Howard of Rainelle, Florence A. Howard of Keyser, Mrs. Anna M. Stanley of Slagle, Mrs. Beatrice H. Gladwell of Buckeye, and Pfc. James W. Howard, who is serving with the Air Corps, and stationed at Charleston, S. C.

On Mr. Howard's paternal side he is a descendant of the Brooks, who came in the Mayflower. On Mrs. Howard's paternal side, she is a descendant of the McClellands, who came to this country from Belfast, Ireland.

Misses Margaret and Frances Brill returned to Philadelphia Monday after a visit with their mother, Mrs. Lura Brill.

Mrs. Gordon Mark visited home folks at Myersdale, Pa., last week-end. Mr. Mark expected to leave for Pennsylvania the latter part of this week for a visit with his parents.

Arbovale W.S.C.S. Picnic

The Arbovale Woman's Society of Christian Service held its annual picnic at the church recently. The organization's membership was well represented and several visitors were present. The program was led by Mrs. Bill Beard, and consisted of a special number, "Though Your Sins Be As Scarlet," by Mrs. DeHaven, Mrs. Shears and Miss Anna Lee Tracy, and the usual Bible Study on the 13th chapter of First Corinthians, conducted by Rev. Bittinger.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Monroe Beard on September 10.

Durbin Church Burns Note

On Sunday, September 5, the new portion of the Durbin Methodist Church was dedicated to the "worship and service of God." The service of dedication was read by Rev. Charles W. Fink, superintendent of the Lewisburg District. Rev. Helmintoller, a former pastor, gave the prayer. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Fink. Two selections were sung by the choir, "The Power of Jesus Name," and "Blessed Is the Man." Following the sermon, the members of the Board of Trustees burned the mortgage note, and presented the Church to the minister for dedication. The Sunday school rooms of the new portion of the church were recently redecorated. Following the morning services, many of the friends and members of the church and congregation went on an inspection tour of the building.

In the evening, the celebration of the Annual Homecoming took place. Rev. Helmintoller brought the message. Letters from former pastors were read. The day's services closed with those present singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

See Here, Private Hargrove!

by Marion Hargrove

W.N.U. SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: Private Marion Hargrove, former feature editor of a North Carolina newspaper, has been inducted into the army and has spent some time in training at Fort Bragg. In his story he has given prospective inductees considerable advice. Immediately before induction he advocates a period of "painting the town red." Once in, the new soldier should "keep an open mind" about what he learns because "the first three weeks are hardest." Private Hargrove has been missing the point of some of his essential training and as a result he has had considerable KP duty. Some of his friends have been advanced to Corporal and his Sergeant has asked why he was not promoted.

CHAPTER V

"Me?" The idea had never occurred to me. "I'm just not the executive type, I suppose. Back at the News, the boss told me that if I stayed there sixty years, I'd never get promoted. I'm just not the type that gets promoted."

"Let's look at the record," said the sergeant. He pulled his little black notebook from his pocket.

"On the drill field Saturday morning, you pulled forty-eight boners out of fifty marching commands. Everything you did was backwards.

"Friday morning you fell out for reveille without your leggins. Saturday you had your leggins but no field hat. Monday morning neither of your shoes was tied and none of your shirt buttons were buttoned. Tuesday morning it was without leggins again."

"I'm never really awake," I protested, "until ten o'clock."

"You ain't awake then," he scoffed. "Every Monday morning without fail I have to wake you up at least a dozen times. I have to look behind all the posts around here to see which one you're sleeping against. You snore and disturb your cleanes, too!"

He was exaggerating there, I told him, I don't snore. And I'm sleepy only on Monday morning. The rest of the time I'm alert and energetic.

"You're too energetic sometimes!" he roared. "Just this morning, when the lieutenant was coaching the platoon in rifle sighting and you were on fatigue duty as usual! That was a pretty one! You ran up and down the battery street twenty-two times in thirty minutes and you saluted the lieutenant every time you passed him! Do you think he ain't got a thing to do but return your salutes all morning?"

This was evidently a rhetorical question, so I didn't answer it.

"You don't salute an officer every time you see him when you're right there at his side practically all day. You salute him the first time you see him and the last time you're going to see him.

"And then when the lieutenant explains that to you," he sighed, "then what do you do? The next time you see him, you salute him again and then ask him was you supposed to salute him that time?"

He put his head in his hands and drummed sadly on the toe of his field boot. He raised his head after a time and looked into the cubicle again.

I knew what was coming next and I edged toward the door.

"And then you low-rated the mess sergeant's recipe for creamed beef on toast and told him his stew was the worst in the Army. And you said you were going to start eating in the mess hall. That hurt his feelings so bad that he burned the potatoes for the next three weeks."

I protested in apologies to the mess sergeant. The sergeant read out of his notebook for five or six minutes more, enumerating the things I had accidentally done wrong.

"Now, do you know," he asked sweetly, "why you don't get the rest and privileges other boys give them out?"

"I suppose I'm just not the executive type," I said sadly.

"A mess sergeant, according to military legend, is a cook whose brains have been baked out."

A mess sergeant, according to military legend, is a cook whose brains have been baked out. This does not refer to the mess sergeant in our battery, whose feelings are easily hurt by cruel comments and who would have him his scrambled eggs some way, or pulled on. This is simply the old army definition of a mess sergeant.

But as in many modern myths are shades of accuracy there originally. Because before all of us [illegible] these [illegible] and [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible] and

YOU'RE HIRED

Employer—Are you familiar with motor?

Eve Fiend—No sir. I know them by sight to get familiar!

Soot Suit

Lem—Maw, can I you kin dig up some clothes for the scarecrow.

Maw—How about that suit Junior wore here he was in the army?

Lem—Naw, that won't do. I want it worn for crows, not make 'em laugh.

Sweet and Snack

Mrs. Jones—That hotel clerk was flattering.

Mr. Jones—What did he do?

Mrs. Jones—He wrote "wish you were" when he meant

WHO, ME?

Mr. Jones—Doctor, I think my wife is crazy. She wants to keep a goat!

Doctor—Let her keep it.

Mr. Jones—But you don't understand. She wants to keep it in the house!

Doctor—Well, let her keep it in the house if she wants to.

Mr. Jones—But a goat smells!

Doctor—Well, open the windows.

Mr. Jones—What! And let all my pet pigeons out!

Let Dad Do It!

Mr. Jones—I want two pillow cases.

Clerk—And what size?

Mr. Jones—My wife didn't say. I wear a seven but if that would help, but I don't know about her head size!

Bad You, Judge!

Judge—This time I'll let you off. But remember from now on, keep away from bad company.

Reuter—Yessah, yo' honah, yessah. Ah'll never see dat face ag'in.

SECOND FRONT

Gob—How did you like Venice?

Marine—I only was there a few days. The place was flooded.

Cop This One!

Bill — What's the difference between a floorwalker and a policeman?

Will—With one the customer is always right, and the other he's always wrong!

Whoa There!

Joe—I have a leading part in a new play.

Bill—Yeh. Who's your leading lady?

TREATMENT OF EPILEPSY

A few years ago the recognized treatment for epilepsy was the use of bromides. Bromides are drugs which depress or quiet irritable nerves, thus preventing convulsions, preventing vomiting and producing sleep. They are useful drugs. However, as they had to be used continuously in epileptics to prevent or relieve attacks, the patient was usually in a depressed and often a melancholy condition.

While the cause of epilepsy is still unknown, thousands of epileptics now have no attacks and the attacks in others are so mild that little thought is given to them. However, the great advance in the treatment of epilepsy did not occur by chance. Patient scientific investigation of all the circumstances that could possibly enter into the cause of epilepsy and the trying of methods of treatment has, in most cases, made the lives of epileptics much happier and less embarrassing and distressing.

Dr. D. S. Polk, in the Pennsylvania Medical Journal, states that a broad or all round investigation should be made in seeking the cause of epilepsy in children. There must be careful investigation of the child's adjustment to his surroundings and any physical defects or abnormal conditions removed. Infected teeth, diseased tonsils and adenoids, gland disturbances should be removed or corrected, and nourishing food assured.

What is called the ketogenic diet is still the basis of treatment; this diet increases the fat foods—butter, cream, egg yolks—and decreases the starch foods—potatoes, bread, sugar.

The drug used by Dr. Polk to prevent or control the attacks in children living at home or as patients in the Philadelphia Children's Hospital clinic is sodium dilantin. This drug—sodium dilantin—sometimes causes a reaction which has prevented some physicians from using it despite the fact that phenobarbital has failed to give satisfactory results in their cases. Dr. Polk states that sodium dilantin is very effective in preventing or decreasing the convulsions in epilepsy and in "ordinary" doses does not depress the other brain processes; that there is a wide margin between the ordinary dose and the dangerous dose. Further, even where there are mild reactions from sodium dilantin, the physician and patient may feel confident that these mild disturbances will disappear. In the diet treatment, liquids are decreased, as too much liquid in the tissues may bring on an attack.

Sick Infants Need 'Mothering'

When we think of how the death rate at birth, and during the first year, has been reduced from about three in every 10 children to less than three in every 20, it is naturally gratifying. And when we think further and realize that children can be rendered safe from the children's diseases that formerly carried away so many, we are even more gratified. Naturally, much of this saving of children's lives has been made possible by hospital investigation and treatment.

However, every physician realizes that what is called the human touch, element or equation, has much to do with how a child patient progresses during his stay in hospitals.

Infants in hospitals sleep less than those who are at home, they rarely smile or babble of their own accord, they are listless, uninterested in their surroundings and unhappy, the appetite is indifferent and food is accepted without enthusiasm, and nose, throat and chest infections which last only a day or two at home often persist for months in hospital. The infants are lonely.

To make the child still more lonely, he is often placed in a room by himself when an infection breaks out in a ward.

To help remove this loneliness and give the child some "mothering," the internes and nurses in Bellevue hospital, New York city, are encouraged to mother, cuddle and play with the infants at every opportunity and parents are invited to the ward and invited to fondle the children. This "mothering" has caused a marked drop in the infant death rate at Bellevue hospital.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—Can worry cause a person's appearance to change drastically; that is, cause loss of weight, lines under the eyes, sunken cheeks, etc?

A.—Worry could cause all the signs and symptoms you mention.

Q.—Can you give me any suggestions for the treatment of dizzy spells, indigestion, low-blood pressure, and a general run-down feeling?

NEW EFFECTIVE HAY FEVER RELIEF

Hay fever, which annually causes more sneezes, more inflamed noses and more red, streaming eyes than any other scourge, may have its final big fling this September, all because a Pennsylvania electrical engineer was served a dish of corn meal mush which was entirely too salty.

The engineer, sneezing, and with all other hay fever manifestations, stopped at a hotel where he was served a dish of mush which he considered sending back as it was much too salty. Finally he ate it, however; the hay fever attack lessened, ultimately ceased. Next day he had three meals, all oversalted, and experienced his most comfortable time in years in the "hay fever season."

His analytical mind quickly grasped the possibility that the saline substance in his food was responsible for his relief.

About this time, Dr. E. E. Selleck, a graduate of Columbia University, met the engineer, made notes, and when he returned to his home, began experiments. Today Dr. Selleck declares he has found a certain means of relief for hay fever and is supported in his contention by other medical experts, and a nationally known chemical manufacturing concern, the Hollings-Smith Company, at Orangeburg, New York, has taken over making the remedy, which is called Nakamo Bell.

Describing the experiments, Dr. Selleck said, "After I was sure I had found a means of quickly relieving hay fever through the chloride group, I tested it in the most practical way I knew. I held a three day clinic, to which many hay fever sufferers responded, from ages ranging from 10 to 60 years. Each person was given two tablets with a little water. Some relief came to all within ten minutes. Reports on these cases during the ensuing weeks showed practically a complete cessation of symptoms."—Adv.

Hear Our Rattles

A new acoustic stethoscope enables a physician to hear all the sounds in the human body, or those which range from 40 to 4,000 cycles, reports Collier's. Many of these rattles, squeaks, murmurs and groans have never been heard before because the range of the ordinary stethoscope is only from 200 to 1,500 cycles.

SLAVE TO PURGATIVES FINDS FREEDOM!

Feels 20 Years Younger, He Says!

Everyone who has despaired of ever finding normal regularity should read this unsolicited letter:

"Five years ago, I was quite constipated. I'd taken many so-called 'cures', but it was the same old story. It seemed that each dose had to be stronger than the last. Then, I tried KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. Soon I was 'regular' again, with none of the old griping pain. I'm 60, but feel younger than 40 years ago when I was a victim of chronic constipation."—Mr. A. Brownell, 435 S. Villa Avenue, Villa Park, Ill.

What's the secret of such reports of ALL-BRAN's wonderful results? It's simply this: Lack of certain cellulosic elements in the diet is a common cause of constipation. Scientists say KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is a rich, natural source of these elements—which help the colonic flora do their job—lightening and fluffing the necessary waste for easy, natural evacuation. ALL-BRAN is not a purgative! Not roughage that acts by "sweeping you out"! It's a gentle-acting, "regulating" food!

Eat ALL-BRAN regularly. Drink plenty of water. See if you, too, don't find the relief you've dreamed of! Insist on the genuine ALL-BRAN! It is made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.
